Admits Taking Cases Before U. S. Agencies

Denies Wrongdoing And Won't Resign

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — Democratic National Chairman William M. Boyle grilled all day in a probe of his relations with the American Lithofold Corp., ended his testimony tonight with a claim he had been "vindicated" of charges of taking $8,000 to help the firm get RFC loans.

Boyls told investigating senators that he has no intention of resigning as Democratic Party boss—and President Truman told his news conference that nothing has developed to shake his confidence in Boyle.

Testifying before the Senate's investigations subcommittee, Boyle acknowledged, however, that while serving as "acting chairman" of the national committee he accepted eight profitable legal cases involving government agencies.

Sen. Nixon (R-Calif) estimated the value of the fees involved at $158,500.

Boyle Challenged To Sue

But Boyle denied hotly that he had done anything wrong, declaring: "I never asked a favor from a government agency in my life."

Sen. Mundt (R-SD), another member of the inquiry group, challenged the Democratic chairman to sue the St. Louis Post-Dispatch for libel for its published reports that he had accepted $8,000 in fees from American Lithofold after the company obtained $565,000 in loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

It was a series of Post-Dispatch stories which initiated the Senate inquiry.

"Either you have been seriously libelled with very justiable claim against the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, or you have perjured yourself here today," Mundt said flatly.

"In the interests of good government in this country, and in the interests of reestablishing public confidence in good government, you should proceed with a libel suit x x x ."

Reporter To Testify

Mundt said he was "shocked" when he learned that Boyle did not demand a retraction from the newspaper.

"The matter is now in the hands of my counsel," Boyle said.

Chairman Hoey (D-NC) announced that Theodore Link, the Post-Dispatch reporter who wrote the Lithofold stories, will testify tomorrow, perhaps as the last witness.

Next week the committee will turn its attention to the relations of Republican National Chairman Guy George Gabrielson with the RFC. Gabrielson has acknowledged negotiating with the loan agency concerning $18,500,000 worth of loans to Carthage Hydrocol Inc., of which he is president and general counsel.

Reds Keep Silent On U.N. Proposal

Enemy May Be Trying To Goad Allies Into Ending Truce Effort

TOKYO, Friday, Sept. 28 (AP)—The Allies said Thursday they suspected the Reds of trying to goad the United Nations into breaking off attempts to negotiate an armistice in Korea.

The Reds kept silent, meanwhile, on a proposal by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway that the armistice talks be moved from Kaesong to a war-scarred hamlet in no-man's land.

Ridgway's suggestion, made to the Communist leaders Thursday, was that the talks be resumed six miles southeast of Kaesong, near the village of Songhyon. The first order of business, he said, should be demarcation of a buffer zone as a preliminary to a cease-fire.

Ridgway's public information office issued the statement saying the Reds may be trying to force the Allies to end the talks "out of sheer frustration and futility." The Reds suspended the truce talks Aug. 23 and have bickered constantly with the Allied command ever since over alleged neutrality-zone violations.

Communist liaison officers, meeting with Allied liaison men at Kaesong this week, refused to discuss anything but a time and date for resuming the talks.

The Allies have contended that Kaesong is unsuitable as a site for the talks because it is so near the battlelines. The Reds have charged the Allies with numerous violations of the neutral zone around the city but continued to insist that the talks resume there.

Prices Of Beef At Retail Level Go Up Monday

Boosts Will Average 1½ To 2 Cents Pound

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—The price of beef at the butcher's counter was hiked by the government today an average of 1½ to 2 cents a pound.

Along with the announcement of new ceilings, the Office of Price Stabilization put markets on notice they soon will have to post prices so they can be seen easily by customers. This will be done as soon as OPS can print posters, it said.

The price changes are effective Monday. They will range from a boost of as much as 29 cents a pound on some utility grade cuts to a drop of 20 cents a pound on some choice grade cuts of brisket or stewing beef.

OPS officials said, however, that the average increase on choice grades of beef—the largest selling grade—probably will not average more than a penny a pound. Choice grades account for about 35 per cent of the meat supply going to consumers.

Utility grade cuts, on which the sharpest increases apply, account for not more than ten per cent of all beef sales. Little of this lower grade is sold over the counter. Mostly it is used in processing—for sausage, smoked and cured meat.

As an example of the increases which will affect most people, regular hamburger containing up to 25 per cent fat will go up about a penny a pound on the average. The better grade, lean ground hamburger containing up to 12 per cent fat, will cost from two to five cents a pound more.

Reds Loose Attacks In East, Central Korea

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Friday, Sept. 28 (AP) — Communist troops loosed attacks up to regimental strength in Central and Eastern Korea Thursday, touching off battles that still raged today.

American and French infantrymen, however, kept up the pressure on Red-held "Heartbreak Ridge" in Eastern Korea. They renewed assaults only yards from the top of the highest peak.

The rash of Communist attacks began Thursday and stretched from the iron triangle area of Central Korea eastward to the punchbowl in the mountainous east.

An Eighth Army staff officer said several pitched battles raged past midnight.

As fighting on the ground intensified, Far East Forces warplanes stepped up their campaign against Communist supplies with more than 1,000 flights. Fifth Air Force light bombers Thursday destroyed or damaged 1,121 enemy vehicles, a new single day's high for Korean war, the Air Force said.

FEAF Reports Two Transports Missing

TOKYO, Friday, Sept. 28 (AP) — Two American cargo-transport planes, one with 11 persons aboard, were reported missing today by the Far East Air Forces headquarters.

The missing planes, a C-119 Flying Boxcar and C-46 Commando, were due to arrive at Tachikawa, a suburb of Tokyo, at 10 o'clock last night.

Earlier the Air Force announced a C-46 crashed in flames near Nakone, Japan, with the reported death of all the crew of five.

Falls 8 Floors, Lives

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 27 (AP)—A man plunged from the eighth floor of the Melbourne Hotel here today, struck some electric wires in the fall — and lived.

He was seriously injured, however, suffering fractures of the left hip and arm, plus a deep cut over the right eye.

Officials identified him as Guy V. Neagle, Jr., 27, of suburban University City.

Air Force Claims 277 MIGs Hit Or Downed Over Korea

WITH U. S. AIR FORCE IN KOREA, Sept. 27 (AP)—The Fifth Air Force tonight claimed a grand total of 277 Russian-built MIG fighters destroyed or damaged since the first swept-back wing Communist jet was shot down over Korea last Nov. 8. Of these, 74 were listed as definitely destroyed.

"Our own losses have been only a handful in spite of fighting against odds of two and three to one," a Fifth Air Force spokesman said.

The new totals came after three days of MIG fighting that saw both the longest and the greatest jet batles in history—as well as signs of improvement in Communist flying and aircraft.

"But even under terrific odds we can hold our own," said Col. Francis S. Gabreski, deputy commander of the crack Fourth Fighter-Interceptor Wing, whose F-86 Sabre jets range almost daily into North Korea's "MIG Alley."

"The score speaks for itself," Gabreski said.

Gabreski noted yesterday that the Communists' planes, pilots and flying tactics have improved from the early days of the Korean air fighting.

"But we can still handle them—as you can see from our latest figures," he added.

Boss Bookie Given 12-Year Prison Term

Refusal To Testify Figures In Sentence

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (AP)—Boss Bookie Harry Gross was sentenced to 12 years in prison today, partly for wrecking Brooklyn's big graft case against 18 policemen.

A three-man special session court penalized him as operator of a $20,000,000 gambling ring that paid $1,000,000 a year bribes to police.

But Presiding Justice William B. Northrup made it plain the sentence also was based on Gross' dramatic refusal last week to testify against the cops.

Michael Kern, attorney for the dapper, fleshy bookie, said the sentence would be appealed at once.

Gross Shows No Emotion

Gross apparently took it without batting an eye. He showed no emotion as he was hustled off to jail.

He did mutter:

"You'd think I'd committed murder or something."

He could have gotten 68 years and nearly $34,000 in fines on 66 counts of gambling and conspiracy. Even the state didn't hope for that much, however.

District Attorney Miles F. McDonald was shooting for a sentence of about eight or at the most 12 years, plus a fine.

There was no fine.

The Special Session Court, instead, gave Gross one year on each of 12 counts and suspended sentence on the rest. The bookie was ordered to serve the one year sentences one after another.

"Roman Holiday," Defense Says

For hours, the Special Sessions Court heard a recital from grand jury records of how Gross bribed cops since 1941; how he had more inside departmental dope than most of the cops themselves. The names of the policemen were not read.

The judges also heard Defense Attorney Kern plead for mercy and label the case "a Roman holiday."

Gross, married and with two small children, faces an added prison term for contempt of court, growing out of his trial-wrecking tactics.

Brooklyn Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz gave his five years and a $15,000 fine from the bench. An indictment for criminal contempt which superceded this carries a 10 year maximum and a $10,000 fine if Gross is convicted on trial.

Truman Has Hope For Oil Peace In Iran

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — President Truman expressed the hope today that there will be a peaceful solution of the explosive Iranian-British oil dispute.

But he said there is no plan to send W. Averell Harriman, his special assistant, back to Iran as a mediator.

And he refused to tell his news conference about the nature of his exchange of messages with Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain.

The Iranian question was one of a score that came up at today's news conference. On the whole it was a rather drab affair, except for the President's snappy new brown suit.

Mr. Truman said he is always hoping for peace in the world and while sometimes it does not come to fruition he is still hoping for an Iranian settlement.

On the domestic front, the President said he still has confidence in William M. Boyle, Jr., the Democratic national chairman, and nothing has come out of the Senate hearings to change that opinion.

Many of the reporters' questions dealt with the President's message to Congress earlier today recommending legislation to require members of Congress, and top government officials and party committee officers to disclose annually their total income and the sources.

A reporter noted one reference in his message to the effect that the bulk of government workers are honest, but sometimes there are cases where members of the executive and legislative branches let their public acts be "swayed by private interest." The newsman wanted to know if there are some cases of the latter type that have not been made public.

Mr. Truman replied there are none that he knows of.

Mr. Larry has had nine operations, his wife two and their other two sons have been hospitalized several times recently.

President Asks Law To Expose Officials' Income

Proposal Arouses Little Enthusiasm

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — President Truman, taking note of charges that graft is "running rampant," asked Congress today for swift passage of a law to expose the total income of all top U. S. officials each year—including the lawmakers.

In a dramatic and unheralded move, the President said it should be spread on the public record exactly how much money, gifts or loans are received by those responsible for running the nation.

He said the list should include members of Congress, as well as Cabinet members, generals, admirals, judges, all high-salaried government employes, and bigwigs of both major political parties.

Special Message

Mr. Truman urged the lawmakers in a special message to enact the legislation promptly as an important step to prevent "improper conduct" and guard against "unfounded suspicions."

Mr. Truman said the truth should be known, partly because there has been "a deliberate effort to discredit the government service."

The President sent the message to the Capitol as his own party chairman, William M. Boyle, Jr., took the witness stand as the central figure in the latest of a long series of congressional investigations into charges of tricky deals in high places.

Mr. Truman, in his proposal, suggested violations be punished on the same basis as violations of the income-tax laws.

On Capitol Hill, the President's proposal got a mixed reception, with little enthusiasm in evidence.

Republicans Aroused

Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) told the Senate:

"It is a sad thing that for the first time in the 175-year history of the republic it is necessary to pass legislation to clean up corruption in government."

Capehart said the corruption "would never have happened if the head of the administration had not condoned it."

Sen. Millikin (R-Colo) shouted that the message was "garbage, hog wash a piece of filth. . . too cheap, too degrading to be before this Senate."

Across the Capitol, the House sent the President's request to the Judiciary Committee with indications that it would cool off there, at least until next year.

"Sick" Strike Ends

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP)—Syracuse trash collectors and park employes, idle for three days in a "sick" strike, voted today to return to work.

After a meeting of the 600 strikers, AFL union officials said the workers had voted to accept a $350 annual pay boost planned by the city.

Tone Withdraws Assault Complaint

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 27. (INS)—Franchot Tone today dropped his effort to send heavy-fisted Tom Neal to jail for the beating Neal gave him over Actress Barbara Payton's affections.

Tone appeared at the district attorney's office and signed a statement saying that "I do not wish to prosecute Tom Neal."

As he left, he told newsmen that he expected to join Barbara in the east shortly and "very possibly" be married there.

Conferees Adopt Aid Compromise

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (AP) — Senate-House conferees today approved a $7,483,400,000 foreign aid bill setting up a new super agency to boss the entire program of economic and military aid to the non-Communist world.

Under the bill, the Economic Cooperation Administration — which now administers economic aid to the Marshall Plan countries—would be abolished.

As a replacement for ECA, President Truman would be authorized to establish a new "mutual security" agency and appoint a $22,500-a-year director with sweeping powers. The director would have his headquarters in the White House.

Agreement on the measure followed bitter disputes over the State Department's role in the huge program. Some Congress members have contended that under the regime of Secretary of State Acheson the department has attempted to dictate policy in the military realm as well as in the field of international diplomacy.

Getting To Be Habit

JOPPA, Ill., Sept. 27 (AP)—Another strike halted work today on a $90,000,000 power plant being built to energize an atomic project. It was the tenth labor dispute to halt work since the Joppa project was started this year.

Senators Would Tax President's Expense Account

Exemption Would Be Denied Top Officials

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — The Senate today overwhelmingly approved legislation to knock out tax exemptions enjoyed by the president, vice president and members of Congress—and thus to cut their pay—beginning in 1953.

The measure, if approved by the House, will eliminate exemptions on expense accounts allowed these officials.

The effective date would be Jan. 3, 1953. This would involve the last 17 days of the terms for President Truman and Vice President Barkley, but would not affect the present 82nd Congress.

Vote Is 77 To 11

The vote was 77-11. The measure was in the form of an amendment to the Senate's bill to increase taxes an estimated $5,506,000,000 a year, on which the Senate opened its eighth day of debate today.

Sen. Williams (R-Del), sponsor of the successful amendment, expressed belief that top governmental officials should give up these tax-free allowances when Congress is preparing legislation to tax everyone "until it hurts."

He indicated the purpose of his amendment was more to make officials share the general burden of increased taxes than to produce any substantial revenue.

Depends On House Concurrence

The House-approved $7,200,000,000 tax increase bill does not include a similar provision. Therefore elimination of official tax exemptions depends upon House concurrence when differences in the two revenue bills are discussed in a joint conference committee.

Williams said after today's vote he did not intend to have the measure apply to the current terms of President Truman and Vice President Barkley. He said he had overlooked the fact their terms expire Jan. 20, 1953, instead of Jan. 2, 1953 when the 82nd Congress ends.

The president gets $50,000 annually in tax-free allowance, in addition to his $100,000 salary.

World War II Ammunition Still Being Fired In Korea

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Friday, Sept. 28 (AP)—American guns firing tremendous artillery barrages in Korea are still using shells stockpiled from World War II.

American artillery had fired 8,200,000 rounds through the first of September—and all of it was manufactured during or before 1945. The total does not include this month's fighting on the eastern front, where single objectives have sometimes been shattered with up to 15,000 rounds a day.

"We don't know when we'll use up the World War II stocks," said Col. R. C. White, Buffalo, N. Y., Eighth Army artillery officer. "We won't know until shells start to come in with later dates stamped on them."

The Eighth Army total does not include infantry supporting wea pons such as the recoilless 75 millimeter, the shells fired by tanks or the artillery of the British Commonwealth Division, which depends largely on British 25-pounders.

The use of artillery is increasing almost daily. The present relative stability of the front is made to order for it.

So far in the Korean war, American soldiers are still using World War II mortar shells, rockets, grenades, mines and most small arms ammunition.

Controversial Order Sets Off Senate Storm

Agency Didn't Want "Embarrassment"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — President Truman tonight ordered the Office of Price Stabilization to withdraw instructions it had issued to its employes not to make public any information that "might cause embarrassment to the OPS."

Presidential Secretary Joseph Short announced that by direction of Mr. Truman, the OPS is withdrawing the controversial order immediately. It had been disclosed earlier today.

Short said Mr. Truman felt the order "might be misconstrued" in connection with his own order of Tuesday setting up uniform standards for release of security information.

In Chicago, Michael DiSalle, OPS head who was returning from speaking tours in the West, said "if I'd been there (in Washington) we wouldn't have needed a request from the President."

Senators Denounce Edict

He said he thought the directive was "poorly conceived."

"If we were going to prevent embarassment to the OPS we might even stop issuing some regulations," DiSalle added. He did not comment further on this last statement.

The OPS order touched off a storm of protest in the Senate, where it was denounced tonight as "a blow at liberty" and as "dictatorship."

Several lawmakers shouted angrily that the edict stemmed from President Truman's order.

Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) demanded a congressional investigation. Sens. Maybank (D-SC) and Ferguson (R-Mich) said Congress should forbid the price agency to spend a cent of its appropriation to put such an order into effect.

Tonight's White House statement said:

"Although assured by the agency that it had no intention of classifying its operations as 'security information,' the President determines that the bulletin was so broad that it might be misconstrued in violation of his executive order, issued on Tuesday, requiring certain safeguards for 'security information' and limiting use of these safeguards to bona fide security information."

"Glad To Withdraw" Order

The OPS bulletin to its staff was issued over the name of Richard F. Cook, assistant director for management.

It said the purpose was to "emphasize the necessity for limiting the use and inspection of files to employes of OPS, and to prohibit the disclosure of material contained therein, or the release of any other internal information that might cause embarrassment to OPS."

Cook issued a statement immediately after the White House order, saying he was "glad to withdraw the staff bulletin."

"It was in no way intended to place any restriction whatsoever on the dissemination of legitimate information on the agency's activities, decisions, or policies which have been formulated or adopted," Cook said.

Council Is Named By King George

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP) —King George VI today appointed a council of state, including his queen and his daughters, to act for him during the long period of his recovery from a lung operation.

The announcement from Buckingham Palace came a short time after Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh decided to go ahead with their Canadian tour, starting from Quebec Oct. 9.

The heiress presumptive to the British throne will share duties on the council with Queen Elizabeth, Princess Margaret, the king's brother, the Duke of Gloucester, and the princess royal, his sister.

At Buckingham Palace spokesman said, however, there is no constitutional bar to Princess Elizabeth's leaving England under the circumstances.

A council of state usually is appointed to act for the king in the event of the monarch's illness or absence from Britain. The council must consist of the husband or wife of the sovereign and the next four in direct succession to the throne who are not under 21 years of age.

King George is making a strong comeback from the lung operation, performed last Sunday. Palace sources explained appointment of the council did not mean there was any worsening of the Monarch's condition.

OPS officials said, however, that the average increase on choice grades of beef—the largest selling grade—probably will not average more than a penny a pound. Choice grades account for about 35 per cent of the meat supply going to consumers.

Utility grade cuts, on which the sharpest increases apply, account for not more than ten per cent of all beef sales. Little of this lower grade is sold over the counter. Mostly it is used in processing—for sausage, smoked and cured meat.

As an example of the increases which will affect most people, regular hamburger containing up to 25 per cent fat will go up about a penny a pound on the average. The better grade, lean ground hamburger containing up to 12 per cent fat, will cost from two to five cents a pound more.

Reds Loose Attacks In East, Central Korea

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Friday, Sept. 28 (AP) — Communist troops loosed attacks up to regimental strength in Central and Eastern Korea Thursday, touching off battles that still raged today.

American and French infantrymen, however, kept up the pressure on Red-held "Heartbreak Ridge" in Eastern Korea. They renewed assaults only yards from the top of the highest peak.

The rash of Communist attacks began Thursday and stretched from the iron triangle area of Central Korea eastward to the punchbowl in the mountainous east.

An Eighth Army staff officer said several pitched battles raged past midnight.

As fighting on the ground intensified, Far East Forces warplanes stepped up their campaign against Communist supplies with more than 1,000 flights. Fifth Air Force light bombers Thursday destroyed or damaged 1,121 enemy vehicles, a new single day's high for Korean war, the Air Force said.

FEAF Reports Two Transports Missing

TOKYO, Friday, Sept. 28 (AP) — Two American cargo-transport planes, one with 11 persons aboard, were reported missing today by the Far East Air Forces headquarters.

The missing planes, a C-119 Flying Boxcar and C-46 Commando, were due to arrive at Tachikawa, a suburb of Tokyo, at 10 o'clock last night.

Earlier the Air Force announced a C-46 crashed in flames near Nakone, Japan, with the reported death of all the crew of five.

Falls 8 Floors, Lives

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 27 (AP)—A man plunged from the eighth floor of the Melbourne Hotel here today, struck some electric wires in the fall — and lived.

He was seriously injured, however, suffering fractures of the left hip and arm, plus a deep cut over the right eye.

Air Force Claims 277 MIGs Hit Or Downed Over Korea

WITH U. S. AIR FORCE IN KOREA, Sept. 27 (AP)—The Fifth Air Force tonight claimed a grand total of 277 Russian-built MIG fighters destroyed or damaged since the first swept-back wing Communist jet was shot down over Korea last Nov. 8. Of these, 74 were listed as definitely destroyed.

"Our own losses have been only a handful in spite of fighting against odds of two and three to one," a Fifth Air Force spokesman said.

The new totals came after three days of MIG fighting that saw both the longest and the greatest jet batles in history—as well as signs of improvement in Communist flying and aircraft.

"But even under terrific odds we can hold our own," said Col. Francis S. Gabreski, deputy commander of the crack Fourth Fighter-Interceptor Wing, whose F-86 Sabre jets range almost daily into North Korea's "MIG Alley."

"The score speaks for itself," Gabreski said.

Gabreski noted yesterday that the Communists' planes, pilots and flying tactics have improved from the early days of the Korean air fighting.

"But we can still handle them—as you can see from our latest figures," he added.

Refusal To Testify Figures In Sentence

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (AP)—Boss Bookie Harry Gross was sentenced to 12 years in prison today, partly for wrecking Brooklyn's big graft case against 18 policemen.

A three-man special session court penalized him as operator of a $20,000,000 gambling ring that paid $1,000,000 a year bribes to police.

But Presiding Justice William B. Northrup made it plain the sentence also was based on Gross' dramatic refusal last week to testify against the cops.

Michael Kern, attorney for the dapper, fleshy bookie, said the sentence would be appealed at once.

Gross Shows No Emotion

Gross apparently took it without batting an eye. He showed no emotion as he was hustled off to jail.

He did mutter:

"You'd think I'd committed murder or something."

He could have gotten 68 years and nearly $34,000 in fines on 66 counts of gambling and conspiracy. Even the state didn't hope for that much, however.

District Attorney Miles F. McDonald was shooting for a sentence of about eight or at the most 12 years, plus a fine.

There was no fine.

The Special Session Court, instead, gave Gross one year on each of 12 counts and suspended sentence on the rest. The bookie was ordered to serve the one year sentences one after another.

"Roman Holiday," Defense Says

For hours, the Special Sessions Court heard a recital from grand jury records of how Gross bribed cops since 1941; how he had more inside departmental dope than most of the cops themselves. The names of the policemen were not read.

The judges also heard Defense Attorney Kern plead for mercy and label the case "a Roman holiday."

Gross, married and with two small children, faces an added prison term for contempt of court, growing out of his trial-wrecking tactics.

Brooklyn Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz gave his five years and a $15,000 fine from the bench. An indictment for criminal contempt which superceded this carries a 10 year maximum and a $10,000 fine if Gross is convicted on trial.

Truman Has Hope For Oil Peace In Iran

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — President Truman expressed the hope today that there will be a peaceful solution of the explosive Iranian-British oil dispute.

But he said there is no plan to send W. Averell Harriman, his special assistant, back to Iran as a mediator.

And he refused to tell his news conference about the nature of his exchange of messages with Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain.

The Iranian question was one of a score that came up at today's news conference. On the whole it was a rather drab affair, except for the President's snappy new brown suit.

Mr. Truman said he is always hoping for peace in the world and while sometimes it does not come to fruition he is still hoping for an Iranian settlement.

On the domestic front, the President said he still has confidence in William M. Boyle, Jr., the Democratic national chairman, and nothing has come out of the Senate hearings to change that opinion.

Many of the reporters' questions dealt with the President's message to Congress earlier today recommending legislation to require members of Congress, and top government officials and party committee officers to disclose annually their total income and the sources.

A reporter noted one reference in his message to the effect that the bulk of government workers are honest, but sometimes there are cases where members of the executive and legislative branches let their public acts be "swayed by private interest." The newsman wanted to know if there are some cases of the latter type that have not been made public.

Mr. Truman replied there are none that he knows of.

Unluckiest Of Unlucky Family

As two-year-old Tommy Larry enters the 20th week in a coma at St. Joseph's Hospital, Fort Wayne, Ind., his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Madison Larry, open mail containing contributions. Gifts by mail were the result of recent news stories which spread the plight of the youngster, telling of his long coma after measles, mumps and complications. Mr. Larry has had nine operations, his wife two and their other two sons have been hospitalized several times recently.

President Asks Law To Expose Officials' Income

Proposal Arouses Little Enthusiasm

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — President Truman, taking note of charges that graft is "running rampant," asked Congress today for swift passage of a law to expose the total income of all top U. S. officials each year—including the lawmakers.

In a dramatic and unheralded move, the President said it should be spread on the public record exactly how much money, gifts or loans are received by those responsible for running the nation.

He said the list should include members of Congress, as well as Cabinet members, generals, admirals, judges, all high-salaried government employes, and bigwigs of both major political parties.

Special Message

Mr. Truman urged the lawmakers in a special message to enact the legislation promptly as an important step to prevent "improper conduct" and guard against "unfounded suspicions."

Mr. Truman said the truth should be known, partly because there has been "a deliberate effort to discredit the government service."

The President sent the message to the Capitol as his own party chairman, William M. Boyle, Jr., took the witness stand as the central figure in the latest of a long series of congressional investigations into charges of tricky deals in high places.

Mr. Truman, in his proposal, suggested violations be punished on the same basis as violations of the income-tax laws.

On Capitol Hill, the President's proposal got a mixed reception, with little enthusiasm in evidence.

Republicans Aroused

Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) told the Senate:

"It is a sad thing that for the first time in the 175-year history of the republic it is necessary to pass legislation to clean up corruption in government."

Capehart said the corruption "would never have happened if the head of the administration had not condoned it."

Sen. Millikin (R-Colo) shouted that the message was "garbage, hog wash a piece of filth. . . too cheap, too degrading to be before this Senate."

Across the Capitol, the House sent the President's request to the Judiciary Committee with indications that it would cool off there, at least until next year.

"Sick" Strike Ends

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP)—Syracuse trash collectors and park employes, idle for three days in a "sick" strike, voted today to return to work.

After a meeting of the 600 strikers, AFL union officials said the workers had voted to accept a $350 annual pay boost planned by the city.

Tone Withdraws Assault Complaint

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 27. (INS)—Franchot Tone today dropped his effort to send heavy-fisted Tom Neal to jail for the beating Neal gave him over Actress Barbara Payton's affections.

Tone appeared at the district attorney's office and signed a statement saying that "I do not wish to prosecute Tom Neal."

As he left, he told newsmen that he expected to join Barbara in the east shortly and "very possibly" be married there.

Conferees Adopt Aid Compromise

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (AP) — Senate-House conferees today approved a $7,483,400,000 foreign aid bill setting up a new super agency to boss the entire program of economic and military aid to the non-Communist world.

Under the bill, the Economic Cooperation Administration — which now administers economic aid to the Marshall Plan countries—would be abolished.

As a replacement for ECA, President Truman would be authorized to establish a new "mutual security" agency and appoint a $22,500-a-year director with sweeping powers. The director would have his headquarters in the White House.

Agreement on the measure followed bitter disputes over the State Department's role in the huge program. Some Congress members have contended that under the regime of Secretary of State Acheson the department has attempted to dictate policy in the military realm as well as in the field of international diplomacy.

Getting To Be Habit

JOPPA, Ill., Sept. 27 (AP)—Another strike halted work today on a $90,000,000 power plant being built to energize an atomic project. It was the tenth labor dispute to halt work since the Joppa project was started this year.

World War II Ammunition Still Being Fired In Korea

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Friday, Sept. 28 (AP)—American guns firing tremendous artillery barrages in Korea are still using shells stockpiled from World War II.

American artillery had fired 8,200,000 rounds through the first of September—and all of it was manufactured during or before 1945. The total does not include this month's fighting on the eastern front, where single objectives have sometimes been shattered with up to 15,000 rounds a day.

"We don't know when we'll use up the World War II stocks," said Col. R. C. White, Buffalo, N. Y., Eighth Army artillery officer. "We won't know until shells start to come in with later dates stamped on them."

The Eighth Army total does not include infantry supporting wea pons such as the recoilless 75 millimeter, the shells fired by tanks or the artillery of the British Commonwealth Division, which depends largely on British 25-pounders.

The use of artillery is increasing almost daily. The present relative stability of the front is made to order for it.

So far in the Korean war, American soldiers are still using World War II mortar shells, rockets, grenades, mines and most small arms ammunition.

Senators Would Tax President's Expense Account

Exemption Would Be Denied Top Officials

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — The Senate today overwhelmingly approved legislation to knock out tax exemptions enjoyed by the president, vice president and members of Congress—and thus to cut their pay—beginning in 1953.

The measure, if approved by the House, will eliminate exemptions on expense accounts allowed these officials.

The effective date would be Jan. 3, 1953. This would involve the last 17 days of the terms for President Truman and Vice President Barkley, but would not affect the present 82nd Congress.

Vote Is 77 To 11

The vote was 77-11. The measure was in the form of an amendment to the Senate's bill to increase taxes an estimated $5,506,000,000 a year, on which the Senate opened its eighth day of debate today.

Sen. Williams (R-Del), sponsor of the successful amendment, expressed belief that top governmental officials should give up these tax-free allowances when Congress is preparing legislation to tax everyone "until it hurts."

He indicated the purpose of his amendment was more to make officials share the general burden of increased taxes than to produce any substantial revenue.

Depends On House Concurrence

The House-approved $7,200,000,000 tax increase bill does not include a similar provision. Therefore elimination of official tax exemptions depends upon House concurrence when differences in the two revenue bills are discussed in a joint conference committee.

Williams said after today's vote he did not intend to have the measure apply to the current terms of President Truman and Vice President Barkley. He said he had overlooked the fact their terms expire Jan. 20, 1953, instead of Jan. 2, 1953 when the 82nd Congress ends.

The president gets $50,000 annually in tax-free allowance, in addition to his $100,000 salary.

Agency Didn't Want "Embarrassment"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — President Truman tonight ordered the Office of Price Stabilization to withdraw instructions it had issued to its employes not to make public any information that "might cause embarrassment to the OPS."

Presidential Secretary Joseph Short announced that by direction of Mr. Truman, the OPS is withdrawing the controversial order immediately. It had been disclosed earlier today.

Short said Mr. Truman felt the order "might be misconstrued" in connection with his own order of Tuesday setting up uniform standards for release of security information.

In Chicago, Michael DiSalle, OPS head who was returning from speaking tours in the West, said "if I'd been there (in Washington) we wouldn't have needed a request from the President."

Senators Denounce Edict

He said he thought the directive was "poorly conceived."

"If we were going to prevent embarassment to the OPS we might even stop issuing some regulations," DiSalle added. He did not comment further on this last statement.

The OPS order touched off a storm of protest in the Senate, where it was denounced tonight as "a blow at liberty" and as "dictatorship."

Several lawmakers shouted angrily that the edict stemmed from President Truman's order.

Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) demanded a congressional investigation. Sens. Maybank (D-SC) and Ferguson (R-Mich) said Congress should forbid the price agency to spend a cent of its appropriation to put such an order into effect.

Tonight's White House statement said:

"Although assured by the agency that it had no intention of classifying its operations as 'security information,' the President determines that the bulletin was so broad that it might be misconstrued in violation of his executive order, issued on Tuesday, requiring certain safeguards for 'security information' and limiting use of these safeguards to bona fide security information."

"Glad To Withdraw" Order

The OPS bulletin to its staff was issued over the name of Richard F. Cook, assistant director for management.

It said the purpose was to "emphasize the necessity for limiting the use and inspection of files to employes of OPS, and to prohibit the disclosure of material contained therein, or the release of any other internal information that might cause embarrassment to OPS."

Cook issued a statement immediately after the White House order, saying he was "glad to withdraw the staff bulletin."

"It was in no way intended to place any restriction whatsoever on the dissemination of legitimate information on the agency's activities, decisions, or policies which have been formulated or adopted," Cook said.

Council Is Named By King George

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP) —King George VI today appointed a council of state, including his queen and his daughters, to act for him during the long period of his recovery from a lung operation.

The announcement from Buckingham Palace came a short time after Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh decided to go ahead with their Canadian tour, starting from Quebec Oct. 9.

The heiress presumptive to the British throne will share duties on the council with Queen Elizabeth, Princess Margaret, the king's brother, the Duke of Gloucester, and the princess royal, his sister.

At Buckingham Palace spokesman said, however, there is no constitutional bar to Princess Elizabeth's leaving England under the circumstances.

A council of state usually is appointed to act for the king in the event of the monarch's illness or absence from Britain. The council must consist of the husband or wife of the sovereign and the next four in direct succession to the throne who are not under 21 years of age.

King George is making a strong comeback from the lung operation, performed last Sunday. Palace sources explained appointment of the council did not mean there was any worsening of the Monarch's condition.

Army Ready This Time For Korea Winter Campaign

By DON WHITEHEAD

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Army has begun moving almost 100,000 fresh combat troops into Korea to make certain that battle-worn veterans who fought through the bitter campaign last winter will not have to suffer through a second one.

But for those who must stay, the Army has stockpiled enough winter gear in Korea to provide every solder and Marine with warm clothing when winter settles over that unhappy land.

This time the Army doesn't intend to be caught short on winter equipment as it has in past winter campaigns in North Africa, Italy, Europe and Korea. And it is trying to give first consideration to the men who endured last winter's campaign.

This means the last of the old-timers in Korea are coming home. They are the veterans of the wintry battles along the Chongchon River, the Yalu River, Hungnam, and scores of nameless, snow-capped mountains in the north.

Right now more than 30,000 troops are being poured into Korea each month as replacements for killed, wounded, missing—and the veterans who went all the way through the winter fighting. The Marines also are bringing their veterans back as rapidly as possible.

The normal Army replacement rate had been about 20,000 a month. But this rate was stepped up for August,, September and October with men drawn largely from National Guard units. The number of Marine replacements going to Korea has not been disclosed.

This increase in replacements does not mean everybody who fought in a winter battle will be eligible to come home. One officer explained it this way:

"We hope to bring back the men who fought through the entire winter in Korea. As much as we would like to, we can't bring back some of the men who were only in the latter stages of the winter fighting. They will have to wait a little longer for rotation."

Neither will it mean that rear area service troops—those behind the fighting front—will be able to return before another winter begins.

Roughly, the combat troops—the infantrymen, tankmen, artillerymen, combat engineers and others in forward areas—are eligible for rotation home after about nine months. The rear area troops must sweat it out for well over a year before their number comes up.

There is no specific length of time which makes a combat soldier eligible for rotation. That depends entirely on the number of replacements available. But the span is now running around nine months for the combat men.

The stepped-up replacement program also means that by November the fighting face of the rugged Eighth Army will be almost completely changed. There will be few combat men left who were in Korea this time last year—from Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker down through the ranks.

Death took Walker in a jeep accident last December. Death, wounds, sickness, capture by the enemy and rotation gradually have replaced the old-timers with new faces.

Peiping Cold Shoulder Puts India In Market For New Ambassador

By HAROLD K. MILKS

NEW DELHI—(AP)—India is seeking a top-notch diplomat to fill one of its most important posts, that of ambassador to Communist China.

Sardar Kavalam Madhava Panikkar, 56, bearded rotund writer, journalist and public official, is ready to come home from the job he has held since the Peiping regime started operations in 1949.

Officially Panikkar has asked to be relieved because his wife cannot stand the rigors of another North China winter, but there has been much speculation he wishes to return for other reasons, among them that Mao Tze-Tung's regime has not come up to the expectations Panikkar raised in earlier reports to his government.

The choice of his replacement still is anybody's guess. But it appears certain that Panikkar—home only once for consultation since he went to China in April 1948 as ambassador to the Nationalist government at Nanking—will be back in India before the winter snows.

It was Panikkar who received much of the blame from Western observers for India's position on Communist China—its insistence that the Chinese should be allowed into the United Nations, its refusal to name the Communist regime aggressors in Korea.

Some of his more bitter critics called him a Communist and said his reports were slanted, but a study of Panikkar's history makes that somewhat difficult to believe.

Born June 3, 1895, in Malabar, Southwest India, he studied at Chris Church, Oxford, was called to the bar in London's Middle Temple, and practised in the English courts before becoming professor of law at the Aligarh Muslim University.

He later turned to journalism, became editor of the Hindustan Times, and left that post to join the Chamber of Princes, set up under the 1921 Montagu-Chelmsford reform program.

He served for ten years with the princes—the Maharaja of Patiala gave him the honorary title of "Sardar"—participating in the London round table conference of Indian princes, and touring the world in their behalf.

Prior to his selection as ambassador to China he was a member of the Indian delegation to the 1947 United Nations General Assembly.

A good mixer and clever host in the closing days of the Chinese Nationalist regime in Nanking, Panikkar failed in Peiping to break into the "inner circle" of diplomats. As representative of a non-Communist country he fared but little better than his British colleague, whose diplomatic status was given scant recognition by Mao Tze-Tung's government.

As a non-Communist, Panikkar dealt largely with minor Chinese officials, depended for much of his information on newspaper and other published statements, had a back seat at public functions.

It is known here that the Indian Foreign Office is concerned over its relations with Peiping. Although Prime Minister Nehru frequently has supported the Chinese Communist cause, both within and without the United Nations, Mao Tze-Tung has given little recognition.

The Communists ignored India's half-hearted protests on the Red "liberation" of Tibet. Communist pressure has been started against Nepal.

Some Indian officials are hopeful that a change in ambassadors might improve the situation.

Record age among birds is 70 years, held by an eagle-owl.

Army Ready This Time For Korea Winter Campaign

By DON WHITEHEAD

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Army has begun moving almost 100,000 fresh combat troops into Korea to make certain that battle-worn veterans who fought through the bitter campaign last winter will not have to suffer through a second one.

But for those who must stay, the Army has stockpiled enough winter gear in Korea to provide every solder and Marine with warm clothing when winter settles over that unhappy land.

This time the Army doesn't intend to be caught short on winter equipment as it has in past winter campaigns in North Africa, Italy, Europe and Korea. And it is trying to give first consideration to the men who endured last winter's campaign.

This means the last of the old-timers in Korea are coming home. They are the veterans of the wintry battles along the Chongchon River, the Yalu River, Hungnam, and scores of nameless, snow-capped mountains in the north.

Right now more than 30,000 troops are being poured into Korea each month as replacements for killed, wounded, missing—and the veterans who went all the way through the winter fighting. The Marines also are bringing their veterans back as rapidly as possible.

The normal Army replacement rate had been about 20,000 a month. But this rate was stepped up for August,. September and October with men drawn largely from National Guard units. The number of Marine replacements going to Korea has not been disclosed.

This increase in replacements does not mean everybody who fought in a winter battle will be eligible to come home. One officer explained it this way:

"We hope to bring back the men who fought through the entire winter in Korea. As much as we would like to, we can't bring back some of the men who were only in the latter stages of the winter fighting. They will have to wait a little longer for rotation."

Neither will it mean that rear area service troops—those behind the fighting front—will be able to return before another winter begins.

Roughly, the combat troops—the infantrymen, tankmen, artillerymen, combat engineers and others in forward areas—are eligible for rotation home after about nine months. The rear area troops must sweat it out for well over a year before their number comes up.

There is no specific length of time which makes a combat soldier eligible for rotation. That depends entirely on the number of replacements available. But the span is now running around nine months for the combat men.

The stepped-up replacement program also means that by November the fighting face of the rugged Eighth Army will be almost completely changed. There will be few combat men left who were in Korea this time last year—from Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker down through the ranks.

Death took Walker in a jeep accident last December. Death, wounds, sickness, capture by the enemy and rotation gradually have replaced the old-timers with new faces.

Peiping Cold Shoulder Puts India In Market For New Ambassador

By HAROLD K. MILKS

NEW DELHI—(AP)—India is seeking a top-notch diplomat to fill one of its most important posts, that of ambassador to Communist China.

Sardar Kavalam Madhava Panikkar, 56, bearded rotund writer, journalist and public official, is ready to come home from the job he has held since the Peiping regime started operations in 1949.

Officially Panikkar has asked to be relieved because his wife cannot stand the rigors of another North China winter, but there has been much speculation he wishes to return for other reasons, among them that Mao Tze-Tung's regime has not come up to the expectations Panikkar raised in earlier reports to his government.

The choice of his replacement still is anybody's guess. But it appears certain that Panikkar—home only once for consultation since he went to China in April 1948 as ambassador to the Nationalist government at Nanking—will be back in India before the winter snows.

It was Panikkar who received much of the blame from Western observers for India's position on Communist China—its insistence that the Chinese should be allowed into the United Nations, its refusal to name the Communist regime aggressors in Korea.

Some of his more bitter critics called him a Communist and said his reports were slanted, but a study of Panikkar's history makes that somewhat difficult to believe.

Born June 3, 1895, in Malabar, Southwest India, he studied at Chris Church, Oxford, was called to the bar in London's Middle Temple, and practised in the English courts before becoming professor of law at the Aligarh Muslim University.

He later turned to journalism, became editor of the Hindustan Times, and left that post to join the Chamber of Princes, set up under the 1921 Montagu-Chelmsford reform program.

He served for ten years with the princes—the Maharaja of Patiala gave him the honorary title of "Sardar"—participating in the London round table conference of Indian princes, and touring the world in their behalf.

Prior to his selection as ambassador to China he was a member of the Indian delegation to the 1947 United Nations General Assembly.

A good mixer and clever host in the closing days of the Chinese Nationalist regime in Nanking, Panikkar failed in Peiping to break into the "inner circle" of diplomats. As representative of a non-Communist country he fared but little better than his British colleague, whose diplomatic status was given scant recognition by Mao Tze-Tung's government.

As a non-Communist, Panikkar dealt largely with minor Chinese officials, depended for much of his information on newspaper and other published statements, had a back seat at public functions.

It is known here that the Indian Foreign Office is concerned over its relations with Peiping. Although Prime Minister Nehru frequently has supported the Chinese Communist cause, both within and without the United Nations, Mao Tze-Tung has given little recognition.

The Communists ignored India's half-hearted protests on the Red "liberation" of Tibet. Communist pressure has been started against Nepal.

When The King Is Ill

The recuperation of King George VI of England after a serious lung operation will require at least seven to ten weeks, according to the King's medical advisers. Even after complete recovery—in a medical sense—the King presumably would not feel capable immediately of assuming a full schedule of official duties.

A Council of State could take over the King's duties for the duration of his incapacity. The Council would consist of five members—the Queen and the four persons next in succession to the throne who are not minors. Those would be Princess Elizabeth, Princess Margaret Rose, the Duke of Gloucester, and the Princess Royal (Princess Mary, the King's sister).

In the event of a prolonged illness, Princess Elizabeth might be named regent. The insanity of George III led to the appointment of his brother, the Prince of Wales, in 1811 to act as regent during the King's incapacity. (After nine years as regent, he became George IV in 1820.) The 1811 act imposed no restrictions on the regent's powers to deal with treaties, peace and war, or Parliament, as previous regency acts had done. But the 1811 act did limit the regent's power of granting peerages, offices, and pensions.

On the accession of William IV in 1830, Parliament appointed the then Duchess of Kent regent, if necessary, until Princess Victoria should become 18 years old. Early in Victoria's reign a provisional regency of lords justices was provided against the possibility that her successor should be out of the realm at the Queen's death. A later act would have made Victoria's consort, Albert, regent if any of Victoria's children succeeded to the crown under the age of 18. When George V came to the throne in 1910, an act would have made Queen Mary regent if their eldest son had been under age at the death of George V.

Regency acts traditionally provide that the office cannot be held by a Roman Catholic. They also restrain the regent from giving assent to any bill repealing the Act of Settlement, the Act of Uniformity, or the Act of the Scottish parliament for securing the Protestant religion and Presbyterian church government in Scotland.

The present illness of George VI has led to some agitation to postpone the national elections called for October 25. The death of King Edward VII in May 1910 was the occasion for a temporary truce between Unionists and Liberals. The latter, under Prime Minister Asquith, had received a slim majority in elections in January of that year, but needed the cooperation of Irish Nationalists to govern. The truce was maintained for six months after the monarch's death; then a new election gave the Liberals a more comfortable majority.

When top-level decision was reached at Washington during World War II to link Premier Tojo of Japan with Hitler and Mussolini as triune targets of Allied propaganda, the motive was to exempt Emperor Hirohito from public wrath and thus save him for eventual postwar use as a focus of order in Japan.

Exemption of Hirohito from the list of Japanese war criminals caused some natural disquietude and confusion in the United States. Nevertheless, as far as evidences go, it has paid off.

Shorn of his political power, the emperor remained a moral and spiritual force. His visits to General MacArthur, who never visited him, were an acknowledgment of Japan's occupied status.

Now General Ridgway and his wife have called on the emperor and empress, who entertained them at lunch. Some of the former imperial trappings were missing, but the modified No. 1 protocol for imperial receptions were used. Nothing that could be done to receive General Ridgway with full honors and august ceremonial was omitted. There were touches of oriental splendor about this event.

The purpose and deeper meaning was, of course, to signalize to the Japanese government and people that the United States and the Allied nations, whom General Ridgway represents, now recognize the restoration of Japan to sovereign, independent status.

So, as an imperial luncheon host, which was one of the purposes for which he was salvaged, Emperor Hirohito had his usefulness.

Man's Food

Assembled for a professional congress in New York, a group of chemists, all Nobel prize winners, discussed their specialties with the press.

An agriculture biochemist, Professor Virtanen of Finland, said that efficient application of present knowledge of agriculture would provide food for 4,000,000,000 people, or double the present world population.

Use of second-class vegetables, not now fit for human consumption, through use of special bacteria that can incorporate atmospheric nitrogen in the plant was mentioned. Nitrogen is a basic ingredient of all protein foods. Methods are known for pushing utilization of solar heat in plants up from 40 to 50 per cent. These processes could now be started.

Perhaps because it is out of their immediate field, the Nobel prize chemists did not mention what some experts consider the greatest source of food, as well as of medicine and minerals in the world—the Amazon Basin.

The American specialist on Latin-American matters, Carleton Beals, has written much about this vast area of 2,700,000 square miles, even now to a large extent unexplored. Mr. Beals is convinced that in this region of jungle, pampas and highlands would be found potentialities of the utmost benefit to mankind. pest.

Health Insurance Gains

For four years the Health Insurance Council, representing casualty and life insurance interests, has made an annual survey of voluntary insurance plans providing protection against the economic hazards of sickness and accident.

Its latest report, recording a phenomenal increase last year in the number of persons acquiring such protection, furnishes heavy ammunition for those opposed to a bureaucratic system of compulsory insurance as advocated by the Truman administration.

According to the council's data, half the total population, or nearly 77,000,000 persons, carried hospitalization insurance last year and 54,447,000, or approximately one-third, carried surgical insurance. Medical insurance coverage, which is a comparatively recent arrival, was more limited, embracing 21,589,000 or about a seventh of the population.

Increases percentagewise over 1949 were respectively 17, 32 and 28.

This showing, the council concludes, "reflects the growing desire of the American people" for protection "through plans of their own choosing."

Children Who Are Slow In Talking

Dear Sir: I have a grandson 2 years old who is slow in talking. He is otherwise normal and seems to understand a lot of things you say to him. He says words like 'down,' 'no, no,' and 'bow-wow.' He also jabbers a lot. Is there any reason to become alarmed?"

This grandfather has nothing to worry about at the present time. We suspect that the youngster is normal, except for a slight delay of speech. Some children begin to talk at 16 months; others, not until 2½ years. Failure to talk after this age warrants medical examination. There is a good possibility that within the next six months the boy in question will be jabbering so much that grandpa will wish he never had brought up the subject.

There is a difference between delayed speech and inability to talk. The latter defect often stems from a brain disturbance, deafness, or mental retardation such as feeblemindedness. Delayed speech, on the other hand, usually is traceable to lack of readiness on the part of the youngster to express himself verbally. The muscles required to talk may not be developed fully or the nervous system may not have had time to coordinate this complex mechanism. It is the old story of children developing at their own pace and grownups should not be disturbed, like our grandfather, when a boy is not keeping up with his acquaintances.

It is possible to encourage the ability by taking advantage of many conditions. On shopping trips or family outings, for example, familiar objects can be pointed out and their names repeated several times. If the child shows interest, he should be allowed to handle the object and if possible, to taste it or play with it. This sense contact establishes an association between the word and the object. Adults must not speak too fast. Simple language is preferred; two or three word sentences will be enough as a starter. Also, everyday actions can be put into words: "We drink milk" or "we put on shoes."

When there is obvious difficulty in saying words, exercises often help. The youngster may be encouraged to imitate the sound of a motor, gun (bang), dog, or cow. The lips, jaws, and tongue may be exercised by smacking the lips, puffing, panting, and blowing on a horn. Vowel sounds and consonants such as n and p can be practiced. This shapes the mouth and teaches the little one where to place the tongue. Meanwhile, any sound that comes spontaneously can be played up. All efforts to say something must be acknowledged as an accomplishment. It is important not to cause self-consciousness by laughing at the child's attempts at pronunciation.

A feeling of insecurity in the home may retard speech development. In such cases words may bubble forth at an unexpected rate after an attempt by the parents to show the tot how much he is loved. Even if the youngster appears not to be the demonstrative type, a daily session of cuddling and caressing will encourage him and give him more confidence. This is in contrast with the fathers and mothers who stress the youngster's inability to talk and contrast him unfavorably with children down the block who are doing a much better job in talking.

BEER AND CORPORATION

J. W. writes: Why is it that some middle-aged men can drink lots of beer without developing a German goiter (potbelly)?

REPLY

Probably because they exercise enough to keep the abdomen in shape. Or perhaps their caloric intake for the day is not great enough to induce obesity.

SINUS

B. F. writes: What is the difference between sinus disease and catarrh?

REPLY

The sinuses may be diseased because of infection, allergy, or a mechanical defect. Catarrh refers to simple inflammation of a mucous membrane and usually is the popular name given to rhinitis.

TYPIST'S FINGER

V. W. writes: I'm a typist and recently developed trouble with my left forefinger. When I strike the keys I have difficulty bringing the finger back to the keyboard. In addition, there is a pain extending to the wrist. What could this condition be?

REPLY

If there is no evidence of bursitis or arthritis, the disorder may be analogous to writer's cramp, in which a finger or fingers will go into spasm after a certain amount of work. This is a functional disorder and usually no physical disorder can be found.

ANEMIAS

Mrs. D. writes: Is Cooley's anemia the same as pernicious anemia?

REPLY

No. Cooley's anemia is congenital and is limited to children of families of Mediterranean origin. It does not respond to liver or iron and most cases are benefited by removal of the spleen.

Washington Has Lost Its Sense Of Smell; Political Graft Is Killing Clean Government; National Kitty Should Replace Campaign Contributions

WASHINGTON — The nation's capital today is witnessing the most nauseating spasm of large and petty graft since this newsman began covering Washington.

There are several reasons for this, as previously enumerated in this column, one of them being the fact that government officials have lost their sense of smell.

When the man at the top in government can't smell the bad odor arising from the distribution of deep freezes by his aide, or when he defends the commodity grain speculation of his White House doctor, and tolerates airline lobbying by his chief secretary, then the olfactory nerves of those around him get dull too.

Another important reason for the sickening spectacle of graft and favoritism, however, is the current system of political campaign contributions. This is something the public little realizes.

It has now become a standard practice for both big business and labor unions to obligate congressmen. After you have made your contribution to a congressman's political campaign, you then benefit by influencing his vote on legislation of interest to you, or getting him to call up government agencies in order to secure loans, priorities or government contracts.

This practice has become so widespread that many otherwise fine Senators and Representatives get so in hock politically that they can hardly call their souls their own.

Getting Big Loan

Here is how the system works: Out in Los Angeles, members of the Harvey Machine Company contribute heavily to the campaign funds of several congressmen. Most of the time they bet their money on Democrats, because the Democrats are in power. But sometimes they also back Republicans. In addition, Lawrence Harvey wants to be Democratic national committeeman from California, chips in $1,000 at each of the last two Jockson Day dinners and serves on the $100-a-plate committee welcoming Truman to Los Angeles October 8.

Simultaneously the Harvey Company wants a big loan to build an aluminum plant. A lot of wires are pulled, congressmen who are recipients of campaign contributions go to bat, and lo and behold, Harvey comes up with a $46,000,000 loan. There's a lot more to the story than that, but one of the most important features is the way certain very fine congressmen have become messenger boys for Harvey largely to pay off a political debt.

It doesn't make for clean or efficient government.

China Lobby Contributes

Or take another case. When Senator Bridges of Maine last ran for re-election, Alfred Kohlberg, who lives in New York, not New Hampshire, contributed $1,000 to Bridges' campaign. Kohlberg just happens to be the key man in the China lobby.

Another Bridges contributor, in fact his heaviest, also lives a long way from New Hampshire—in San Francisco. He is Edward Heller, whose wife happens to be Democratic national committeewoman from California. Yet Heller, a Democrat, contributed $3,000 to help Senator Bridges, a Republican, stay in the Senate from New Hampshire.

Significantly Heller is director of the Wells Fargo Bank of San Francisco, the biggest repository of Chinese Nationalist money. Significant also, Bridges, both before and since his election, has gone out of his way to defend Chiang Kai-shek. Once as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee he even sent a lobbyist for Chiang's brother-in-law on a propaganda mission to China, cloaked as Senate representative — though actually paid by the Chiang family.

Obligating a Senator has become so common that long rows of campaign contributors from the Delaware duPonts turn up in South Dakota, while Texas oilmen sent several thousand dollars to Maryland last year to elect GOP Senator Butler.

Labor Bets Too

On the other hand, John L. Lewis kicked in half a million dollars on behalf of the United Mine Workers to elect Roosevelt in 1936, while labor all over the nation poured money into Ohio in 1950 to try to beat Taft.

The tragedy is that under the present system, money from somebody or other is absolutely necessary. You can't run a political campaign without it. Billboards cost about $1,000 each. Radio time can run into hundreds of thousands, while TV is going to cost even more. Governor Dewey turned the tide of the New York election last year in his last 24 hours of television, thereby setting a pattern which every important candidate will have to follow at tremendous cost and the necessity of passing the hat for more campaign funds.

Best way to prevent all this probably is to abolish all campaign funds and have a national kitty put up by Congress for each party. If the Democrats and Republicans each were voted $5,000,000, to be allocated state-by-state on the basis of population, it would save five-times-five million dollars in the elimination of graft and favoritism.

NOTE — Biggest and strangest contributions by Eastern bigwigs betting on a senatorial horse were the gifts that poured into South Dakota to re-elect the late Sen. Harlan Pushfield, Republican. Contributions included $4,000 from Lammot duPont of Delaware; $2,500 from his brother, Irenee duPont; $2,000 from their General Motors associate, Alfred P. Sloan; $5,000 from Ailsa Mellon of the Pittsburgh Mellon family; $4,000 from Sarah Mellon Scaife; $6,000 from the Pew family of the Sun Oil Co., in Philadelphia; $5,000 from Colonel McCormick of the Chicago Tribune; $10,000 from Mazey Jarmon of the General Shoe Co. in Tennessee, and $1,000 from L. W. Mesta of Pittsburgh, cousin of Perle.

"One Cannot Eat A Cannon"

PARIS

A rather cheerful picture of the fighting potential of the recreated French army has recently been presented in this space. In order to put the shade as well as the light into this picture, it is worth describing two sharply contrasting incidents.

The first took place in the sergeants' mess of an army barracks. It was a brief and rather embarrassing episode. There were about a dozen French non-coms, tough, genial men gathered around a table. Rather hesitantly, this reporter began to ask questions about such matters as the danger of war, the threat of Soviet aggression, American foreign policy and French communism.

The French soldiers muttered a few non-committal answers, out of sheer politeness, and then relapsed into self-conscious silence. The reason was clear. They had never really bothered their heads about such matters. At least on the company and battalion level, the French army simply does not concern itself with political matters. This is one of the most reassuring facts about it.

Yet no army lives in a political vacuum. A soldier, however unconsciously, breathes the same political air as a civilian. And this is why it is worth describing the second, very different episode, which took place, not in the army, but in a small factory in Paris, where this reporter spent an afternoon talking with the workers.

Follow Moscow Line

Five out of six were women. They talked volubly, and with that passionate vitality which is the Parisian's special charm. There was no trace of personal hostility in what was said—what has been written about French hatred for Americans, as Americans, is silly nonsense. Yet the fact remains that, although only one was an avowed Communist, everything these French workers said was a remarkable tribute to the effectiveness of the Moscow line.

"The Russians," they said, often in identical words, "want nothing but peace." And since this was so, why should poor France be called on again to prepare for a war more terrible than ever? The danger of war, if there was danger, sprang from the desire of the American rich for high profits.

Wars had already ruined France—"We are only a poor, weak country now." (This profound lack of self-confidence is also found in the army, although it is steadily lessening.) As for the Americans, they knew nothing of war. "I speak frankly," said one woman. "If there is war, I hope you will win in the end, because I love liberty. But I hope you also, you others, the Americans, will suffer terribly before the end."

Finally, why must the Americans think and talk only of weapons and of war? One woman (who has been living for 14 years with three children in a single room of a building condemned as uninhabitable in 1937) spoke for the rest. You Americans talk of cannons. One cannot eat a cannon. One cannot lodge oneself in a cannon."

Has Some Importance

It is certainly possible to exaggerate the meaning of this sort of thing. Almost each worker, including the Communist, also said proudly, "After all, I am profoundly French." Even the Communist would violently resist an actual Russian invasion of France, if there were means of resistance at hand. Yet surely this apparently almost universal acceptance by French workers of the basic tenets of the Moscow line has its importance, military as well as political.

Given the necessary arms and equipment, France is already visibly capable of producing a good army, made up of good soldiers. Yet an army cannot be more than an expression of the nation which produces it. It is odd to find a professional soldier, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, so deeply aware of this fact. Undoubtedly with the current deep slashes in economic aid in mind, Eisenhower has been telling all visitors that the military potential of France is indivisible, that it cannot be measured in divisions alone.

Military strength is, of course, the essential ingredient of every other kind of strength. The stronger the West becomes, the more the sense of naked vulnerability from which all Frenchmen suffer diminishes, the more surely will the desperate wishful thinking which leads to the eager swallowing of the Moscow peace line diminish also. Yet it remains that anything which suggests to Europeans that Americans are interested only in cannons and not at all in living standards, only in war and not at all in peace, plays directly into Stalin's hands. This is something which Eisenhower, with his extra-ordinary political perceptiveness, grasped instantly, as everything he says, in public or private, demonstrates. It would be well if other Americans grasped it too.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — It's a curious commentary on the handling of tax legislation that, whenever a revenue bill is under consideration, the "left wing" is found striving for higher and higher excess-profits tax rates.

The assumption is that this is a means of soaking "big business," and presumably the "left wing" is the friend of little business.

Actually it works out just the other way. Nearly every excess-profits-tax law enacted under the various Democratic administrations has been of major assistance to the well-entrenched companies and has dealt a severe blow to the smaller competitors.

If the system of "free enterprise" in America means the removal of unfair competition, then the "left wing" has followed a consistent pattern over the years designed to help the monopolies and the larger businesses. These big institutions usually have a better "base period" for computing excess profits than the smaller ones. Also they have large reserves. When the smaller companies are able to make a little money during prosperous periods, the government takes most of it away from them. As a consequence, when the prosperity ends and deflation begins, these smaller companies usually have not accumulated sufficient reserves to meet the change in economic conditions.

Refunds Not Provided

During the last war, Congress definitely took care of "postwar" deflation. Provisions were inserted in the law allowing refunds to companies that might suffer severe losses in postwar years. No such provisions permitting refunds are in the new law. In the present period of tension there is no "postwar" period in sight. Hence, in case of a sudden deflation, the companies that started up in the last few years and have begun to obtain a fairly substantial part of the total volume of business done in a particular industry will find themselves in financial difficulties. Extensive unemployment may result from their failures and in many cases they will be swallowed up in forced mergers with large companies.

To maintain high-level employment it will be necessary to look ahead to the period of deflation that may come in 1953 when the present armament program tapers off. It will be much more expensive then to finance, by means of grants and loans, new work projects of the WPA variety than to protect new businesses now.

This is the time to be thinking of what happens when the present period of tension undergoes a change, as might occur if there is an overthrow of a government in any of the satellite countries and it begins to be apparent that Soviet imperialism is weakening.

It is one of the unexplained factors of present-day legislation that labor-union leaders whose workers have the most to lose from unemployment are the very ones who are pressing Congress to raise the excess-profits rates virtually to the point of confiscation.

The rates in the proposed law about to be enacted are higher than anything encountered in either World War I or World War II. Not only have the regular corporation tax rates been raised to a point far beyond any other rate of its kind heretofore but the excess-profits rate combined with the regular corporate rates will exceed in severity the rates in effect from 1941 to 1945.

Labor-union leaders may have the idea that, if the rates are high enough, employers will diminish their resistance to wage increases and fringe benefits. This may be true of the so-called monopolies, but it is not true of the marginal competitors which are trying during the present boom to get a foothold in their respective industries.

Approaching Saturation Point

There is, of course, back of this pressure for high rates an effort to squeeze every dollar possible in the mistaken belief that this will avoid for Congress the necessity next year of taxing the lower incomes. But even if 100 per cent of the income of individuals earning more than $10,000 a year were confiscated in taxes, the federal government would still be operating at a huge deficit. Taxes are rapidly approaching the saturation point.

What the new tax rates may do to incentive is something to which little thought is usually given by the "left wingers," some of whose ideas of a "planned economy" include government ownership, nationalization, and forms of state socialism if the economic situation should become chaotic. The responsibility of the "left wingers," however, for bringing on such a period of chaos in a democracy is not always clear when the catastrophe has happened. Hence what is taking place in the Senate these days in connection with the pressure for higher and higher excess-profits taxes is more significant, ideologically speaking, than appears to meet the eye.

Watch The Courts!

Manners are the exterior manifestation of morals. When the manners of a people are debased, it needs to look after its morals. In our courts and before various semi-judicial investigations, a disrespect for the dignity of the courts and the law is being displayed which would be intolerable anywhere, but more so among a free people whose order of life is controlled by a voluntary acceptance of law.

In a despotism, it is possible to say: "Off with his head!" And off its goes. In a free society rigorous protections are placed about the individual to safeguard him against tyrannical and whimsical acts of public officials. But the citizen can only safeguard his liberties and protections if he practices self-restraint, if he is respectful and decent, if he recognizes that while all are equal before the law, none may be contemptuous of it.

The 11 Communists who appeared in Judge Medina's court and acted like hoodlums set a bad example, to be followed with vulgar impudence by Harry Gross in Judge Leibowitz's court in Brooklyn, and before the New York State Crime Commission.

Harry Gross made a mockery of a court, making it obvious that increasingly those who live on the margins of society have become so bold that they respect nothing—not the law, not the courts, not the dignity of judges.

Criminals have always existed. But such men, in the past, lived in fear of being caught. They were bold and brazen until they faced stern justice and knew the majesty of the law, as evidenced in a court.

The new breed of hoodlums, having no morals and believing that all men are corruptible, look upon our courts as marketplaces and upon judges as current or potential crooks. Their only problem seems to be to find the right politician who will know how to bribe the particular judge.

I have been told by lawyers that there has been a notable falling away of good manners in the courts; that not only laymen but many lawyers act impudently in the courts, flouting the judges, and giving the impression of familiarity, which is the first sign of contempt. I have also been told by lawyers that some judges tend to be lenient because they recognize that the lawyer is trying to impress his client that he is earning his fee. When judges are lax and lawyers forgetful of their manners, it must be accepted that a debasement of morals has set in.

The manners and morals of a people are set at the top. What is propriety is determined by the style of those in authority and position. When the leaders of a nation are vulgar, indecent in manners and morals, when their language is cheap and blasphemous, when they associate with petty crooks and political panhandlers, when they themselves grow rich in public office or tolerate abuses among those who are close to them —the style or corruption will have been set.

Harry Gross and Mike Dalessio are no different from the gamblers who refused to testify or even to open their mouths before the Kefauver Committee, or from those who, by consent, perjure themselves in divorce cases, or who steal in connection with the RFC or who go through a red light on the road imperiling other human beings.

These are responses to the same lack of self-discipline. And goes as high or low as you like in American life today.

I noticed, traveling the roads this summer in an automobile, the disregard of drivers for traffic regulations, particularly the drivers of big and heavy trucks who are fast pushing the tax-paying citizen off the road. Naturally, it is impossible to police all the roads of this country all the time, but we must assume in a free society that men will restrain themselves, police themselves. It must be assumed, in a free society, that the police are to be called in unusually, that citizens, recognizing the law as a majestic keystone in the arch of social existence, will obey it without police action.

In a moral society, such self-discipline can be depended upon. It is handed down from father to son as the decent way to live. It used to be called manners and those who failed them were ostracized by clean-living people. But when Mickey Cohen is pitied as a product of his environment, we are dealing not with social justice but with social corruption.

When The King Is Ill

The recuperation of King George VI of England after a serious lung operation will require at least seven to ten weeks, according to the King's medical advisers. Even after complete recovery—in a medical sense—the King presumably would not feel capable immediately of assuming a full schedule of official duties.

A Council of State could take over the King's duties for the duration of his incapacity. The Council would consist of five members—the Queen and the four persons next in succession to the throne who are not minors. Those would be Princess Elizabeth, Princess Margaret Rose, the Duke of Gloucester, and the Princess Royal (Princess Mary, the King's sister).

In the event of a prolonged illness, Princess Elizabeth might be named regent. The insanity of George III led to the appointment of his brother, the Prince of Wales, in 1811 to act as regent during the King's incapacity. (After nine years as regent, he became George IV in 1820.) The 1811 act imposed no restrictions on the regent's powers to deal with treaties, peace and war, or Parliament, as previous regency acts had done. But the 1811 act did limit the regent's power of granting peerages, offices, and pensions.

On the accession of William IV in 1830, Parliament appointed the then Duchess of Kent regent, if necessary, until Princess Victoria should become 18 years old. Early in Victoria's reign a provisional regency of lords justices was provided against the possibility that her successor should be out of the realm at the Queen's death. A later act would have made Victoria's consort, Albert, regent if any of Victoria's children succeeded to the crown under the age of 18. When George V came to the throne in 1910, an act would have made Queen Mary regent if their eldest son had been under age at the death of George V.

Regency acts traditionally provide that the office cannot be held by a Roman Catholic. They also restrain the regent from giving assent to any bill repealing the Act of Settlement, the Act of Uniformity, or the Act of the Scottish parliament for securing the Protestant religion and Presbyterian church government in Scotland.

The present illness of George VI has led to some agitation to postpone the national elections called for October 25. The death of King Edward VII in May 1910 was the occasion for a temporary truce between Unionists and Liberals. Its latest report, recording a phenomenal increase last year in the number of persons acquiring such protection, furnishes heavy ammunition for those opposed to a bureaucratic system of compulsory insurance as advocated by the Truman administration.

According to the council's data, half the total population, or nearly 77,000,000 persons, carried hospitalization insurance last year and 54,447,000, or approximately one-third, carried surgical insurance. Medical insurance coverage, which is a comparatively recent arrival, was more limited, embracing 21,589,000 or about a seventh of the population.

Increases percentagewise over 1949 were respectively 17, 32 and 28.

This showing, the council concludes, "reflects the growing desire of the American people" for protection "through plans of their own choosing."

Children Who Are Slow In Talking

Dear Sir: I have a grandson 2 years old who is slow in talking. He is otherwise normal and seems to understand a lot of things you say to him. He says words like 'down,' 'no, no,' and 'bow-wow.' He also jabbers a lot. Is there any reason to become alarmed?"

This grandfather has nothing to worry about at the present time. We suspect that the youngster is normal, except for a slight delay of speech. Some children begin to talk at 16 months; others, not until 2½ years. Failure to talk after this age warrants medical examination. There is a good possibility that within the next six months the boy in question will be jabbering so much that grandpa will wish he never had brought up the subject.

There is a difference between delayed speech and inability to talk. The latter defect often stems from a brain disturbance, deafness, or mental retardation such as feeblemindedness. Delayed speech, on the other hand, usually is traceable to lack of readiness on the part of the youngster to express himself verbally. The muscles required to talk may not be developed fully or the nervous system may not have had time to coordinate this complex mechanism. It is the old story of children developing at their own pace and grownups should not be disturbed, like our grandfather, when a boy is not keeping up with his acquaintances.

It is possible to encourage the ability by taking advantage of many conditions. On shopping trips or family outings, for example, familiar objects can be pointed out and their names repeated several times. If the child shows interest, he should be allowed to handle the object and if possible, to taste it or play with it. This sense contact establishes an association between the word and the object. Adults must not speak too fast. Simple language is preferred; two or three word sentences will be enough as a starter. Also, everyday actions can be put into words: "We drink milk" or "we put on shoes."

When there is obvious difficulty in saying words, exercises often help. The youngster may be encouraged to imitate the sound of a motor, gun (bang), dog, or cow. The lips, jaws, and tongue may be exercised by smacking the lips, puffing, panting, and blowing on a horn. Vowel sounds and consonants such as n and p can be practiced. This shapes the mouth and teaches the little one where to place the tongue. Meanwhile, any sound that comes spontaneously can be played up. All efforts to say something must be acknowledged as an accomplishment. It is important not to cause self-consciousness by laughing at the child's attempts at pronunciation.

A feeling of insecurity in the home may retard speech development. In such cases words may bubble forth at an unexpected rate after an attempt by the parents to show the tot how much he is loved. Even if the youngster appears not to be the demonstrative type, a daily session of cuddling and caressing will encourage him and give him more confidence. This is in contrast with the fathers and mothers who stress the youngster's inability to talk and contrast him unfavorably with children down the block who are doing a much better job in talking.

TOMORROW: Will rats conquer humans?

BEER AND CORPORATION

J. W. writes: Why is it that some middle-aged men can drink lots of beer without developing a German goiter (potbelly)?

REPLY

Probably because they exercise enough to keep the abdomen in shape. Or perhaps their caloric intake for the day is not great enough to induce obesity.

SINUS

B. F. writes: What is the difference between sinus disease and catarrh?

REPLY

The sinuses may be diseased because of infection, allergy, or a mechanical defect. Catarrh refers to simple inflammation of a mucous membrane and usually is the popular name given to rhinitis.

TYPIST'S FINGER

V. W. writes: I'm a typist and recently developed trouble with my left forefinger. When I strike the keys I have difficulty bringing the finger back to the keyboard. In addition, there is a pain extending to the wrist. What could this condition be?

REPLY

If there is no evidence of bursitis or arthritis, the disorder may be analogous to writer's cramp, in which a finger or fingers will go into spasm after a certain amount of work. This is a functional disorder and usually no physical disorder can be found.

ANEMIAS

Mrs. D. writes: Is Cooley's anemia the same as pernicious anemia?

REPLY

No. Cooley's anemia is congenital and is limited to children of families of Mediterranean origin. It does not respond to liver or iron and most cases are benefited by removal of the spleen.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Washington Has Lost Its Sense Of Smell; Political Graft Is Killing Clean Government; National Kitty Should Replace Campaign Contributions

WASHINGTON — The nation's capital today is witnessing the most nauseating spasm of large and petty graft since this newsman began covering Washington.

There are several reasons for this, as previously enumerated in this column, one of them being the fact that government officials have lost their sense of smell.

When the man at the top in government can't smell the bad odor arising from the distribution of deep freezes by his aide, or when he defends the commodity grain speculation of his White House doctor, and tolerates airline lobbying by his chief secretary, then the olfactory nerves of those around him get dull too.

Another important reason for the sickening spectacle of graft and favoritism, however, is the current system of political campaign contributions. This is something the public little realizes.

It has now become a standard practice for both big business and labor unions to obligate congressmen. After you have made your contribution to a congressman's political campaign, you then benefit by influencing his vote on legislation of interest to you, or getting him to call up government agencies in order to secure loans, priorities or government contracts.

This practice has become so widespread that many otherwise fine Senators and Representatives get so in hock politically that they can hardly call their souls their own.

Getting Big Loan

Here is how the system works: Out in Los Angeles, members of the Harvey Machine Company contribute heavily to the campaign funds of several congressmen. Most of the time they bet their money on Democrats, because the Democrats are in power. But sometimes they also back Republicans. In addition, Lawrence Harvey wants to be Democratic national committeeman from California, chips in $1,000 at each of the last two Jockson Day dinners and serves on the $100-a-plate committee welcoming Truman to Los Angeles October 8.

Simultaneously the Harvey Company wants a big loan to build an aluminum plant. A lot of wires are pulled, congressmen who are recipients of campaign contributions go to bat, and lo and behold, Harvey comes up with a $46,000,000 loan. There's a lot more to the story than that, but one of the most important features is the way certain very fine congressmen have become messenger boys for Harvey largely to pay off a political debt.

It doesn't make for clean or efficient government.

China Lobby Contributes

Or take another case. When Senator Bridges of Maine last ran for re-election, Alfred Kohlberg, who lives in New York, not New Hampshire, contributed $1,000 to Bridges' campaign. Kohlberg just happens to be the key man in the China lobby.

Another Bridges contributor, in fact his heaviest, also lives a long way from New Hampshire—in San Francisco. He is Edward Heller, whose wife happens to be Democratic national committeewoman from California. Yet Heller, a Democrat, contributed $3,000 to help Senator Bridges, a Republican, stay in the Senate from New Hampshire.

Significantly Heller is director of the Wells Fargo Bank of San Francisco, the biggest repository of Chinese Nationalist money. Significant also, Bridges, both before and since his election, has gone out of his way to defend Chiang Kaishek. Once as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee he even sent a lobbyist for Chiang's brother-in-law on a propaganda mission to China, cloaked as Senate representative — though actually paid by the Chiang family.

Obligating a Senator has become so common that long rows of campaign contributors from the Delaware duPonts turn up in South Dakota, while Texas oilmen sent several thousand dollars to Maryland last year to elect GOP Senator Butler.

Labor Bets Too

On the other hand, John L. Lewis kicked in half a million dollars on behalf of the United Mine Workers to elect Roosevelt in 1936, while labor all over the nation poured money into Ohio in 1950 to try to beat Taft.

The tragedy is that under the present system, money from somebody or other is absolutely necessary. You can't run a political campaign without it. Billboards cost about $1,000 each. Radio time can run into hundreds of thousands, while TV is going to cost even more. Governor Dewey turned the tide of the New York election last year in his last 24 hours of television, thereby setting a pattern which every important candidate will have to follow at tremendous cost and the necessity of passing the hat for more campaign funds.

Best way to prevent all this probably is to abolish all campaign funds and have a national kitty put up by Congress for each party. If the Democrats and Republicans each were voted $5,000,000, to be allocated state-by-state on the basis of population, it would save five-times-five million dollars in the elimination of graft and favoritism.

NOTE — Biggest and strangest contributions by Eastern bigwigs betting on a senatorial horse were the gifts that poured into South Dakota to re-elect the late Sen. Harlan Pushfield, Republican. Contributions included $4,000 from Lammot duPont of Delaware; $2,500 from his brother, Irenee duPont; $2,000 from their General Motors associate, Alfred P. Sloan; $5,000 from Ailsa Mellon of the Pittsburgh Mellon family; $4,000 from Sarah Mellon Scaife; $6,000 from the Pew family of the Sun Oil Co., in Philadelphia; $5,000 from Colonel McCormick of the Chicago Tribune; $10,000 from Mazey Jarmon of the General Shoe Co. in Tennessee, and $1,000 from L. W. Mesta of Pittsburgh, cousin of Perle.

"One Cannot Eat A Cannon"

PARIS

A rather cheerful picture of the fighting potential of the recreated French army has recently been presented in this space. In order to put the shade as well as the light into this picture, it is worth describing two sharply contrasting incidents.

The first took place in the sergeants' mess of an army barracks. It was a brief and rather embarrassing episode. There were about a dozen French non-coms, tough, genial men gathered around a table. Rather hesitantly, this reporter began to ask questions about such matters as the danger of war, the threat of Soviet aggression, American foreign policy and French communism.

The French soldiers muttered a few non-committal answers, out of sheer politeness, and then relapsed into self-conscious silence. The reason was clear. They had never really bothered their heads about such matters. At least on the company and battalion level, the French army simply does not concern itself with political matters. This is one of the most reassuring facts about it.

Yet no army lives in a political vacuum. A soldier, however unconsciously, breathes the same political air as a civilian. And this is why it is worth describing the second, very different episode, which took place, not in the army, but in a small factory in Paris, where this reporter spent an afternoon talking with the workers.

Follow Moscow Line

Five out of six were women. They talked volubly, and with that passionate vitality which is the Parisian's special charm. There was no trace of personal hostility in what was said—what has been written about French hatred for Americans, as Americans, is silly nonsense. Yet the fact remains that, although only one was an avowed Communist, everything these French workers said was a remarkable tribute to the effectiveness of the Moscow line.

"The Russians," they said, often in identical words, "want nothing but peace." And since this was so, why should poor France be called on again to prepare for a war more terrible than ever? The danger of war, if there was danger, sprang from the desire of the American rich for high profits.

Wars had already ruined France—"We are only a poor, weak country now." (This profound lack of self-confidence is also found in the army, although it is steadily lessening.) As for the Americans, they knew nothing of war. "I speak frankly," said one woman. "If there is war, I hope you will win in the end, because I love liberty. But I hope you also, you others, the Americans, will suffer terribly before the end."

Finally, why must the Americans think and talk only of weapons and of war? One woman (who has been living for 14 years with three children in a single room of a building condemned as uninhabitable in 1937) spoke for the rest. You Americans talk of cannons. One cannot eat a cannon. One cannot lodge oneself in a cannon."

Has Some Importance

It is certainly possible to exaggerate the meaning of this sort of thing. Almost each worker, including the Communist, also said proudly, "After all, I am profoundly French." Even the Communist would violently resist an actual Russian invasion of France, if there were means of resistance at hand. Yet surely this apparently almost universal acceptance by French workers of the basic tenets of the Moscow line has its importance, military as well as political.

Given the necessary arms and equipment, France is already visibly capable of producing a good army, made up of good soldiers. Yet an army cannot be more than an expression of the nation which produces it. It is odd to find a professional soldier, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, so deeply aware of this fact. Undoubtedly with the current deep slashes in economic aid in mind, Eisenhower has been telling all visitors that the military potential of France is indivisible, that it cannot be measured in divisions alone.

Military strength is, of course, the essential ingredient of every other kind of strength. The stronger the West becomes, the more the sense of naked vulnerability from which all Frenchmen suffer diminishes, the more surely will the desperate wishful thinking which leads to the eager swallowing of the Moscow peace line diminish also. Yet it remains that anything which suggests to Europeans that Americans are interested only in cannons and not at all in living standards, only in war and not at all in peace, plays directly into Stalin's hands. This is something which Eisenhower, with his extra-ordinary political perceptiveness, grasped instantly, as everything he says, in public or private, demonstrates. It would be well if other Americans grasped it too.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — It's a curious commentary on the handling of tax legislation that, whenever a revenue bill is under consideration, the "left wing" is found striving for higher and higher excess-profits tax rates.

The assumption is that this is a means of soaking "big business," and presumably the "left wing" is the friend of little business.

Actually it works out just the other way. Nearly every excess-profits-tax law enacted under the various Democratic administrations has been of major assistance to the well-entrenched companies and has dealt a severe blow to the smaller competitors.

If the system of "free enterprise" in America means the removal of unfair competition, then the "left wing" has followed a consistent pattern over the years designed to help the monopolies and the larger businesses. These big institutions usually have a better "base period" for computing excess profits than the smaller ones. Also they have large reserves. When the smaller companies are able to make a little money during prosperous periods, the government takes most of it away from them. As a consequence, when the prosperity ends and deflation begins, these smaller companies usually have not accumulated sufficient reserves to meet the change in economic conditions.

Refunds Not Provided

During the last war, Congress definitely took care of "postwar" deflation. Provisions were inserted in the law allowing refunds to companies that might suffer severe losses in postwar years. No such provisions permitting refunds are in the new law. In the present period of tension there is no "postwar" period in sight. Hence, in case of a sudden deflation, the companies that started up in the last few years and have begun to obtain a fairly substantial part of the total volume of business done in a particular industry will find themselves in financial difficulties. Extensive unemployment may result from their failures and in many cases they will be swallowed up in forced mergers with large companies.

To maintain high-level employment it will be necessary to look ahead to the period of deflation that may come in 1953 when the present armament program tapers off. It will be much more expensive then to finance, by means of grants and loans, new work projects of the WPA variety than to protect new businesses now.

This is the time to be thinking of what happens when the present period of tension undergoes a change, as might occur if there is an overthrow of a government in any of the satellite countries and it begins to be apparent that Soviet imperialism is weakening.

It is one of the unexplained factors of present-day legislation that labor-union leaders whose workers have the most to lose from unemployment are the very ones who are pressing Congress to raise the excess-profits rates virtually to the point of confiscation.

The rates in the proposed law about to be enacted are higher than anything encountered in either World War I or World War II. Not only have the regular corporation tax rates been raised to a point far beyond any other rate of its kind heretofore but the excess-profits rate combined with the regular corporate rates will exceed in severity the rates in effect from 1941 to 1945.

Labor-union leaders may have the idea that, if the rates are high enough, employers will diminish their resistance to wage increases and fringe benefits. This may be true of the so-called monopolies, but it is not true of the marginal competitors which are trying during the present boom to get a foothold in their respective industries.

Approaching Saturation Point

There is, of course, back of this pressure for high rates an effort to squeeze every dollar possible in the mistaken belief that this will avoid for Congress the necessity next year of taxing the lower incomes. But even if 100 per cent of the income of individuals earning more than $10,000 a year were confiscated in taxes, the federal government would still be operating at a huge deficit. Taxes are rapidly approaching the saturation point.

What the new tax rates may do to incentive is something to which little thought is usually given by the "left wingers," some of whose ideas of a "planned economy" include government ownership, nationalization, and forms of state socialism if the economic situation should become chaotic. The responsibility of the "left wingers," however, for bringing on such a period of chaos in a democracy is not always clear when the catastrophe has happened. Hence what is taking place in the Senate these days in connection with the pressure for higher and higher excess-profits taxes is more significant, ideologically speaking, than appears to meet the eye.

Watch The Courts!

Manners are the exterior manifestation of morals. When the manners of a people are debased, it needs to look after its morals. In our courts and before various semi-judicial investigations, a disrespect for the dignity of the courts and the law is being displayed which would be intolerable anywhere, but more so among a free people whose order of life is controlled by a voluntary acceptance of law.

In a despotism, it is possible to say: "Off with his head!" And off its goes. In a free society rigorous protections are placed about the individual to safeguard him against tyrannical and whimsical acts of public officials. But the citizen can only safeguard his liberties and protections if he practices self-restraint, if he is respectful and decent, if he recognizes that while all are equal before the law, none may be contemptuous of it.

The 11 Communists who appeared in Judge Medina's court and acted like hoodlums set a bad example, to be followed with vulgar impudence by Harry Gross in Judge Leibowitz's court in Brooklyn, and before the New York State Crime Commission.

Harry Gross made a mockery of a court, making it obvious that increasingly those who live on the margins of society have become so bold that they respect nothing—not the law, not the courts, not the dignity of judges.

Criminals have always existed. But such men, in the past, lived in fear of being caught. They were bold and brazen until they faced stern justice and knew the majesty of the law, as evidenced in a court.

The new breed of hoodlums, having no morals and believing that all men are corruptible, look upon our courts as marketplaces and upon judges as current or potential crooks. Their only problem seems to be to find the right politician who will know how to bribe the particular judge.

I have been told by lawyers that there has been a notable falling away of good manners in the courts; that not only laymen but many lawyers act impudently in the courts, flouting the judges, and giving the impression of familiarity, which is the first sign of contempt. I have also been told by lawyers that some judges tend to be lenient because they recognize that the lawyer is trying to impress his client that he is earning his fee. When judges are lax and lawyers forgetful of their manners, it must be accepted that a debasement of morals has set in.

The manners and morals of a people are set at the top. What is propriety is determined by the style of those in authority and position. When the leaders of a nation are vulgar, indecent in manners and morals, when their language is cheap and blasphemous when they associate with petty crooks and political panhandlers when they themselves grow rich in public office or tolerate abuse among those who are close to them —the style or corruption will have been set.

Harry Gross and Mike Dalessi are no different from the gambler who refused to testify or even t open their mouths before th Kefauver Committee, or from thos who, by consent, perjure themselve in divorce cases, or who steal i connection with the RFC or wh go through a red light on the road imperiling other human beings.

These are responses to the sam lack of self-discipline. And goes as high or low as you lik in American life today.

I noticed, traveling the roads this summer in an automobile, the disregard of drivers for traffic regulations, particularly the drivers of big and heavy trucks who are fast pushing the taxpaying citizen off the road. Naturally, it is impossible to police all the roads of this country all the time, but we must assume in a free society that men will restrain themselves, police themselves. It must be assumed, in a free society, that the police are to be called in unusually, that citizens, recognizing the law as a majestic keystone in the arch of social existence, will obey it without police action.

In a moral society, such se discipline can be depended upo It is handed down from father son as the decent way to live. used to be called manners and tho who failed them were ostracized clean-living people. But when Mickey Cohen is pitied as a produ of his environment, we are dealin not with manners, morals or justic but with social corruption.

The President sent a letter to the Senate, while debate was going on regarding the new tax bill, still demanding $10 billion more in taxes. The Senate Finance committee, in submitting the tax bill of approximately $6 billion ($1½ billion less than that passed by the House) stated in its report, "Your committee has serious doubts as to the feasibility of raising any substantial additional amounts of revenue from income tax sources . . . In view of this, 'your committee believes that every effort must be made to reduce Federal expenditures."

In his speech in Washington to 3,000 postmasters, President Truman left an impression of progress in government reorganization, which according to the Hoover report would save about 7 billion dollars. However, little has been done this year toward putting into effect the remaining five per cent of that report. So far this year the President has not submitted a single new reorganization proposal. If all of the Hoover reorganization plans were put in effect, the savings would equal the amount of new taxes voted by the House.

A secret deal by which Communist China was to smuggle a multimillion dollar power plant from Western Germany has been stopped. The plant was destined for Manchuria and would have been of invaluable use in the war in Korea. In spite of the resolutions and laws enacted by Congress a flood of material from Marshall plan countries useful for war purposes still continues.

The Senate investigation of the American Lithofold Corporation of St. Louis reveals that four federal employes were paid $65,878 as "salesmen" while still on government payrolls. These employes included Internal Revenue officers and the former chief of the Labor Department's wage and hour investigating committee. This is the same firm which had William Boyle and his law partner on their payroll.

Because the Korean War is an undeclared war and officially designated as a "police action," the heroes who died in Korea and are buried in national cemeteries cannot have their headstones marked with the fact they were killed in Korea. Because of the indignation regarding this situation, the President last week ordered that the single word "Korea," appear on the headstones. There is still no acknowledgement that they actually made the supreme sacrifice in this conflict.

Maynard Johnston, Atlanta, resigned as southeastern director of the National Production Authority because he said the agency is a "political football." He stated he tried to administer the constantly changing regulations since January 27 and said, "Policies have been constantly changing. About every two weeks there would be a change in something that would reverse what you had already done." He criticized the NPA for "employing too many people and for not knowing what it was doing."

Former Democrat boss, Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, recently made the charge that bigtime gambler Abner (Longie) Zwillman, named in the Senate crime investigation as a king-pin gambler, "is the boss . . . he is now the Democrat leader in New Jersey . . . Because of his financing the party's campaign, his word is supreme in all matters of policy and patronage."

UNDER THE DOME

I was advised of foreign trade procedures which are detrimental to our own industries. At the preseat time some products are being shipped into this country from Canada in less time than delivery can be made here. There is no shortage of critical materials in Canada and consequently earlier delivery dates can be given because of the reduction in the amounts of critical materials allocated and the delay—also the duty which is very low. I have asked for an investigation of this situation as I feel it is very unfair to American industry.

My bill to clarify the leave provision for various employes of the District of Columbia Board of Education was approved by the District Committee and will come before the House next week. I appeared before the Agriculture Committee in behalf of my bill H. R. 2150 which would convey a quick claim deed to the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission for all of the remaining portion of the former Animal Disease Station near Bethesda consisting of approximately 32 acres. This land is to be used exclusively for public park, parkway or playground purposes. It is expected that favorable action will be taken by the committee at the next executive session.

I attended meetings of the House District Committee and the Rivers and Harbors Sub-Committee of the Public Works Committee.

Because of the indignation regarding this situation, the President last week ordered that the single word "Korea," appear on the headstones. There is still no acknowledgement that they actually made the supreme sacrifice in this conflict.

Maynard Johnston, Atlanta, resigned as southeastern director of the National Production Authority because he said the agency is a "political football." He stated he tried to administer the constantly changing regulations since January 27 and said, "Policies have been constantly changing. About every two weeks there would be a change in something that would reverse what you had already done." He criticized the NPA for "employing too many people and for not knowing what it was doing."

Former Democrat boss, Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, recently made the charge that big-time gambler Abner (Longie) Zwillman, named in the Senate crime investigation as a king-pin gambler, "is the boss . . . he is now the Democrat leader in New Jersey . . . Because of his financing the party's campaign, his word is supreme in all matters of policy and patronage."

UNDER THE DOME

I was advised of foreign trade procedures which are detrimental to our own industries. At the preseat time some products are being shipped into this country from Canada in less time than delivery can be made here. There is no shortage of critical materials in Canada and consequently earlier delivery dates can be given because of the reduction in the amounts of critical materials allocated and the delay—also the duty which is very low. I have asked for an investigation of this situation as I feel it is very unfair to American industry.

My bill to clarify the leave provision for various employes of the District of Columbia Board of Education was approved by the District Committee and will come before the House next week. I appeared before the Agriculture Committee in behalf of my bill H. R. 2150 which would convey a quick claim deed to the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission for all of the remaining portion of the former Animal Disease Station near Bethesda consisting of approximately 32 acres. This land is to be used exclusively for public park, parkway or playground purposes. It is expected that favorable action will be taken by the committee at the next executive session.

I attended meetings of the House District Committee and the Rivers and Harbors Sub-Committee of the Public Works Committee.

The new bell silhouette and great-lady mood of current clothes call for new twists in coiffures!

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

A summer-cropped head can not complement the great-lady mood of this season's clothes. And a droopy bob or out-sized bun will destroy the balance of the new silhouette. To get the lift and the look of new fall styles, bring your hair style up to date. If you do not wish to change your arrangement, at least give it some new twist.

Stylists agree that this season's lines call for hair that is four inches long in the back and dressed close to the head all around. Here are two of the slickest new styles favored by the Powers Girls:

Just Right Coiffures

No. 1. The hair is smooth or flat-waved on the crown and brushed almost straight back from the forehead and temples to finish in tendrils of hair behind the ears and deep on the nape of the neck. Highly recommended if you wish your face to appear shorter or fuller!

No. 2. The hair is coaxed, through brush-curls or a horizontal wave into an upward movement across the forehead, pulled upward smoothly at the temples and swept to the rear to curl into two smooth clusters that fall toward each other from just below the crown to the nape. Fine for lengthening and slimming the face!

If you are still chignon-happy, you will be happier still with the new ways that have been designed for dressing long hair (true or false). In the daytime, roll it into a tight French twist and in the evening, coil it smack-dab on the center of your crown.

Tricky Bouffant

Liking fullness around your face and needing it, get the crown of your head as smooth as satin, the back in a head-hugging under-curl and the sides in brushed-out curls over and close to the ears.

This last is a modification of the bouffant hair-do that has been creeping into the trend. And it's tricky. When it's too full and curly over the ears (it's apt to be fly away between sets) this "do" looks a bit like a ruffled lamp shade of the twenties. When it's too full and brushed smooth, it looks very Victorian for today's girl. Only when it's just right can it give you the leading lady look!

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—Things one New Yorkers thinks about: I think I am about as hard and polished smooth as any Manhattanite. On occasion I can and do look right through a whining beggar. My enameled surface is deep and unbreakable—and yet when a tinny little "society orchestra" plays "Autumn in New York" or "April in Paris" in some dark saloon, I collapse slowly into a chaos of nostalgia and boozy sentiment. . . . I supose this is something I really should know, but I don't: where'd all the fish go when they tore down the Aquarium, down by the battery in lower Manhattan? . . . I think "Alice in Wonderland" is the best thing Disney has done in the movies, but since it's such adult fare, it'll probably make the least money. I wonder who started the legend that "Alice" was a children's story, anyway?

I see Helen Hayes, the great actress whose talents never have affected me greatly, has picked the 10 most memorable stage performances she's seen. Glad to see she has Marlon Brando in "A Streetcar Named Deside" among them, and Shirley Booth in "Come Back, Little Sheba."

She includes Barrymore's "Hamlet," which I would have given my right arm up to there to have seen. Only saw the great man on the stage once, when he did "My Dear Children" in the twilight of his career. His fabulous voice never left him.

I sat in the first row, and when somewhere in the miserable little comedy he began the soliloquy "To be or not to be," I just closed my eles and listened. You'd have sworn he was 30, not 60.

Like most men, I never can pick out another man and say, "There's a guy who appeals to women." If I wanted to make a guess, I'd say Jean Gabin, the French actor.

Everybody has his own impression of Brooklyn. Mine is of undertaking parlors and tile-and-terrazzo stores. There are about 18 different sections of Brooklyn — Brownsville, Canarsie, Flatbush, Red Hook, et al —and rarely does somebody living in one section have any idea where a street in another section is situated. As far as I can figure out, all New York press agents live in Brooklyn with their families and never take a girl out unless she has her own apartment in Manhattan.

Life is on an even keel here once again. Miss Mae West, the nonpareil, is back doing "Diamond Lil" at the Broadway. Surely she must by the world's three funniest women rolled into one. Nicely rolled, too. . . . Everybody yakking these days about how funny Clifton Webb is in the moo'm pictures. Well, I'm what Ed Durling calls a real young oldtimes. I remember Webb when he was the best dancer on Broadway. Also the best mimic. He was classical in the revnue "As Thousands Cheer," with Marilyn Miller.

I guess Society really is dead, at that. On the social pages the other day I saw where Mr. Barron Polan gave a dinner at the St. Regis Maisonette for a number of guests, including Judy Garland. Mr. Polan is none other than the agent for Julie Wilson, who sings at the Maisonette. Far as I know, there were no robber barons, millionaires or polo players in his immediate family. And Miss Garland has come along some distance, I should say, to be listed on the society page.

Likely I will live in New York until I die, but there is one counter-attraction that might break the spell some day: a house set right on the edge of the ocean (even a lighthouse, yet), with no neighbors for at least five miles. I ask you, Mabel, did you ever see anyone so anti-social? . . . This morning I am a little kindlier toward television. I made the acquaintance of Oliver J. Dragon.

I must look up Joan Caulfield, who appears to be in town. It was Miss C. who told me years ago, when the movies tapped her, that she was firmly planning on going Hollywood, and not going out there to eat her heart out for NY. She did, too. Married Frank Ross, Jean Arthur's former husband, and now lives the California life to the teeth. Fine woman, though, in spite of this sad gesture.

Most peninsulas project south.

Tax Collector, Aides Suspended

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27 (AP) — The entire top brass of the Northern California Internal Revenue Bureau office was suspended today over what officials termed "certain irregularities".

Internal Revenue Collector James G. Smyth and six of his top aides were suspended without charge pending a complete probe of the office. Smyth termed the action "outrageous."

Two other revenue employes were accused of conspiracy and embezzlement.

The action, announced in Washington, came during a federal grand jury probe of bureau offices here and in Fresno. The probe, picking up where the Kefauver committee left off last March, has featured charges of "shakedowns" and "fixing" income tax returns.

Smyth, whose suspension was announced by President Truman, was accused of failing to detect and prevent illegal activities by his employees. New head of the office is to be Charles F. Mesarik, Jr., assistant to the collector of internal revenue in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Six of Smyth's top aides were suspended, Internal Revenue Commissioner John B. Dunlap announced, because they also had the responsibility of preventing "this kind of thing from going on."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Charles Bohlen, a top State Department expert on Russia, are en route to Japan and Korea.

Bradley will survey "all aspects of the situation" with Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, United Nations commander, the Defense Department said today in announcing the trip.

The two officials left Washington at 9:30 p.m. (EST) last night. Bradley is expected back at the Pentagon in a week or 10 days.

Mines Bureau Chief To Resign, Friend Says

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — James Boyd, director of the Bureau of Mines, has quit to become a vice president of Kennecott Copper Corp., New York City, a friend said tonight.

The friend, who asked that his name be withheld, said a White House announcement is being prepared.

He said the resignation will be effective Oct. 16.

Baby Is Delivered After Mother Dies

GARY, Ind., Sept. 27 (AP) — A premature baby girl was delivered last night by Caesarean section just one minute after the expectant mother died of infantile paralysis.

Dr. H. M. Baitinger, who performed the postmortem operation, said the baby was two months premature but "has a good chance of living." He said a delay of a few minutes would have been fatal for the four-pound baby.

The mother, Mrs. Bernice Haraldson 27, had been in an iron lung since Tuesday.

Truman Appeals To Mossadegh

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP)—President Truman stepped into the ominous oil controversy today with an appeal to Iran not to throw the British out of the Abadan refinery.

Qualified sources said the President also counseled the British against the use of armed force to protect property in Iran.

American policy in the past has held that force could not be justified unless it is needed to save British lives.

Iran threatened to blow up the refinery, the world's largest, if the British do land at Abadan.

The British cabinet met in urgent session and set off a message asking Iran's Shah Mohammed Reza Shah Pahlevi to have his government revoke its ouster order. Under it, the 317 remaining British oil technicians must leave Iran by next Thursday.

After making the appeal to the Shah, the British cabinet decided to stand pat on hopes for a reversal of the ouster.

Attlee's office issued a communique tonight saying: "No final decisions have been taken by his majesty's government in the Persian (Iranian) oil dispute. Further information is awaited from the ambassador (Sir Francis Shepherd) in Tehran."

Government sources said Shepherd carried the cabinet appeal to the shah today, but there was no immediate indication whether the young ruler would intervene.

1951 Enigma Never Bothered Solomon

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 27 (AP) —The nine wise men of the Domestic Relations Court daily face a problem that never bothered Solomon: Who gets the television set in a marital breakup?

All nine judges agree that when a divorced couple confers on division of property, all goes well until it comes to the TV, and that almost invariably is cause for a wrangle. Frequently, according to the judges, it is the only piece of furniture specifically mentioned.

Three Prisoners Slug Guard, Flee Ft. Meade

FORT MEADE, Md., Sept. 27 (AP) —Three military prisoners on a work detail slugged a guard, took his carbine, and escaped across a field at a remote spot at Fort Meade today.

The three were working at a cemetery about half a mile south of Markel's Corner. Reports to Army authorities said that after striking the guard, the three took his carbine, covered a sergeant and a truck driver, then fled in the direction of U. S. Route 1.

The carbine has not been recovered.

The fugitives were identified as Paul F. Smith, Williams Zurick and Frederick H. Gowl. All lived in Baltimore, and all were serving six-month sentences for being AWOL, Army records indicated.

Long Caterpillar Strike Is Settled

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)— The Federal Mediation Service announced tonight settlement of the two-month-old strike of 22,000 workers at the Caterpillar Tractor Co., Peoria, Ill.

The agreement, subject to ratification by members of the CIO United Auto Workers Union, calls for a 13½ cents hourly general wage increase and a cost of living adjustment to be made on Feb. 1, 1952.

Union officials said the agreement would be submitted to the members at a mass meeting in Peoria this weekend, probably Sunday and if it is ratified, the workers probably would be back to work Monday.

The walkout began July 29 and idled a total of 28,000, including supervisory personnel.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Sept. 27 (AP)— Phelps Dodge Corp., and the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) today announced final agreement on a new working contract.

Estes Sues State For Salary As Employment Board Member

A precedent-setting case where a state official sues the Comptroller of the Treasury for his salary was docketed yesterday in Circuit Court.

John L. Estes, 1317 Virginia Avenue, entered suit against Millard E. Tawes, state comptroller, for $6,500 annual remuneration which he claims is due him as an associate member of the Employment Security Board.

The background of the action, according to the suit filed by Estes' attorneys, W. Earl Cobey and Paul M. Fletcher, is this:

Estes was appointed in May by Governor McKeldin to a six-year term on the board of three. On May 26 the local labor leader was sworn into office. On June 1 he began his duties.

The suit declares:

"That Section 10 A of Article 95 A of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1947 supplement) titled Unemployment Compensation" subtitled "Employment Security Board" as originally enacted, provided that the chairman of the Board should receive an annual salary of $7,500 and the associate members should each receive an annual salary of $5,000; that by Chapter 617 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland for 1951 the aforesaid Second 10 A of Article 95 A of the Annotated Code was amended to provide that the remuneration of the chairman of the Employment Security Board and the associates should be in such amounts as may be fixed by the Standard Salary Board, and said act was made effective as of June 1, 1951, that said act duly approved by the Governor on April 10 and accordingly took effect on June 1."

The Standard Salary Board met July 3 and set the salary of the associate members of the Employment Security Board at $6,500 a year, effective as of July 1.

For the month of June, the suit declares, Estes was paid on the basis of the $5,000 annual salary. For the first half of July, he was paid on the basis of the yearly wage of $6,500.

The petition declares that the payroll of the Division of Unemployment Compensation covering the last half of July was submitted to the Comptroller of the Treasury and it was returned for revision due to the fact it listed the amounts due the chairman and associate members of the board in accordance with the salary scales established by the State Employees Standard Salary Board.

Tawes informed the chairman of the Employment Security Board that he had been advised by the office of Attorney General Hall Hammond that the salary increase did not apply to the present members of the board.

The petition states that Estes has been advised by the attorney general that the $6,500 scale was disapproved because he is a public officer and section 38 or Article III of the constitution prohibits any increase or decrease in salary of a public officer during his term of office.

Estes alleges that he is a public officer and under this same law cannot have his pay increased or decreased.

He avers that Chapter 617 of the Acts of 1951 of the General Assembly abolished the salary of the board members.

When he took office, he declares, there was no salary and none was established until July 3 when the salary board met.

He therefore asked the court to grant a declaratory decree ordering the payment of his $6,500 annual wage.

State Sales Tax Returns Show Increase In Allegany County

Despite changes in the law which liberalized requirements for paying the state sales tax, the amount collected by Maryland in Allegany county showed a slight increase for the fiscal year ending June 30.

The complete statistical report was released yesterday by J. Millard Tawes, comptroller.

A total of $893,293 was paid in this county as compared to $892,190 for the year ending June 30, 1950. It represents an increase of .12 of one per cent.

Declines were noted in the food and beverage, apparel and miscellaneous groups but an increase of 39 per cent was noted for the lumber, builders and contractor classification. This group along with furniture and appliances and utilities and transportation turned in top figures for the four years that the law has been enforced.

In Garrett county sales tax collections amounted to $124,331 as compared to $123,020 for an increase of 1.06 per cent over 1950. Garrett showed increases in all classifications except food and beverage.

Allegany county paid the seventh highest total of tax with Garrett in twenty-fourth position. Collections in Baltimore City, Baltimore, Montgomery and Prince George's counties, the District of Columbia and Washington county were ahead of this county. The Washington county figure was $895,888 or slightly more than $2,500 in front of Allegany.

Collections for the four years in Allegany county follow:

| | 1948* | 1949 | 1950 | 1951 |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Food and beverage | $247,830 | $252,267 | $217,686 | $179,105 |
| Apparel | 131,408 | 134,907 | 115,565 | 107,223 |
| General merchandise | 208,133 | 252,033 | 230,471 | 235,490 |
| Automotive | 65,590 | 64,963 | 56,340 | 62,666 |
| Furniture and appliances | 63,300 | 70,787 | 70,189 | 86,639 |
| Lumber, builders and contractors | 64,558 | 66,388 | 51,876 | 72,433 |
| Utilities and transportation | 50,128 | 59,207 | 62,046 | 73,586 |
| Miscellaneous | 91,290 | 96,276 | 88,017 | 76,151 |
| Totals | $922,237 | $996,828 | $892,190 | $893,293 |

* 11 months only.

In the state there was an increase in collections of $2,110,604.61 over the previous year figure of $28,402,459.92, producing a gross figure of $30,513,064.53.

In November, 1950, the General Assembly amended the Retail Sales and Use Tax Acts so as to remove food, soaps, cleansing fluids, detergents, baby oils and baby powders as taxable items for all practical purposes, and raised the exemption level from 13 cents to 50 cents.

State officials were quick to point out that the full impact of the foregoing amendments on collections cannot be fully appraised as of this date, due to economic factors generated by the Korean crisis. Among the factors that may have contributed to the increase were the rising tide of inflation, sharp expansion of consumer buying, wage and salary increases, expanding employment and overtime pay, the demand for new housing and the boom in factory construction. Another factor, apart from the economic one, was the intensified activity of the field and office audit programs.

The report in substance brings out the following important items:

Baltimore City is still the largest source of revenue, contributing $16,639,926.31, or 54.53 per cent of the total collections.

It is interesting to note, however, that this percentage is continually dropping and indicates a slow but gradual trend to both suburban dwelling and shopping.

Collections from foods and beverages show a 51.17 per cent loss over six months period. This is reflected principally by sales of food in restaurants, hotels, drug stores, and social clubs.

The highest percentage increase in collections was noted in the building field under lumber, builders and contractors, where there was an increase of 33.48 per cent or $1,147,039.54.

It is important to note too that Washington's merchants are collecting $1,116,723.54 in taxes on purchases made in Washington by Maryland residents.

Farmers Told About Flammable Liquids

Urging farmers to be careful in the handling and storage of gasoline and kerosene, Guy Gienger, University of Maryland agricultural engineer, reports that flammable liquids are among the principal causes of loss of life by fire on farms.

The National Fire Protection Association, sponsor of Fire Prevention Week, October 7-13, says that many lives are lost annually in farm fires caused by careless use and storage of gasoline and kerosene.

When possible, the NFPA recommends underground storage of large quantities of gasoline and kerosene, and warn farmers not to keep flammable liquids in or near main buildings. Oily rags frequently used near oil drums and machinery should be kept in covered metal containers.

The University of Maryland Agricultural Extension Service is cooperating with the NFPA in its fire prevention program along with the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Four equity cases were filed in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bills of complaint were titled Alice Propst vs. Guy Propst, Mary S. Edwards vs. Roy G. Edwards, Delea Adelaide Engelbach vs. Robert Skelly Englebach and Virginia M. Reed vs. Charles W. Reed.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Can anyone say what you should like?

Answer: Not in matters of art, anyhow says Henry David Aiken of Harvard in the Philosophic Review. There is nothing in the nature of a work of art or in anyone's opinion of it that can decide how we ought to feel about it. Nor is there any good reason for our feeling that we ought to limit our tastes to what is currently accepted as "the best." The esthetic value of a work of art is not something for us to choose or decide; it is measured by "the enlivening joy that comes, when it comes, largely involuntarily from our immediate response to the subject itself." In short, if it gives you pleasure, it is "good art"—for you.

Do you know why you picked your mate?

Answer: Probably not, particularly if you "married for love." The reasons for your "falling in love" with one person rather than another are largely unconscious even when the choice works out well. To a psychoanalyst there is considerable irony in the idea of a projected study of "assortative mating" which apparently will try to find why certain types of men and women attract one another by asking them questions to which they do not and cannot know the answers. If a gentleman "prefers blondes," the first step toward finding out why may be to learn whether his mother was a brunette and, if so, what makes him choose a girl who won't remind him of her.

May insecurity make you ambitious?

Answer: Yes, provided your reaction to it is "aggressive." An aggressive, "fighting" response to the insecurity of poverty has driven many boys to political or business eminence, though a rich man's son may react in the same way if his self-esteem is threatened by the fear of being eclipsed by his father's greatness. How much "fight" you have in you will depend in part upon your inborn constitution and in part upon the "moral support" you received from at least one of your parents. And whether success brings security will depend on whether you have been able to fight with a clear enough conscience to feel you've deserved it.

State Sales Tax Returns Show Increase In Allegany County

Despite changes in the law which liberalized requirements for paying the state sales tax, the amount collected by Maryland in Allegany county showed a slight increase for the fiscal year ending June 30.

The complete statistical report was released yesterday by J. Millard Tawes, comptroller.

A total of $893,293 was paid in this county as compared to $892,190 for the year ending June 30, 1950. It represents an increase of .12 of one per cent.

Declines were noted in the food and beverage, apparel and miscellaneous groups but an increase of 39 per cent was noted for the lumber, builders and contractor classification. This group along with furniture and appliances and utilities and transportation turned in top figures for the four years that the law has been enforced.

In Garrett county sales tax collections amounted to $124,331 as compared to $123,020 for an increase of 1.06 per cent over 1950. Garrett showed increases in all classifications except food and beverage.

Allegany county paid the seventh highest total of tax with Garrett in twenty-fourth position. Collections in Baltimore City, Baltimore, Montgomery and Prince George's counties, the District of Columbia and Washington county were ahead of this county. The Washington county figure was $895,888 or slightly more than $2,500 in front of Allegany.

Collections for the four years in Allegany county follow:

| | 1948* | 1949 | 1950 | 1951 |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Food and beverage | $247,830 | $252,267 | $217,686 | $179.105 |
| Apparel | 131,408 | 134,907 | 115,565 | 107,223 |
| General merchandise | 208,133 | 252,033 | 230,471 | 235,490 |
| Automotive | 65,590 | 64,963 | 56,340 | 62,666 |
| Furniture and appliances | 63,300 | 70,787 | 70,189 | 86,639 |
| Lumber, builders and contractors | 64,558 | 66,388 | 51,876 | 72,433 |
| Utilities and transportation | 50,128 | 59,207 | 62,046 | 73,586 |
| Miscellaneous | 91,290 | 96,276 | 88,017 | 76,151 |
| Totals | $922,237 | $996,828 | $892,190 | $893,293 |

* 11 months only.

In the state there was an increase in collections of $2,110,604.61 over the previous year figure of $28,402,459.92, producing a gross figure of $30,513,064.53.

In November, 1950, the General Assembly amended the Retail Sales and Use Tax Acts so as to remove food, soaps, cleansing fluids, detergents, baby oils and baby powders as taxable items for all practical purposes, and raised the exemption level from 13 cents to 50 cents.

State officials were quick to point out that the full impact of the foregoing amendments on collections cannot be fully appraised as of this date, due to economic factors generated by the Korean crisis. Among the factors that may have contributed to the increase were the rising tide of inflation, sharp expansion of consumer buying, wage and salary increases, expanding employment and overtime pay, the demand for new housing and the boom in factory construction. Another factor, apart from the economic one, was the intensified activity of the field and office audit programs.

The report in substance brings out the following important items:

Baltimore City is still the largest source of revenue, contributing $16,639,926.31, or 54.53 per cent of the total collections.

It is interesting to note, however, that this percentage is continually dropping and indicates a slow but gradual trend to both suburban dwelling and shopping.

Collections from foods and beverages show a 51.17 per cent loss over six months period. This is reflected principally by sales of food in restaurants, hotels, drug stores, and social clubs.

The highest percentage increase in collections was noted in the building field under lumber, builders and contractors, where there was an increase of 33.48 per cent or $1,147,039.54.

It is important to note too that Washington's merchants are collecting $1,116,723.54 in taxes on purchases made in Washington by Maryland residents.

Lofty Mountain Found In Ocean

LA JOLLA, Calif., Sept. 27 (AP)—Scientists returning from a two-month exploration of the Pacific Ocean reported discovery of a mountain rising more than two miles from the ocean's floor—perhaps the world's largest known seamount.

The scientists, arriving on the University of California's Scripps Institution of Oceanography ship Horizon, surveyed 8,200 miles of the Northeast Pacific during the expedition.

They said the seamount (term given to isolated mountains rising from the ocean's floor) was 11,400 feet high and 18 miles across at the widest point at the base. The top was about a mile under the ocean.

It was discovered under the shipping lanes 700 miles northeast of Hawaii and about 1,200 miles west of San Diego.

Warren S. Wooster, Scripps assistant oceanographer, and Dr. Henry W. Menard of the U. S. Navy Electronics Labroatory, which participated in the expedition, both expressed surprise that the mountain had not been discovered earlier.

The scientists previously had reported discovery of a mile-high seamount under the Gulf of Alaska. It is approximately a mile beneath the ocean floor and three miles wide.

"And one of the kids, who is now with the F.B.I. (they picked him up only last fortnight), kept bawling "move this junk so I can set up my bowling alley. Move it or I'll leave!" He left.

"Junk was hardly an overstatement. The guvnor had acquired some of the worst debris in history during his years on the ninth floor, especially carbon copies of his writings — recently burned in Times Square by order of my beloved leader, big brother.

"I remember guvnor now, creaking from his charley horse, fingers smashed by the piano he dropped, shins barked by the gear in a room where the lights won't work, crawling with his remaining strength to a box he had furtively hidden in a closet and extracting a bottle of Scotch, like a lost desert rat come upon an oasis. He declined rapidly after that. He declined rapidly ever to move again."

Lofty Mountain Found In Ocean

LA JOLLA, Calif., Sept. 27 (AP)—Scientists returning from a two-month exploration of the Pacific Ocean reported discovery of a mountain rising more than two miles from the ocean's floor—perhaps the world's largest known seamount.

The scientists, arriving on the University of California's Scripps Institution of Oceanography ship Horizon, surveyed 8,200 miles of the Northeast Pacific during the expedition.

They said the seamount (term given to isolated mountains rising from the ocean's floor) was 11,400 feet high and 18 miles across at the widest point at the base. The top was about a mile under the ocean.

It was discovered under the shipping lanes 700 miles northeast of Hawaii and about 1,200 miles west of San Diego.

Warren S. Wooster, Scripps assistant oceanographer, and Dr. Henry W. Menard of the U. S. Navy Electronics Labroatory, which participated in the expedition, both expressed surprise that the mountain had not been discovered earlier.

The scientists previously had reported discovery of a mile-high seamount under the Gulf of Alaska. It is approximately a mile beneath the ocean floor and three miles wide.

On The Line

phraseology — by having the television turned on to the Yankee game, one radio on the Dodgers and one to the Giants.

"And one of the kids, who is now with the F.B.I. (they picked him up only last fortnight), kept bawling "move this junk so I can set up my bowling alley. Move it or I'll leave!" He left.

"Junk was hardly an overstatement. The guvnor had acquired some of the worst debris in history during his years on the ninth floor, especially carbon copies of his writings — recently burned in Times Square by order of my beloved leader, big brother.

"I remember guvnor now, creaking from his charley horse, fingers smashed by the piano he dropped, shins barked by the gear in a room where the lights won't work, crawling with his remaining strength to a box he had furtively hidden in a closet and extracting a bottle of Scotch, like a lost desert rat come upon an oasis. He declined rapidly after that. He declined rapidly ever to move again."

Hot Sandwich For Child's Luncheon At Home

Children who come home from school for lunch will enjoy this hot open-faced sandwich. Toast a slice of enriched bread on one side under the broiler. Turn and on the untoasted side place a slice of cheese and spread chili sauce over it. Top with three strips of bacon and bake the sandwich until the bacon is crisp and the cheese bubbling.

Begin A Year With Cake

A light, beautiful cake is in order for a birthday—anybody's birthday! Do it up deftly with a handy package of Layer Cake Mix. We choose marshmallows dipped in chocolate and rolled in coconut for candle holders—and we perch them on the fluffiest, prettiest pink frosting we know.

To start off a gay new year on anybody's birthday—a light, beautiful cake is in order. Make it frivolous as you please—nothing spectacular, nothing fancy. You could say it's inspired by tradition, though, with its ring-around of tiny candles.

Do it up deftly, easily—with a handy package of layer cake mix. Follow directions on the package and you can't fail. When your cake has cooled, swirl a delicate fluffy frosting over it. Then for the birthday motif, choose plump marshmallows. Dip in melted chocolate and roll in pale green coconut. Those are your candle holders—since we approve of the theory that cake decorations should be edible.

Did you know:—to cut your cake without crumbling, use a thin bladed knife. Dip it in hot water and dry before using.

If your coconut has dried out, soften it by steaming in a cloth over boiling water.

Tint your coconut by blending it with a few drops of green vegetable coloring. Use only 2 or 3 drops of coloring, adding more if necessary.

Birthday Cake

1 pkge. layer cake mix
1¼ cups milk

Preheat oven to 375° F. (moderately hot). Grease two 8-inch layer cake pans with unsalted shortening. Line with waxed paper and grease again. Blend layer cake mix with milk following directions on package. Divide batter into prepared pans and bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 25-30 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in center comes out clean.

Fluffy Pink Frosting

2 egg whites
2 cups sugar
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup boiling water
1 teaspoon lemon juice
3 or 4 drops pink coloring

Combine egg whites, sugar and cream of tartar in large mixing bowl. Add water at full rolling boil and begin at once to beat with rotary beater or electric mixer. Continue beating until very thick and fluffy. Add lemon juice and coloring and blend well.

Coconut Marshmallows

8 marshmallows
3 oz. (½ pkge.) chocolate morsels
½ cup shredded coconut

Make small incisions with a sharp knife in one side of each marshmallow. Melt chocolate over hot (not boiling) water in top of double boiler. Dip marshmallows in melted chocolate and then roll in green tinted coconut. Insert small candle in each incision and place around cake.

Cheese Bread Crumbs Pep Up Flavor of Cauliflower

Buttered bread crumbs, combined with grated Parmesan cheese, give added flavor and texture to cauliflower. Sprinkle the cheese bread crumbs over a whole cauliflower or creamed casserole just before serving.

Menu Magic

HOT FUDGE SHORTCAKE

If no one in your family is counting calories, here is a dish to delight everyone. It is an irresistible combination of ice cream, cake, and hot fudge sauce that will please any sweet tooth.

Cake

1¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
⅓ cup margarine
⅞ cup milk
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add the margarine and about one-half of the milk. The margarine should be left out of the refrigerator long enough to reach room temperature. Beat for two minutes. If an electric mixer is used, set at medium speed. Now, add the remaining milk, unbeaten eggs, and vanilla. Beat for two more minutes. Pour the batter into an 8" x 8" x 2" pan or a 7" x 11" x 1½" pan which has been margarined and floured or lined with waxed paper. Bake in a moderate (350 to 375° F.) oven for about 25 to 30 minutes. Turn out on a cake rack to cool slightly.

Split layers of warm cake. Place a scoop of ice cream between pieces of the cake and top with hot fudge sauce.

Dainty Cinnamon Toast Sticks

Appetizing accompaniments for midmorning coffee or afternoon tea are these delicious cinnamon toast sticks. To make them, remove crusts from slices of enriched bread and brush both sides of the slices with melted butter or margarine. Cut each slice into six equal strips, and roll them in a mixture of cinnamon and sugar. Arrange the strips on a cookie sheet and bake at 350°F. until crisp. These crunchy cinnamon toast sticks also add texture and flavor contrast to fruit salads.

Surprise Cookie Stacks

Here is a dessert idea for serving at a children's birthday party. Crush pink peppermint candy sticks and fold into whipped cream. Spread the mixture on thin, crisp chocolate cookies — the kind that can be purchased in packages at the grocery store, or from the neighborhood bakery. Stack one chocolate cookie on top of another, with the whipped cream mixture in between, until they are three or four high. Place them on a cookie sheet and chill in the refrigerator for at least three hours. At serving time, more whipped cream may be spooned on top and grated chocolate or crushed peppermint candy sprinkled over each.

To start off a gay new year on anybody's birthday—a light, beautiful cake is in order. Make it frivolous as you please—nothing spectacular, nothing fancy. You could say it's inspired by tradition, though, with its ring-around of tiny candles.

Do it up deftly, easily—with a handy package of layer cake mix. Follow directions on the package and you can't fail. When your cake has cooled, swirl a delicate fluffy frosting over it. Then for the birthday motif, choose plump marshmallows. Dip in melted chocolate and roll in pale green coconut. Those are your candle holders—since we approve of the theory that cake decorations should be edible.

Versatile Tea For Flavorings

Tea, besides being an excellent mealtime beverage, makes a wonderful flavoring for ice creams, milk shakes, milk sherbets and other popular family desserts. George F. Mitchell, one of the most famous and experienced Tea Consultants in the world, has been experimenting with the various uses of tea for the past twenty years. Some of his conclusions and suggestions are Tea-Tailor-made for the housewife who's constantly looking for new ideas for meals. Mr. Mitchell claims that for best results, tea must not be brewed as usual and the resulting infusion used as an extract. However, he suggests this method for the proper preparation of tea extract for one of the best flavorings you've ever tasted.

Tea Extract

Put equal parts of whole milk and heavy cream in a double boiler, and for each pint of liquid, place in a cup ½ cup of dry tea. Pour boiling water on the dry leaves to just cover. This will cause the leaves to open up. After the leaves have stood for a few minutes in the hot water, transfer the leaves and infusion to the milk and cream in the top of the double boiler. When the water in the underneath part of the boiler begins to boil, let it continue boiling slowly for seven minutes. Remove the upper vessel, and when the mixture has cooled to room temperature, strain through a fine sieve or piece of cheesecloth. This milk-cream-tea extract can then be used in making ice cream by any selected recipe.

Be careful not to make the extract TOO WEAK. Follow exactly the indicated proportions for best results. In the case of ice cream, the tea-milk-cream extract can be adapted to any good ice cream recipe. However, here's a simple one the family's bound to like:

Tea Ice Cream

½ pint whole milk
½ pint heavy cream
¼ teaspoonful of salt
2 tsp. granulated sugar whites of two eggs
⅓ cup granulated sugar
3 tablespoonfuls of Minute Tapioca
3 tablespoonfuls of Karo White Corn Syrup
4 heaping tablespoonfuls of tea

Make tea extract as directed above.

Place Minute Tapioca and one 8-oz. cup of milk on stove and boil 15 minutes. While hot, strain through a fine sieve or cheesecloth, stirring, but not forcing, through the sieve (or cheesecloth). Add to this ¼ tsp. salt and 3 tbsp. White Karo Corn Syrup and ⅓ cup sugar and stir until sugar is thoroughly dissolved.

Place whites of 2 eggs and 2 tbsp. of sugar in a bowl and beat with mixer or hand-beater until very stiff. Then add the Tapioca mix and the milk-cream-tea mix, folding into the beaten egg whites until thoroughly blended. Do not beat. Pour into ice cube tray or into dish that will fit into freezing compartment of your refrigerator. (If hand freezer is used, eliminate tapioca mix). Set dial at coldest point and freeze.

Tea Milk Sherbet

In preparing an extract for making milk sherbet, make the same extract as the one given above "TEA EXTRACT" but use only milk—no cream. The milk-cream extract or the plain milk extract, if black tea is used, is medium brown in color. You will find this extract very mild in flavor and very smooth.

The first public sampling of these new tea recipes will be at The Greenbrier, the world-famous hotel at White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, where the Tea Association of the U. S. A. will be in convention from September 30th through October 3rd. All hotel guests will be treated to these recipes at luncheon and dinner during this period.

Ruby red cherries are happily employed as the colorful accent to luscious quick coffee cake squares. They're served at breakfast with bacon and eggs.

Those who take time for a good breakfast often say that they enjoy it more than any meal of the day. It's sound planning from a nutritional point of view, too. Like any engine the body needs refueling before work is demanded of it. Food experts say breakfast should supply from a fourth to a third of daily food needs.

Enriched breads are always included as a "starter" for the because they provide food energy, protein for body-building, food iron and essential B-vitamins. With the great variety of plain breads, rolls and coffee cakes offered at bakeries today, breakfast can be interesting, colorful and well-balanced the year around.

For example, quick coffee cakes can be changed to suit the sc Fluffy coffee cake squares are delicious flavored with fresh peach slices or raspberries for summer glamor. Often, you'll use spoonfuls of your favorite jam for an easy, colorful topping. In the fall you'll like to use drained canned cherries or pineapple chunks. The result in any case is a breakfast treat, and a happy "prescription" for vitamins and minerals.

Complete the breakfast menu with glasses of chilled fruit juice and the sunny-side eggs your man likes, and he'll give you a reputation as a wonderful cook.

CHERRY OR RASPBERRY TEA SQUARES

2 cups sifted enriched flour
4 teaspoons baking powder

Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 25 minutes. When cool, drizzle with Confectioners' Sugar Icing.

Makes 1 tea cake, 7 x 11 inches.

Frankfurter And Green Bean Casserole

1 pound frankfurters, sliced ½ in thick; 3 tablespoons butter, margarine or drippings; 5 tablespoons flour; 2 cups milk (or liquid from canned beans); 1 teaspoon salt; 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce; ¼ grated cheese; 2 cups green beans.

Pickles Up Tempo Of Meal

Like a perky feather or a sprig of blossoms tucked in the brim of your hat, they're the perfect accent, the finishing touch.

What are we talking about? Pickles—of course. Sweet or sour, whole or sliced, pickles pick up the tempo of any meal whether it's served from dining table, buffet, lunchbox or picnic basket.

For lunch boxes and picnics, pickup pickles are ideal...pickles that can be picked up in the fingers and eaten as is! Among the favorites are the firm and piquant whole sweets, the crisp cross cuts sweet pickle sticks (cut lengthwise), and naturally the jumbo-sized processed dills.

But with a more formal table meal, try tiny pickled onions, sweet mixed pickles, mustard pickle or one of the relishes since these demand a fork for eating.

Pickles—the pickup kind—pack perfectly in lunchboxes if you drain them and seal them in aluminum or put them in a small glass jar or waxed paper cup with a closely-fitted lid.

Here are a few quick-tricks with pickles you might want to clip:

India Relish

Add to hamburgers before shaping; mix into roast beef hash; mix with ketchup to make a sauce for fishcakes; add to deviled eggs.

Sweet Pickles

Press into top of meat loaf before baking; for a sandwich, top layer of tuna, salmon, or chicken salad with slices of cross cut sweets.

Chop, add to bread stuffing for pork chops; chops coarsely, add to salad.

Processed Dill Pickles

Slice paper-thin, add to salad of tossed greens; add crisp slivers to cole slaw; chop fine; combine with mayonnaise for a quick tartar sauce; scoop out centers, stuff shell with cheese spread, slice cross-wise for serving; chop, add to canned oven-baked beans.

Simple Dessert Discovery Creates New Taste-Thrill

A sensationally new and delicious lemon-flavor dessert is winning rave notices on family dinner and party menus and seems destined to become one of America's most popular dishes.

The dessert, named Lem-Chiffon Pudding because it combines a new distinctive lemon tang with a delightful light texture, can be made into a mouth-watering Lem-Chiffon Pie by the simple process of pouring the pudding into a pre-baked pastry shell. Lem-Chiffon Pudding also makes a wonderful new-flavor sherbet by freezing in one of your refrigerator freezing trays.

Economical, Easy

Lem-Chiffon Pudding and Lem-Chiffon Pie have the happy faculty of tasting and looking like a "million" (just the sort of recipe you'd expect to find in a gourmet's cookbook), yet are so easy to prepare and cost so little—since Lem has the egg yolk already in it—they can be served often.

Be sure to cut out this recipe for future use as the thrilling new Lem-Chiffon Recipes have not yet appeared on Lem packages.

1 package LEM
1 reg. can evaporated milk

Thoroughly chill can of evaporated milk. Prepare package of LEM according to directions on box and allow to cool. Measure out one cupful of the chilled evaporated milk and beat until stiff. Fold the whipped evaporated milk into the cooled LEM. Place in refrigerator and serve cold as Lem-Chiffon Pudding.

• • •

For Lem-Chiffon Pie, pour cooled pudding into pre-baked pie crust. Keep in refrigerator until served.

• • •

For Lem-Chiffon Sherbet, pour pudding into refrigerator freezing tray and allow to freeze until the consistency of rich ice-cream.

Tower Sandwich Makes Luncheon Main Dish

Here is a unique sandwich which can be a good, sustaining luncheon main dish, or an evening snack following outdoor exercises. The unusual feature of this combination is that a dressing is poured over the sandwich just before serving. As a result, it is attractive in appearance as well as satisfying to the taste. To make it, start with a large slice of buttered rye bread. Place a slice or two of boiled or baked ham, or luncheon meat on the bread, then a lettuce leaf, a thin slice of cheese, another piece of lettuce, and finally tomato slices. Pour Thousand Island dressing over all just before serving, and garnish with a slice of hard cooked egg. The only way to eat it is with a fork, of course.

Spreads For Whole Wheat Sandwiches

Here are three appetizing spreads for whole wheat sandwiches: Dried chipped beef, grated cheese, and bits of celery moistened with mayonnaise to make a spread; grated carrots, chopped dates, and chopped nuts combined with mayonnaise; and a mixture of chopped seedless raisins, honey, and peanut butter.

When, Why Given For Salting Meat

There's a technique to seasoning meat! Following meat cookery research, today the when and why is known for salting roasts, chops and steaks for the finest servings.

According to the meat experts, the old rule that a roast should be salted before the roasting is now out-dated. The truth is a roast may be seasoned before, after or even during cooking. This is explained by the fact that salt penetrates to the depth of less than ½ inch, therefore, it makes no difference when it is added to a roast.

However, broiled and pan-boiled steaks and chops should be salted after the meat is browned. This is explained by the fact that salt tends to draw the juices out of the meat and thus retard the browning process.

Also in braising, the meat is seasoned after it is browned unless it is floured. In the case where meat is floured before browning, the salt is added to the flour.

Potatoes In Sunday Best

Melt about three tablespoons butter in a skillet. Add a No. 2 can of whole white potatoes, drained, and a small chopped onion. Cook until the onion is tender. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and a bit of curry powder. Add half a cup of condensed consomme, cover, and cook about 15 minutes, or until most of the consomme is absorbed.

Menu Magic

BROILED NEW POTATOES

Most homemakers rarely have a day of meal planning that does not include potatoes on the menu in some form because hearty, masculine appetites demand them. Your menfolk—and other members of the family, as well—will welcome potatoes served in this tasty new fashion.

Broiled New Potatoes

15 medium-size or 30 tiny new potatoes
¼ cup melted margarine
¾ cup shredded cheese
½ cup bread crumbs

Cook potatoes in their jackets. While still hot, peel and roll in melted margarine, next in cheese, and finally in bread crumbs. Arrange in a well-margarined shallow baking dish or pan. Place under broiler and broil until lightly browned on one side, about five minutes. Turn and finish broiling, about five minutes. This will yield six servings.

BREAD STICKS TO SERVE WITH CREAMED DISHES

These crunchy bread sticks add texture and extra flavor to creamed vegetables, meat, and fish. To make them, cut slices of bread into six equal size strips and toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven until crisp. Turn them so that they will be brown on all sides.

Special Times-News Cooking School Recipes

VEAL SAVORY

1½ pounds veal steak, cut thin
2 tablespoons flour
5 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 large onion, sliced
½ cup chili sauce
¼ cup water
½ cup grated American cheddar cheese

Cut veal into 6 portions. Dredge in flour. Brown in melted lard or drippings in frying pan. Place veal in 1½-quart casserole. Season. Cover with onion, chili sauce, water and grated cheese. Cover and bake in slow oven (300°F) for 1 hour. 6 servings.

LEMON PUDDING

2 tablespoons lard
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, separated
Juice and rind of 1 lemon
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk

Cream lard and sugar. Add egg yolks, lemon rind and juice. Add flour and milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into six ½-cup custard cups. Set cups in pan of water and bake 25 to 30 minutes in a moderate oven (350°F.). Make two hours before serving. 6 servings.

BROILED STEAK

Have sirloin, porterhouse, T-bone, or club steak cut 1 to 2 inches thick. Place on broiler rack. Insert broiler pan so that top of 1-inch will be 2 inches from heat and 2-inch steak will be 3 inches from heat. When one side is browned season with salt and pepper, turn and brown on second side. Season. Steaks cut 1-inch thick require 8 to 10 minutes on each side for rare and 10 to 15 minutes for medium. 2-inch steaks require 15 to 20 minutes on each side for rare and 25 to 35 minutes for medium.

Luncheon Meat Patties For Dinner

Serve these easy-to-make ham and pineapple patties at your next bridge luncheon . . . together with a hot vegetable and crisp potato chips. Or serve them for dinner with more substantial accompaniments.

Broiled Ham Patties

12 oz. can luncheon meat
No. 2 can sliced pineapple
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
⅙ cup granulated rice cereal (Cream of Rice)
2 tablespoons fat
1 teaspoon meat sauce

Put luncheon meat through food chopper, or use 2 cups ground cooked ham. Drain pineapple. Add water to juice to make 1 cup of juice. Place pineapple juice, salt, sugar and mustard in saucepan and bring to boil. Sprinkle in rice cereal so boiling doesn't stop. Cook, stirring constantly, for 1 minute. Then turn heat very low and let cook slowly for another 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in chopped ham and let cool enough to handle. Shape into eight flat patties about the diameter of the pineapple slices. Arrange pineapple slices on broiling pan. Top each slice with a ham patty. Blend toegther fat and meat sauce and brush lightly over the tops of the patties. Place in pre-heated broiling compartment and broil 4 inches from moderate heat until lightly browned and thoroughly hot, about 8 to 10 minutes. Serve immediately.

BROILED NEW POTATOES

Most homemakers rarely have a day of meal planning that does not include potatoes on the menu in some form because hearty, masculine appetites demand them. Your menfolk—and other members of the family, as well—will welcome potatoes served in this tasty new fashion.

Broiled New Potatoes

15 medium-size or 30 tiny new potatoes
¼ cup melted margarine
¾ cup shredded cheese
½ cup bread crumbs

Cook potatoes in their jackets. While still hot, peel and roll in melted margarine, next in cheese, and finally in bread crumbs. Arrange in a well-margarined shallow baking dish or pan. Place under broiler and broil until lightly browned on one side, about five minutes. Turn and finish broiling, about five minutes. This will yield six servings.

BREAD STICKS TO SERVE WITH CREAMED DISHES

These crunchy bread sticks add texture and extra flavor to creamed vegetables, meat, and fish. To make them, cut slices of bread into six equal size strips and toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven until crisp. Turn them so that they will be brown on all sides.

Special Times-News Cooking School Recipes

VEAL SAVORY

1½ pounds veal steak, cut thin
2 tablespoons flour
5 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 large onion, sliced
½ cup chili sauce
¼ cup water
½ cup grated American cheddar cheese

Cut veal into 6 portions. Dredge in flour. Brown in melted lard or drippings in frying pan. Place veal in 1½-quart casserole. Season. Cover with onion, chili sauce, water and grated cheese. Cover and bake in slow oven (300°F) for 1 hour. 6 servings.

LEMON PUDDING

2 tablespoons lard
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, separated
Juice and rind of 1 lemon
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk

Cream lard and sugar. Add egg yolks, lemon rind and juice. Add flour and milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into six ½-cup custard cups. Set cups in pan of water and bake 25 to 30 minutes in a moderate oven (350°F.). Make two hours before serving. 6 servings.

BROILED STEAK

Have sirloin, porterhouse, T-bone, or club steak cut 1 to 2 inches thick. Place on broiler rack. Insert broiler pan so that top of 1-inch will be 2 inches from heat and 2-inch steak will be 3 inches from heat. When one side is browned season with salt and pepper, turn and brown on second side. Season. Steaks cut 1-inch thick require 8 to 10 minutes on each side for rare and 10 to 15 minutes for medium. 2-inch steaks require 15 to 20 minutes on each side for rare and 25 to 35 minutes for medium.

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

Telephone Manners Or How To Lose Business

Irving Berlin once wrote a song which had a refrain as I remember it something as follows:

"All alone, I'm so alone, on the telephone, etc."

Now this was a sentimental ballad about a lovesick gent waiting for a lady, who had forgotten his number on purpose, to call. But it fits another situation when the big tycoon says to his secretary,

"Get Mr. Chesty on the telephone.

John Wheeler

Then starts the mumbo jumbo which I contend does more to lose business and destroy good will than almost any other custom. The secretary tells the office operator, who dials the number and finally reaches the man sought. He picks up the receiver to find he is all "alone" until a feminine voice says,

"Just a minute. Mr. Bighead is calling." Shortly another soprano reports,

"This is Mr. Bighead's secretary. Just a minute." By this time, you can fry an egg anywhere on Mr. Chesty, he's so sore and steamed up.

Ring Lardner once wrote a sardonic piece on telephone manners ridiculing the whole performance and throwing in for good measure some sarcastic cracks about the office vice presidents who address each other by their initials, as "C. H." or "W. R." It made such an impression at the time we received reports that several firms had copies made and posted in their offices.

You take a secretary with horn-rimmed glasses, and she thinks she is the guardian of her boss or keeper of the iron curtain or something. Try calling an advertising agency man, and you have a better chance of getting Joe Stalin on the wire. She reports her chief is out of town or in conference ( a much abused excuse) or talking long distance. But just relay to one of these young ladies you are Paul M. Hahn, president of the American Tobacco Company, and he'll answer so quick you'll think he's going to kiss you by telephone. I use this dodge right along, or, if aiming at a theatrical manager, announce I am Lee Shubert.

There used to be a genial gentleman, named Florence White, who was general manager of the New York World, when those giants of Journalism, Hearst and Pulitzer, were battling each other. Bud Fisher was drawing Mutt and Jeff for the former, and Mr. Pulitzer was anxious to hire him and pay him a lot more money than he was getting. Now there was a young lady, appropriately called Peaches, who thought Bud was bigger than either of the publishers and used to come around to his apartment to visit him frequently. One day the telephone rang, and she answered. A female voice asked for Mr. Fisher, and she naturally said,

"Who wants him?"

"Florence White wishes to speak to him," came the answer.

"Well," snapped the jealous young lady, "he doesn't want to speak to her."

Then she hung up and never reported the call. If Mr. White had telephoned himself, instead of using his secretary for a mouthpiece, everything would probably have been all right, and the artist would have signed a contract at twice as much money.

The other day I went into a man's office by appointment and sat down to discuss some business when the bell rang. He answered it and spent about a quarter of an hour in conversation, covering everything from his last golf score to the bad disposition of his wife. He hung up and it jingled again. He was off for another 10 minutes. As he finished, I had picked up my hat.

"Where are you going?" he asked me: "We hadn't finished."

"Down in the lobby to a pay booth to call you up, so I can talk to you," I answered.

It's all right to have your secretary get your wife on the wire. Usually, they have a lot to chatter about anyway before you take over. Once John Golden asked me about my better half.

"She's usually in a bad humor until noon," I reported. "If you don't believe it, call her up and pretend you are I and see what happens." He is a natural imitator.

Shortly, he was back on my wire.

"You're right," he said, "but she claims it's your fault."

"I guess she's hit the nail on the head," I answered, a truthful reply

Area Rec Group Will Nominate

PIEDMONT, W. Va. — A nominating committee comprised of Mrs. Benjamin Mamolen, chairman; Okey Michael, Miss Mary Rose and Mrs. Mary Wills was named by Vernon A. Staggers, president of the Tri-Towns Recreation Association, Tuesday evening at a meeting held at the Piedmont Library.

Staggers, who has served as head of the organization for the past four years, wishes to resign. The committee will recommend officers to be named at the next meeting Tuesday, Oct. 16. Other nominations may be made from the floor. The officers of the club include the president, two vice-presidents, secretary and treasurer.

A discussion of activities of the group was held which included the consideration of the Tri-Towns Little League Baseball being coordinated with the association. A Hot Stove League of boys between the ages of 13-15 years of age is also being considered.

Norman Baughman, vice president of the Little League, stated that $800 was expended this year, but it would not be so expensive in the coming year because summer uniforms have now been purchased. Boys 9 to 12 are eligible to play.

"Chess Board" Method Of Applying X-Rays Effective Against Cancer

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A "chess board" method of applying powerful X-rays offers new hope in treating advanced cases of cancer resistant to other treatments, a New York doctor said today.

Dr. Hirsch Marks described a method of applying X-ray through a "grid." He said it allows attacking a cancer with much more powerful does than can be employed in conventional X-ray treatment without seriously damaging normal tissue.

In conventional treatment, he said, X-ray is directed against the skin with no intervening material. The strength of doses is limited by the tolerance of the normal tissue surrounding or overlying the cancer itself.

(He told a reporter that by "conventional" treatment he meant the type widely used throughout the country. He said he was not referring to extremely high energy X-ray employed by only a few hospitals. In this high energy type of treatment, he said, the theory is that the rays are so energetic that they go through the skin without damage.)

In his own technique Dr. Marks told the American Roentgen Ray Society, this happens:

With the grid taped to the patient's skin, the rays strike only the uncovered areas — producing a "chessboard" pattern.

The skin is reddened and sometimes peels, but Dr. Marks said healing is promoted with the help of adjacent areas largely protected by the grid.

Adequate radiation reaches the tumor, he said, declaring he has noted between 50 and 100 per cent apparent improvement in more than 60 among 200 far advanced cases so treated.

And he declared that in none of the 200 was there any evidence of radiation sickness or blood damage.

Dr. Marks, of New York City's Welfare Island Dispensary, said grid techniques for X-ray are not new but that previous methods had failed partly because steel or plain lead was used for grid material, and there was "excessive" transmission of X-ray through the "thin" metal. He says he uses relatively thick grids made of lead-rubber.

Hitler Fortune Teller Is Jailed On Fraud Charge

By TOM REEDY

BERLIN—(AP)—A fortune teller who claims she gave Hitler a year's notice of his doom has been jailed in Berlin as a fraud.

A criminal court sentenced 70-year-old Emmy Ebert to 60 days for charging people money to read their palms and forecast the future.

Under present German law, soothsayers may advise friends and accept gifts for it, but trial witnesses maintained that Emmy demanded cash on the line. In Hitler's time, the fortune teller racket was highly respected because the Fuehrer himself indulged in all sorts of seances with whomever claimed to have occult powers.

Frau Ebert, a native of Weimar, told the court she was principally a star-gazer and told people what the stars held in store for them.

Her advice to Hitler, she said, was that he missed the boat the time he failed "to cross the great water." Apparently she was talking about the Fuehrer's decision to cancel the invasion of Britain after the fall of France.

In 1944, she said, Hitler asked her in the "Elephant Restaurant" in Weimar to tell his fortune again. This time, she said, she saw "danger to his life" but withheld that in fear of being tossed into a concentration camp. Instead, she said, she advised him to "be careful" in April, 1945.

She said she also told Fritz Sauckel, gauleiter of Thuringia, he'd die with his boots on. He was hanged at Nuernberg for being boss of the Nazi slave labor program.

After the war, Emmy said she told fortunes in her "astrological institute" in Weimar until the Russians got the idea she was getting to know too much about German prisoners of war in the Soviet Union. She fled to West Berlin in 1949.

The court listened politely to Emmy's dip into the past but reached its decision on her more recent conduct. She was convicted of defrauding a number of people by promising them occult information in exchange for money.

The judges made it clear they were not deciding on her ability to look into the future, however, but merely ruling on her right—or lack of it—to collect money for it.

"Continuous fraud," the court said tersely.

State Beverage Association Urges Uniform Liquor Laws

A resolution has been passed by the Maryland State Licensed Beverage Association calling for license issuing authorities throughout the state to adopt a uniform set of qualifications to determine the character and fitness of applicants for retail alcoholic beverage licenses.

It was pointed out in the resolution that public imagination has recently been captured by dramatic testimony before the Kefauver Crime Committee, and subsequent testimony before the Legislative Council of Maryland and Baltimore City grand jury.

"Such testimony, perhaps naturally, enables the public to condemn the alcoholic beverage industry, failing to realize that proper licensing would have denied such undesirable persons a license and that proper enforcement would have driven law-breakers from the alcoholic beverage business," the association states.

The 13 qualifications which the group said all license applicants should meet are as follows:

Applicant must be a citizen of the United States.

Applicant must not have been convicted of a felony.

Applicant must be of good repute and moral character.

Applicant must not have violated state or federal alcoholic beverage control laws or have had a license revoked during a specified minimum period immediately preceding.

Applicant must be of a specified minimum age.

Applicant must be a legitimate party in the interest of the place to be licensed.

Applicant must not be a party to interlocking industry interests.

Applicant must be a resident of the state in which he is applying for a license for a specified minimum period.

Applicant must demonstrate adequate financial responsibility.

Applicant must not be a licensing or law enforcement official or an employe of any alcoholic control agency.

Applicant must not use alcoholic beverages to excess.

Applicant must demonstrate ability to read and write.

Applicant must demonstrate an understanding of the liquor laws and rules.

Church House Being Razed Is One Of Oldest

The church house of First Presbyterian Church which is being demolished to make way for a modern, $200,000 addition was one of the oldest in the section.

Mrs. Eleanor Warfield, formerly of LaVale, now of Baltimore, in a letter to Frank V. Carpenter, co-chairman of the building committee, offered some of its early history.

The church house was originally owned by the Semmes family and later by the Devecmons, she said, adding "this was one of the oldest structures in the section, the nearest house to it being a low, rambling one in the vicinity of what is now Smallwood Street.

"The setting was colonial with a circular driveway and an 'L' on the west side. The basement had two large fireplaces where the cooking was done. The stone steps and coping were brought from Scotland."

It appears unlikely at this time that these stones from Scotland will be incorporated in the new building, Carpenter said.

About 1880, two rooms, a staircase and halls were added to the church building, making it a two-family residence.

Mrs. Warfield said Judge David W. Sloan bought the side which has been the church house and her father, William Campbell, the other side.

Mrs. Warfield also noted that the woodwork in the structure could not be duplicated.

The new building will be 37 by 133 feet with a reinforced concrete block foundation and concrete block and stone veneer walls. Native stone will be used for the structure similar to that used when the Washington Street church was built 76 years ago.

Gen. Markey Reports To Marshall On His Inspection Of Cemeteries

Brig. Gen. D. John Markey, of Walkersville, who returned recently from a 25,000-mile air trip as a member of the Battle Monuments Commission, disclosed that he made an unscheduled mission to Korea where he inspected by request the United Nations cemetery.

Gen. Markey's trip covered Korea, Japan, China and three weeks in the Philippine Islands. Its primary purpose was to inspect the big United States cemetery near Manila and to take up certain phases of the cemetery's development. A report has already been submitted by Gen. Markey to Gen. George C. Marshall, chairman of the Battle Monuments Commission, which has charge of the overseas military cemeteries of both World Wars and of which Gen. Markey is an original member.

Several years ago, the general inspected the 21 other cemeteries of the commission in Europe, extending from England to South Africa.

Gen. Markey said the cemetery in the Philippine Islands is six miles from Manila in the Fort McKinley reservation purchased by the government 50 years ago and the highest point around Manila. He said it will be the largest of the 22 overseas cemeteries of this country, containing around 17,300 known dead and commemorating the names of over 17,000 unknown dead.

It contains about 150 acres, he said, and one of the unusual features is a park area between the memorial and the grave area where about ten trees, most of them 50 years old, of the flame variety, are planted. It will probably be the most beautiful cemetery in the world, he reported, because the year-round climate permits the trees, plants and shrubbery to be in constant color.

An important project, he said, has been to try to arrange a supply of marble from the Philippine area for the 17,300 crosses in the cemetery. The marble used in the 21 other cemeteries of the commission came from Carrara, Italy, but in an island 150 miles south of Manila, there is the only marble in quantity in the Far East. Gen. Markey said he took a crew there in a Navy seaplane to make an inspection and come away convinced that a way could be worked out to use this marble from the tiny island—named Romblon. Samples, he said, have already been approved by the Bureau of Standards.

The whole cemetery project, he said, is in the hands of administrative and technical corps headed by Capt. Fritz Nyland, of the Navy, and Col. Kulas, of the Engineers Corps. Grading, utilities, water, roads projects are under way, a $140,000 contract for cement and steel to hold the white crosses has been let and work is being carried on by a force of several hundred. One of the unusual features is an open conservatory covering four acres where are developed all plants, shrubbery and grass used at the cemetery.

Gen. Markey made a side trip to Tokyo where he conferred with Gen. Doyle Hickey, chief of staff to both Gens. MacArthur and Ridgway. It was at the request of Gen. Hickey that Markey went on a mission to inspect and report on the UN cemetery in Korea. He spent two days there and submitted a lengthy report.

Gen. Markey said he had an interesting time in Tokyo, spent two days in Hongkong and stopped at Okinawa where he found a former National Guard friend, Maj. Gen. Robert Beightler, in charge.

During his stay in Manila, he was entertained by the president at the palace and plans to try to call on him at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, where President Quirino is now undergoing treatment.

Gen. Markey met the leading Philippine and American business men at a series of luncheons and dinners, spoke at the Manila and Baguio Rotary Clubs and was the main speaker at a big dinner given by the American Legion. During his stay, there was a special trip to Corregidor with Gen. Romulo, the Foreign Minister, as guide. An interesting sidelight was Gen. Markey's meeting with Gen. Aguinaldo, the leader of the Philippines during the Spanish-American war, who lives in a large home in Cavite and is still in good health.

On the return trip to this country, Gen. Markey spent four days in Hawaiian Islands during which time the Navy gave him a special trip over Pearl Harbor. He visited the scene of the battleship Arizona upon which there are 1,102 bodies which have never been removed. There is a small memorial over this big vessel, sunk when Japan attacked in World War II.

He had conferences on his way out and on his way back with West Coast Architect Gardner Dailey, who is the commission architect for the Manila cemetery development. Gen. Markey's report to Gen. Marshall includes suggested recommendations in the report to Gen. Hickey about the Korean cemetery plans.

"Assist" From Artificial Heart Saves Human Life

PARIS —(AP)— An artificial heart has been used successfully for the first time in surgical history to give an "assist" to the normal heart in saving human life. An Italian surgeon reported on the operation at the 14th congress of the International Society of Surgeons.

Dr. A. M. Dogliotti, professor of surgery at the University of Turin, said that last August a 50-year-old patient was brought to his clinic suffering from a large tumor which squeezed the right side of the heart.

The doctor saw the man was dying, chiefly because his heart was unable to deliver enough oxygen to his body.

To aid the heart, Dogliotti substituted an artificial heart for 20 minutes while he cut out the tumor and then returned the blood to normal circulation. The patient is alive and well.

Dogliotti emphasized that he used the artificial heart only as a partial replacement of the human heart. So far, no one has reported a successful operation in which the human heart has been completely bypassed by artificial means.

Grain Freight Rate Appeal Order Signed

BOSTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — Federal Judge George C. Sweeney has signed an order permitting appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court of a Circuit Court ruling allowing equalization of freight rates on grain from the Great Lakes region to the Atlantic seaboard.

The move is the latest in a long legal fight by Baltimore, Md., and Philadelphia to retain lower rates on shipments for export. Boston, Portland, Me., and New York have been seeking equalization of the rates, claiming discrimination in favor of the southern ports.

Judge Sweeney's order calls for the northern group to appear in Supreme Court Nov. 5 to show cause why the Circuit Court's ruling should not be reversed.

A MESSAGE TO AMERICA'S MOTHERS

75% OF NATION'S CHILDREN ILL FED

BY ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

Cleveland, Dec. 29 (AP)—Three-fourths of the nation's children suffer from some degree of undernourishment, it was indicated by a nutrition study of 2,564 children disclosed today.

Not one child in the undernourished group rated top grades in strict medical examinations. Many had bow legs, knock knees, fatigue, nervous habits, poor teeth, and other faults.

Dr. Pauline Beery Mack said "scars of past poor food habits" may explain many physical ills of adults today.

Finds Few Good Diets

Dr. Mack, director of the Ellen H. Richards institute at Pennsylvania State college, reported the study to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"The percentage of children who have had their diets carefully controlled since birth is small indeed, and food habits tend to become poorer with an increase in age", she declared. "The matter of rehabilitation of children thru better nutrition, therefore, becomes almost a universal problem."

The records come from the Pennsylvania mass studies in human nutrition, started seven years ago. The children represented every economic group, but they averaged higher in economic status than the general population.

Boys Better Off

Only one-fourth were getting enough energy—enough protein, calcium, iron, phosphorus, or vitamins A, C, and B-complex—from their foods. "Enough" is the amount recommended by the National Research council.

Children less than 4 years old were in the best condition. Girls 13 to 15 had the poorest records, particularly in eating enough calories for energy, and young women 16 to 18 were only slightly better off. Boys in these two age groups did a bit better.

On the basis of medical and physical tests, "no single child in the group was rated in the optimum [best] class." The faults or flaws ranged from serious to very slight. About 60 per cent had made the desired progress in height and weight.

Most Show Deformities

But only one-quarter "showed" no skeletal deformities—slight or severe—such as head or chest malformations, or bowed legs or knocked knees, all associated with poor growth and development in early childhood.

Only about three-fourths had achieved the proper degree of skeletal maturity for the sex and age, and less than one-fourth had bones with the proper amount of minerals, it was said.

Most showed signs of healed sores of tongue and gums and excessive tooth decay, the study indicated. More than half had nervous habits, such as restlessness and nail biting. Two-thirds showed signs of undue fatigue, and more than 80 per cent had poor reflexes.

A switch to a good diet quickly overcame some troubles and brought a build-up of most blood chemicals.

Gen. Markey Reports To Marshall On His Inspection Of Cemeteries

Brig. Gen. D. John Markey, of Walkersville, who returned recently from a 25,000-mile air trip as a member of the Battle Monuments Commission, disclosed that he made an unscheduled mission to Korea where he inspected by request the United Nations cemetery.

Gen. Markey's trip covered Korea, Japan, China and three weeks in the Philippine Islands. Its primary purpose was to inspect the big United States cemetery near Manila and to take up certain phases of the cemetery's development. A report has already been submitted by Gen. Markey to Gen. George C. Marshall, chairman of the Battle Monuments Commission, which has charge of the overseas military cemeteries of both World Wars and of which Gen. Markey is an original member.

Several years ago, the general inspected the 21 other cemeteries of the commission in Europe, extending from England to South Africa.

Gen. Markey said the cemetery in the Philippine Islands is six miles from Manila in the Fort McKinley reservation purchased by the government 50 years ago and the highest point around Manila. He said it will be the largest of the 22 overseas cemeteries of this country, containing around 17,300 known dead and commemorating the names of over 17,000 unknown dead.

It contains about 150 acres, he said, and one of the unusual features is a park area between the memorial and the grave area where about ten trees, most of them 50 years old, of the flame variety, are planted. It will probably be the most beautiful cemetery in the world, he reported, because the year-round climate permits the trees, plants and shrubbery to be in constant color.

An important project, he said, has been to try to arrange a supply of marble from the Philippine area for the 17,300 crosses in the cemetery. The marble used in the 21 other cemeteries of the commission came from Carrara, Italy, but in an island 150 miles south of Manila, there is the only marble in quantity in the Far East. Gen. Markey said he took a crew there in a Navy seaplane to make an inspection and come away convinced that a way could be worked out to use this marble from the tiny island—named Romblon. Samples, he said, have already been approved by the Bureau of Standards.

The whole cemetery project, he said, is in the hands of administrative and technical corps headed by Capt. Fritz Nyland, of the Navy, and Col. Kulas, of the Engineers Corps. Grading, utilities, water, roads projects are under way, a $140,000 contract for cement and steel to hold the white crosses has been let and work is being carried on by a force of several hundred. One of the unusual features is an open conservatory covering four acres where are developed all plants, shrubbery and grass used at the cemetery.

Gen. Markey made a side trip to Tokyo where he conferred with Gen. Doyle Hickey, chief of staff to both Gens. MacArthur and Ridgway. It was at the request of Gen. Hickey that Markey went on a mission to inspect and report on the UN cemetery in Korea. He spent two days there and submitted a lengthy report.

Gen. Markey said he had an interesting time in Tokyo, spent two days in Hongkong and stopped at Okinawa where he found a former National Guard friend, Maj. Gen. Robert Beightler, in charge.

During his stay in Manila, he was entertained by the president at the palace and plans to try to call on him at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, where President Quirino is now undergoing treatment.

Gen. Markey met the leading Philippine and American business men at a series of luncheons and dinners, spoke at the Manila and Baguio Rotary Clubs and was the main speaker at a big dinner given by the American Legion. During his stay, there was a special trip to Corregidor with Gen. Romulo, the Foreign Minister, as guide. An interesting sidelight was Gen. Markey's meeting with Gen. Aguinaldo, the leader of the Philippines during the Spanish-American war, who lives in a large home in Cavite and is still in good health.

On the return trip to this country, Gen. Markey spent four days in Hawaiian Islands during which time the Navy gave him a special trip over Pearl Harbor. He visited the scene of the battleship Arizona upon which there are 1,102 bodies which have never been removed. There is a small memorial over this big vessel, sunk when Japan attacked in World War II.

He had conferences on his way out and on his way back with West Coast Architect Gardner Dailey, who is the commission architect for the Manila cemetery development. Gen. Markey's report to Gen. Marshall includes suggested recommendations in the report to Gen. Hickey about the Korean cemetery plans.

"Assist" From Artificial Heart Saves Human Life

PARIS—(AP)—An artificial heart has been used successfully for the first time in surgical history to give an "assist" to the normal heart in saving human life. An Italian surgeon reported on the operation at the 14th congress of the International Society of Surgeons.

Dr. A. M. Dogliotti, professor of surgery at the University of Turin, said that last August a 50-year-old patient was brought to his clinic suffering from a large tumor which squeezed the right side of the heart.

The doctor saw the man was dying, chiefly because his heart was unable to deliver enough oxygen to his body.

To aid the heart, Dogliotti substituted an artificial heart for 20 minutes while he cut out the tumor and then returned the blood to normal circulation. The patient is alive and well.

Dogliotti emphasized that he used the artificial heart only as a partial replacement of the human heart. So far, no one has reported a successful operation in which the human heart has been completely bypassed by artificial means.

Grain Freight Rate Appeal Order Signed

BOSTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Federal Judge George C. Sweeney has signed an order permitting appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court of a Circuit Court ruling allowing equalization of freight rates on grain from the Great Lakes region to the Atlantic seaboard.

The move is the latest in a long legal fight by Baltimore, Md., and Philadelphia to retain lower rates on shipments for export. Boston, Portland, Me., and New York have been seeking equalization of the rates, claiming discrimination in favor of the southern ports.

Judge Sweeney's order calls for the northern group to appear in Supreme Court Nov. 5 to show cause why the Circuit Court's ruling should not be reversed.

NUTRITIONAL SURVEY PROVES 3 OUT OF 4 WELL FED "BUT STARVED!"

75% OF NATION'S CHILDREN ILL FED

BY ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

Cleveland, Dec. 29 (AP)—Three-fourths of the nation's children suffer from some degree of undernourishment, it was indicated by a nutrition study of 2,364 children disclosed today.

Not one child in the undernourished group rated top grades in strict medical examinations. Many had bow legs, knock knees, fatigue, nervous habits, poor teeth, and other faults.

Dr. Pauline Beery Mack said "scars of past poor food habits" may explain many physical ills of adults today.

Finds Few Good Diets

Dr. Mack, director of the Ellen H. Richards institute at Pennsylvania State college, reported the study to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"The percentage of children who have had their diets carefully controlled since birth is small indeed, and food habits tend to become poorer with an increase in age", she declared. "The matter of rehabilitation of children thru better nutrition, therefore, becomes almost a universal problem."

The records come from the Pennsylvania mass studies in human nutrition, started seven years ago. The children represented every economic group, but they averaged higher in economic status than the general population.

Boys Better Off

Only one-fourth were getting enough energy—enough protein, calcium, iron, phosphorus, or vitamins A, C, and B-complex—from their foods. "Enough" is the amount recommended by the National Research council.

Children less than 4 years old were in the best condition. Girls 13 to 15 had the poorest records, particularly in eating enough calories for energy, and young women 16 to 18 were only slightly better off. Boys in these two age groups did a bit better.

On the basis of medical and physical tests, "no single child in the group was rated in the optimum (best) class." The faults or flaws ranged from serious to very slight. About 60 per cent had made the desired progress in height and weight.

Most Show Deformities

But only one-quarter "showed" no skeletal deformities—slight or severe—such as head or chest malformations, or bowed legs or knocked knees, all associated with poor growth and development in early childhood.

Only about three-fourths had achieved the proper degree of skeletal maturity for the sex and age, and less than one-fourth had bones with the proper amount of minerals, it was said.

Most showed signs of healed sores of tongue and gums and excessive tooth decay, the study indicated. More than half had nervous habits, such as restlessness and nail biting. Two-thirds showed signs of undue fatigue, and more than 80 per cent had poor reflexes.

A switch to a good diet quickly overcame some troubles and brought a build-up of most blood chemicals.

NEW YORK—(INS)—No wonder gypsies always look so unhappy. They move a lot.

There are, of course, greater ordeals in life than transplanting one's possessions from one place to another. But it must also be said that there are stages of chaos during moving time when no known pang or peril seems to be a worse state of conditions.

"We're having a disastrous move that will be remembered when one of the kids writes our family history in 1989, entitled "Dearer By The Half Dozen," assuming any of them learn to spell by that time. Can see a chapter that starts out something like this:

"One of the most trying periods in the life of the late and resoundingly unlamented guvnor's career came in September, back in the depression year of '51. The guvnor came down with an acute case of conscience over the way he had been goldbricking at INS, so he decided to move closer to the office.

"We lived then at the corner of 96th and Fifth Avenue, which everyone knows was leveled the following Christmas by a Z-bomb produced by Dennis' chemical set and is now a rocket-launching site—Nick Kenny Field. The guvnor felt he should maintain closer contact with the office (in fact he had received several memos of this nature from the managing editor, ending ". . . or else.")

"So he moved downtown, from the ninth floor to the sixth. We all squawked mightily. I personally remember crying like an inconsolable waterpistol at the thought of leaving the only home I had ever known, the dear old ninth floor. Anny and Addie, without whom we could not have survived childhood, predicted bad cess to anyone who moved down, instead of up. But Mr. Kaplan said the guvnor was a lucky bum to be able to move any way, even down.

"The painters, scrapers, carpenters, electricians, congoleum-layers, rug-men swarmed through the place. Deborah, then three and unmarried, though the guvnor had her working in a jute mill run by a man named Conover, fell in love for the first time—with a painter named Joe Schultz, who had fought Tommy Loughran. They eloped.

"Nearly everybody was mad at the guvnor, including Gov. Dewey. The guvnor kept standing helplessly in the middle of the chaos, making incoherent sounds. Mama seemed mad enough at him for lousing up the new bedroom wallpaper while hanging a mirror to take a baseball bat to him, but she couldn't find a bat. Nobody could find anything. Everything was in unmarked barrels, and what ever we did find we couldn't lift. Or it wouldn't fit.

"Mama knew exactly where everything was to go but the only way she could get it there was to do it herself. This called for a certain amount of debate between mama and the guvnor, one exchange causing a paint-bucket fire that spread so quickly and evenly that mama changed her decoration plans and decided to leave that room black.

"What with the tramping in and out of the place, and the army of painters painting each other and the carpenters absently nailing us to the walls now and then, the guvnor didn't help matters one little bit — to use mama's vivid

Parsons Fire Company Buys Service Station

Business May Defray Expenses Of Unit

PARSONS, W. Va.—Earl Corcoran, chief of the Parsons Volunteer Fire Department, announced yesterday that the firemen have purchased the Esso Service Station, formerly owned by the Gillis Motor Company at an undisclosed sum. The garage was sold at a public sale a few months ago for $26,945.

The firemen plan to operate the gas, oil and greast section of the garage with Darl Stalnaker, assistant chief, as operator. Stalnaker is the former owner and operator of the Gulf Service Station and teen-age center of Parsons.

The two-story brick building will be completely used by the firemen with the exception of the apartment, which will be rented in the near future. The large show room will be utilized by the firemen and the large workshop will be used to house the fire equipment. All the equipment and parts not needed in the garage will be sold and the money used toward payment of their new business.

Corcoran said that if the garage proved successful that after five years the public will not be asked to contribute to the fire department.

The garage, after that time, is expected to support the fire department and if the garage is successful, the department will also have three paid firemen on duty 24 hours per day.

The firemen will sponsor the Queen's Ball Thursday evening and will also soon hold their second Porch Light Parade, money to be used for the balance of $3,000 owed on the new ambulance recently purchased for $7,000.

Proceeds from both events will be used in the regular funds and will not be used in connection with the new business of the garage.

Dixon Ponders Ways To Save Fence From Speeding Drivers

KEYSER, W. Va. — James Dixon, clerk of Mineral County Circuit Court, is wondering how to solve the problem of keeping a fence around his property on State Route 42, where he resides in Sulphur.

Twice in the past three weeks, part of his fence has been torn out by automobiles and trucks that left the highway. The fence has been ripped out seven times in the past year.

In one case recently, a car with several men in it, left the highway and went deep into his property beside his house. The men remained until morning and then removed the car, after being told they must replace the fence. And they did that later. This was one case in which Dixon could get the persons who caused the destruction before they got away.

The property is located along a curve on the highway and drivers, especially at night lose control of their cars or are unable to make the curve and go through the fence.

Several weeks ago, Elk Garden officials started to making arrests of speeding drivers both day and night, but after leaving Elk Garden or prior to reaching it, speeding motorists cannot negotiate the curve and Dixon's property suffers damage.

Dixon said an old garage, about 300 feet from his home, has been struck so many times that it is just about completely destroyed, and what little of the garage remains is ready to collapse.

Braves Jolt Brooklyn Again; Ridgeley-AHS Clash Tonight

Braves Slice Dodgers' Lead To Half-Game

Nichols Chalks Up 4-3 Win, Campanella's Ejection Is Costly

By JOE REICHLER

BOSTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — Baby-faced Chet Nichols pitched the aroused Boston Braves to a dramatic 4-3 victory over Brooklyn today to slice the Dodgers' first-place National League lead to a half-game over the pressing New York Giants.

Chet Nichols

The Braves pushed the winning run in the eighth inning on singles by Bob Addis and Sam Jethroe, and an infield grounder by Earl Torgeson.

So heatedly did the Dodgers protest plate umpire Frank Dascoli's decision on the winning run that it resulted in the ejection of catcher Roy Campanella and Coach Cookie Lavagetto and the exile of the entire Dodger bench with the exception of Manager Charlie Dressen and Coach Jake Pitler.

Campanella's eviction was to prove costly to the Dodgers' hopes of gaining a tie in the ninth. With Pee Wee Reese third and only one out following his double and Jackie Robinson's grounder, Wayne Terwilliger came to bat in Campy's cleanup spot. The latter bounced out without advancing Reese. Nichols then squashed the dazed Dodgers' last hopes by fanning Andy Pafko.

Nichols a 20-year-old freshman southpaw from Pawtucket, R. I., hurled a stouthearted six-hitter as he outdueled Preacher Roe, the 33-year-old ace of the Dodgers' mound corps.

The defeat was disastrous for Roe, whose southpaw slants were solved for 10 hits. Not only did he go down to his third defeat of the season against 22 triumphs, but he saw his hopes of bettering Fred Fitzsimmons' National League pitching record blasted. Fitz, now a Giant coach, hung up a 16-2 mark with Brooklyn in 1940. Roe's 10-game winning streak also came to a sudden end. His last loss was July 15 to Cincinnati.

The loss pared Brooklyn's once overpowering 13½ game margin over the Giants to a mere five percentage points. The Dodgers have won 94 and lost 57 for a .623 percentage. The Giants, who have won the same number, have dropped 58 for a .618 percentage. Box:

Fort Hill Bees Defeat Silents By Score 26-20

Chalk Up Winning TD In Closing Minutes

ROMNEY, W. Va., Sept. 27—Fort Hill High School's "B" gridders of Cumberland rallied in the last four minutes of play today to eke out a 26-20 decision over the West Virginia School for the Deaf in the locals' opening game of the season here today.

Norman Cage played an outstanding role in the triumph as he returned the kickoff to the mid-field stripe after the Silents had taken a 20-19 lead and set up the winning score by completing two passes to Howard Gilpin that advanced the ball deep into West Virginia Deaf territory.

The Fort Hill team was composed of 15 members of the varsity squad.

Charles Tackett accounted for 14 of the losers' points. In the first period, Rogers recovered a fumble on the 40 and after the Silents moved to the 10, Tackett skirted left end for the td. In the third stanza Tackett returned the kickoff for 80 yards and a score and in the final stanza, Maxie Pyles intercepted a Fort Hill pass on his own 30 and ran it back to the 45, Tackett heaved a long pass to Hugh Boyd who caught it on the 10 and went over from there. Tackett scored two extra points.

John McVicker racked up two of the Sentinels four six-pointers. On one occasion he ran 35 yards to pave the way to a touchdown. Bill Steppe recovered a Fort Hill fumble over the goal line for a td and Ronald Kirby accounted for the other tally. Kirby and McVicker registered the extra points.

Sammy Brown, Hugh Boyd, Dave Bower, Roy Rogers, Charles Tackett and Jack Riggleman were the Silents' best bets.

Long, Statler Will Captain Camper Team

Hawks Lone Unbeaten, Untied Team; Two PVC Games Set For Today

Allegany High School's gridders will play host to Ridgeley High School, its across-the-Potomac neighbor, tonight at 8 o'clock at the local stadium.

It will mark the 12th meeting of the schools on the gridiron with Allegany holding a big edge in past games with nine wins against a single loss and one tie game. Ridgeley's lone win was in 1946. The Blackhawks held Fort Hill to a scoreless tie the same season.

Ridgeley Is Undefeated

At the present time Ridgeley stands as the only undefeated and untied team of the 16 functioning in the tri-state district. Coach Ralph Poling's eleven tripped the Alumni, 20-19, and Circleville, 44-6, and expects to give Coach Bob Pence's Campers a real tussle tonight.

Allegany opened with a 36-6 decision over Beall but lost to the Alumni last Saturday, 7-0.

Bruce Price, left tackle, is not expected to start for the Campers on account of injuries, and he will be replaced by Ken McGraw, offensive tackle, and Sam Smith, defensive tackle. Other boys who were bruised in the Alumni tilt, Sisk, Hook, Horton and Beerman and Widdows who missed last week's game, will be in action tonight, according to Pence.

Co-Captains Named

George "Brindle" Long, 139-pound center and line backer-up, and Lance Statler, guard, will be Allegany's co-captains.

Officials will be John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, referee; John Shelton, umpire; Charles Bolyard, head linesman, and John Blough, field judge.

Probable starting. Lineups:

RIDGELEY—C. Phillips, le; Taylor, lt.; White, lg.; Whetsel, center; Magruder, rg.; E. Moore, rt.; A. Abe, re.; L. Loy, qb.; Maiers, lhb.; Burke Baker, rhb., and Decker, fb.

Two Potomac Valley Congerence games are on tap for this afternoon at Petersburg and Romney.

Johnny Paugh's Moorefield Yellow Jackets (2-1) will tackle Jesse Riggleman's Petersburg Vikings (1-1) on the latter's field. It will mark the first conference start for each eleven. Moorefield and Romney shared the championship last year.

Dick McElwee's Romney High Pioneers will play hosts to Franklin High School today. Romney beat Berkeley Springs in a conference game and battled Charles Town to a tie. Franklin provided a big surprise last week by holding Keyser to a scoreless tie after losing a 13-0 decision to Lee High School at Staunton, Va.

Coach Guy Propst's Circleville High School Indians will battle Thomas High Scvhool of Tucker County today at Circleville, W. Va.

Westmont at Bedford, Pa. (night).

Cincinnati Gets NL Headquarters Under New Prexy

CINCINNATI, Sept. 27 (AP)—Warren C. Giles will become president of the National League Oct. 16 and will establish headquarters in Cincinnati.

That was determined today when Giles, president and general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, accepted the invitation of other clubs in the circuit to take the post.

He will succeed Ford Frick, who last week was elected baseball commissioner. It was understood Giles' salary will be $55,000 a year.

The 55-year-old Cincinnatian's term of office will end Dec. 31, 1955, he said.

Giles, a resident of Cincinnati for 15 years, said he would accept if league headquarters could be moved here from New York. That was approved.

Giles came here from the Rochester Club of the International League in 1936, becoming general manager. In 1936, he also was made president.

Giles was born May 28, 1896, in Tiskilwa, Ill.

Gable Paul, his assistant for many years, is expected to succeed him as head man of the Reds.

Duke Plays Pitt

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27—(AP)—A crowd of 30,000 is expected in Pitt Stadium Saturday when the Pitt Panthers kick off their 1951 gridiron season against the Blue Devils of Duke University.

The Blue Devil squad of 45 will arrive by plane tomorrow and hold a practice session in the stadium.

Nats Put Bosox Out Of Running For AL Pennant

Washington Blasts Three Hurlers, 8-6

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — Washington erased the Boston Red Sox from American League pennant contention today, blasting Chuck Stobbs, Harry Taylor and Willard Nixon for 11 hits and an 8-6 victory.

The defeat virtually assured Cleveland of second place, for the only way Boston now could tie for the runner-up spot would be to sweep a five-game series with the league-leading New York Yankees while the Indians lost their remaining two games with Detroit.

Boston had a flicker of hope in the ninth inning when, trailing by two runs, Johnny Pesky walked with one out. But Ted Williams hit a double-play grounder to Cass Michaels at second base and once again the Red Sox were frustrated in a pennant bid. Box:

Six Policemen Called To Guard Boston Umpires

Robinson Splits Two Door Panels

BOSTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Six policemen were rushed to guard the locked door of the Braves Field umpires' dressing room today after a special policeman reported a pounding and kicking Jackie Robinson split two of its panels while venting his Brooklyn Dodger rage on Umpire Frank Dascoli.

Robinson, and many of the other Dodgers, engaged in about the most uproarious baseball rhubarb of the year after Dascoli had ruled Bob Addis had slid home with the run that gave the Boston Braves a 4-3 win. It cut the Dodgers' first place lead over the New York Giants to a half game.

Protests Violently

As soon as Dascoli made his call, catcher Roy Campanella protested in violent fashion. Campanella was joined by Coach Cookie Lavagetto and Dascoli ordered both off the field.

When the non-competitors on the Brooklyn bench chorused their opinions, shortly after, Dascoli ordered it cleared. The wholesale ejection included all but Manager Charlie Dressen, Coach Jake Pitler and bat boy Stan Strull.

When the game ended and the four umpires rushed to their room, Campanella in street attire was awaiting them.

The special ofifcer said Campanella did not spare his language while resuming his argument with

Bocetti May Not Play

LEXINGTON, Va., Sept. 27 (AP) — Washington and Lee's Generals may have to play the University of Maryland here Saturday without the services of star quarterback Gil Bocetti.

Bocetti, an All-Southern Conference ace, may miss the battle due to an injured knee, received in last week's 25-7 conquest of Furman. In the Furman game, Bocetti pitched two touchdown passes.

Braves Slice Dodgers' Lead To Half-Game

Nichols Chalks Up 4-3 Win, Campanella's Ejection Is Costly

By JOE REICHLER

BOSTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — Baby-faced Chet Nichols pitched the aroused Boston Braves to a dramatic 4-3 victory over Brooklyn today to slice the Dodgers' first-place National League lead to a half-game over the pressing New York Giants.

Chet Nichols
Braves

The Braves pushed the winning run in the eighth inning on singles by Bob Addis and Sam Jethroe, and an infield grounder by Earl Torgeson.

So heatedly did the Dodgers protest plate umpire Frank Dascoli's decision on the winning run that it resulted in the ejection of catcher Roy Campanella and Coach Cookie Lavagetto and the exile of the entire Dodger bench with the exception of Manager Charlie Dressen and Coach Jake Pitler.

Campanella's eviction was to prove costly to the Dodgers' hopes of gaining a tie in the ninth. With Pee Wee Reese third and only one out following his double and Jackie Robinson's grounder, Wayne Terwilliger came to bat in Campy's cleanup spot. The latter bounced out without advancing Reese. Nichols then squashed the dazed Dodgers' last hopes by fanning Andy Pafko.

Nichols a 20-year-old freshman southpaw from Pawtucket, R. I., hurled a stouthearted six-hitter as he outdueled Preacher Roe, the 33-year-old ace of the Dodgers' mound corps.

The defeat was disastrous for Roe, whose southpaw slants were solved for 10 hits. Not only did he go down to his third defeat of the season against 22 triumphs, but he saw his hopes of bettering Fred Fitzsimmons' National League pitching record blasted. Fitz, now a Giant coach, hung up a 16-2 mark with Brooklyn in 1940. Roe's 10-game winning streak also came to a sudden end. His last loss was July 15 to Cincinnati.

The loss pared Brooklyn's once overpowering 13½ game margin over the Giants to a mere five percentage points. The Dodgers have won 94 and lost 57 for a .623 percentage. The Giants, who have won the same number, have dropped 58 for a .618 percentage. Box:

Fort Hill Bees Defeat Silents By Score 26-20

Chalk Up Winning TD In Closing Minutes

ROMNEY, W. Va., Sept. 27—Fort Hill High School's "B" gridders of Cumberland rallied in the last four minutes of play today to eke out a 26-20 decision over the West Virginia School for the Deaf in the locals' opening game of the season here today.

Norman Cage played an outstanding role in the triumph as he returned the kickoff to the mid-field stripe after the Silents had taken a 20-19 lead and set up the winning score by completing two passes to Howard Gilpin that advanced the ball deep into West Virginia Deaf territory.

The Fort Hill team was composed of 15 members of the varsity squad.

Charles Tackett accounted for 14 of the losers' points. In the first period, Rogers recovered a fumble on the 40 and after the Silents moved to the 10, Tackett skirted left end for the td. In the third stanza Tackett returned the kickoff for 80 yards and a score and in the final stanza, Maxie Pyles intercepted a Fort Hill pass on his own 30 and ran it back to the 45. Tackett heaved a long pass to Hugh Boyd who caught it on the 10 and went over from there. Tackett scored two extra points.

John McVicker racked up two of the Sentinels four six-pointers. On one occasion he ran 35 yards to pave the way to a touchdown. Bill Steppe recovered a Fort Hill fumble over the goal line for a td and Ronald Kirby accounted for the other tally. Kirby and McVicker registered the extra points.

Sammy Brown, Hugh Boyd, Dave Bower, Roy Rogers, Charles Tackett and Jack Riggleman were the Silents' best bets.

Long, Statler Will Captain Camper Team

Hawks Lone Unbeaten, Untied Team; Two PVC Games Set For Today

Allegany High School's gridders will play host to Ridgeley High School, its across-the-Potomac neighbor, tonight at 8 o'clock at the local stadium.

It will mark the 12th meeting of the schools on the gridiron with Allegany holding a big edge in past games with nine wins against a single loss and one tie game. Ridgeley's lone win was in 1946. The Blackhawks held Fort Hill to a scoreless tie the same season.

Ridgeley Is Undefeated

At the present time Ridgeley stands as the only undefeated and untied team of the 16 functioning in the tri-state district. Coach Ralph Poling's eleven tripped the Alumni, 20-19, and Circleville, 44-6, and expects to give Coach Bob Pence's Campers a real tussle tonight.

Allegany opened with a 36-6 decision over Beall but lost to the Alumni last Saturday, 7-0.

Bruce Price, left tackle, is not expected to start for the Campers on account of injuries, and he will be replaced by Ken McGraw, offensive tackle, and Sam Smith, defensive tackle. Other boys who were bruised in the Alumni tilt, Sisk, Hook, Horton and Beerman and Widdows who missed last week's game, will be in action tonight, according to Pence.

Co-Captains Named

George "Brindle" Long, 139-pound center and line backer-up, and Lance Statler, guard, will be Allegany's co-captains.

Officials will be John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, referee; John Shelton, umpire; Charles Bolyard, head linesman, and John Blough, field judge.

Probable starting. Lineups:

Two PVC Games Today

Two Potomac Valley Congerence games are on tap for this afternoon at Petersburg and Romney.

Johnny Paugh's Moorefield Yellow Jackets (2-1) will tackle Jesse Riggleman's Petersburg Vikings (1-1) on the latter's field. It will mark the first conference start for each eleven. Moorefield and Romney shared the championship last year.

Dick McElwee's Romney High Pioneers will play hosts to Franklin High School today. Romney beat Berkeley Springs in a conference game and battled Charles Town to a tie. Franklin provided a big surprise last week by holding Keyser to a scoreless tie after losing a 13-0 decision to Lee High School at Staunton, Va.

Coach Guy Propst's Circleville High School Indians will battle Thomas High Scvhool of Tucker County today at Circleville, W. Va.

Westmont at Bedford, Pa. (night).

Westminster at Hagerstown (night).

Games Set For Saturday

Cincinnati Gets NL Headquarters Under New Prexy

CINCINNATI, Sept. 27 (AP)—Warren C. Giles will become president of the National League Oct. 16 and will establish headquarters in Cincinnati.

That was determined today when Giles, president and general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, accepted the invitation of other clubs in the circuit to take the post.

He will succeed Ford Frick, who last week was elected baseball commissioner. It was understood Giles' salary will be $55,000 a year.

The 55-year-old Cincinnatian's term of office will end Dec. 31, 1955, he said.

Giles, a resident of Cincinnati for 15 years, said he would accept if league headquarters could be moved here from New York. That was approved.

Giles came here from the Rochester Club of the International League in 1936, becoming general manager. In 1936, he also was made president.

Giles was born May 28, 1896, in Tiskilwa, Ill.

Washington Blasts Three Hurlers, 8-6

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — Washington erased the Boston Red Sox from American League pennant contention today, blasting Chuck Stobbs, Harry Taylor and Willard Nixon for 11 hits and an 8-6 victory.

The defeat virtually assured Cleveland of second place, for the only way Boston now could tie for the runner-up spot would be to sweep a five-game series with the league-leading New York Yankees while the Indians lost their remaining two games with Detroit.

Boston had a flicker of hope in the ninth inning when, trailing by two runs, Johnny Pesky walked with one out. But Ted Williams hit a double-play grounder to Cass Michaels at second base and once again the Red Sox were frustrated in a pennant bid. Box:

The third game of the Bi-State Baseball League's championship series between Westvaco and the Hyndman Firemen will be staged tomorrow at Memorial Park, Westernport, at 3:30 p. m.

Thompson Davis and Harvey will be the umpires.

Westvaco has won the first two games of the best-of-five series. A victory on Saturday would give the Paparemakers the title.

Keller Bags Interstate Swat Title

Moorefield Slugger Hit .415 For Season

Bob Keller, first sacker of the Moorefield American Legion's championship team, won the batting championship of the Interstate Baseball League for the 1951 season with an average of .415, according to final averages released by Roy Clites of Hyndman, secretary of the circuit.

Keller pounded out 44 hits in 106 trips to the plate to annex the swat title.

Jim Gaffney of the Cumberland Moose was the runner-up with .398.

"Huck" Seymour of Moorefield tied Gaffney for home run hitting honors, each player banging five

Six Policemen Called To Guard Boston Umpires

Robinson Splits Two Door Panels

BOSTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Six policemen were rushed to guard the locked door of the Braves Field umpires' dressing room today after a special policeman reported a pounding and kicking Jackie Robinson split two of its panels while venting his Brooklyn Dodger rage on Umpire Frank Dascoli.

Robinson, and many of the other Dodgers, engaged in about the most uproarious baseball rhubarb of the year after Dascoli had ruled Bob Addis had slid home with the run that gave the Boston Braves a 4-3 win. It cut the Dodgers' first place lead over the New York Giants to a half game.

Protests Violently

As soon as Dascoli made his call, catcher Roy Campanella protested in violent fashion. Campanella was joined by Coach Cookie Lavagetto and Dascoli ordered both off the field.

When the non-competitors on the Brooklyn bench chorused their opinions, shortly after, Dascoli ordered it cleared. The wholesale ejection included all but Manager Charlie Dressen, Coach Jake Pitler and bat boy Stan Strull.

When the game ended and the four umpires rushed to their room, Campanella in street attire was awaiting them.

The special oficer said Campanella did not spare his language while resuming his argument with

Bocetti May Not Play

LEXINGTON, Va., Sept. 27 (AP) — Washington and Lee's Generals may have to play the University of Maryland here Saturday without the services of star quarterback Gil Bocetti.

Bocetti, an All-Southern Conference ace, may miss the battle due to an injured knee, received in last week's 25-7 conquest of Furman. In the Furman game, Bocetti pitched two touchdown passes.

Jockey Awarded $750 In Damages

Richmond Wins Suit At Charles Town

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 27 (AP)—Jockey Edwin C. Richmond, who sued the Charles Town Jockey Club and a track guard for $10,000 today was awarded $750 in damages by Federal Judge William E. Baker.

Richmond, in his suit against the club and guard Dewey Ambrose, charged he was falsely arrested, mistreated and suffered personal injuries and humiliation.

Ambrose testified there was no roughness when Richmond was escorted from the Charles Town Race Track December 8, 1949. Carl Day, city policeman, gave similar testimony. He said there was no intention of even arresting Richmond until the jockey spat on officers and cursed them.

Judge Baker ruled that "x x x steward A. R. Winters had the right to order Richmond ejected from the property and that Ambrose Day had the right to use such force as reasonably necessary to eject Richmond from" the club property.

"x x x the subsequent action by Ambrose and Day in removing Richmond to the city jail x x x amounted to an arrest for which they and their employer were responsible. The justice of the peace decided that this arrest was without merit and dismissed the case. I, therefore, find in favor of the plaintiff x x x," the judge's decision said.

The judge fixed Richmond's damages at $750.

Council for the Jockey Club and Ambrose reserved the right to make any motions they deemed desirable within the 10-day limitation period.

Winters testified yesterday he ordered Richmond off the track because he heard the jockey plotting to fix a race in July of 1949.

Saddler Gets Physical

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (AP) — Featherweight Champion Sandy Saddler, who retained his title by stopping Willie Pep last night, showed up at the army's pre-induction center today for his pre-draft physical and mental examinations.

The 25-year-old Saddler is single. He said he served as a navy seaman second class, at Great Lakes, Ill., from Aug. 29 to Sept. 14, 1944, receiving an honorable discharge.

The slender negro said "If I'm found qualified and I'm called, I'll go right ahead."

Six Policemen

Dascoli and, after the umpires managed to lock themselves inside their room, the still uniformed Robinson cut loose with his battering tactics while shrieking.

At first none of the four umpires would talk but later Dascoli explained: "Campanella threw his glove on the ground. That calls for an automatic ejection."

After the last Dodger reached the dressing room, Dressen barred all visitors for more than 20 minutes. That interval gave all hands ample time to cool off.

"Addis never touched the plate, Campanella blocked him perfectly," Dressen told writers in calm and collected fashion.

"But you can't talk to that Dascoli. We've had trouble with him all season, as far back as our spring training games."

"Campanella didn't touch or cuss Dascoli," Dressen continued. "Roy had a perfect right to protest such a lousy decision and so did Cookie Lavagetto. Why that's the first time Cookie has been kicked out of a game in 20 years."

After discussing the disputed play and the resulting confusion in unexcited fashion, Dressen took the setback in stride.

"It just means we have to fight harder than ever in our last three games with the Phillies," he said "It's tough to lose such a vital game this way but we're not going to let it hurt us."

"We're still going with Carl Erskine tomorrow night in Philadelphia and, maybe, Don Newcombe Saturday. Preacher Roe will start again in the last game Sunday."

To a man, the Braves upheld Dascoli's decision. "Addis slid between Campanella's legs without being tagged," Manager Tommy Holmes explained. "I had a perfect view of the play from the third base coaching box."

Jockey Awarded $750 In Damages

Richmond Wins Suit At Charles Town

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 27 (AP)—Jockey Edwin C. Richmond, who sued the Charles Town Jockey Club and a track guard for $10,000 today was awarded $750 in damages by Federal Judge William E. Baker.

Richmond, in his suit against the club and guard Dewey Ambrose, charged he was falsely arrested, mistreated and suffered personal injuries and humiliation.

Ambrose testified there was no roughness when Richmond was escorted from the Charles Town Race Track December 8, 1949. Carl Day, city policeman, gave similar testimony. He said there was no intention of even arresting Richmond until the jockey spat on officers and cursed them.

Judge Baker ruled that "x x x steward A. R. Winters had the right to order Richmond ejected from the property and that Ambrose Day had the right to use such force as reasonably necessary to eject Richmond from" the club property.

"x x x the subsequent action by Ambrose and Day in removing Richmond to the city jail x x x amounted to an arrest for which they and their employer were responsible. The justice of the peace decided that this arrest was without merit and dismissed the case. I, therefore, find in favor of the plaintiff x x x," the judge's decision said.

The judge fixed Richmond's damages at $750.

Council for the Jockey Club and Ambrose reserved the right to make any motions they deemed desirable within the 10-day limitation period.

Winters testified yesterday he ordered Richmond off the track because he heard the jockey plotting to fix a race in July of 1949.

Saddler Gets Physical

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (AP) — Featherweight Champion Sandy Saddler, who retained his title by stopping Willie Pep last night, showed up at the army's pre-induction center today for his pre-draft physical and mental examinations.

The 25-year-old Saddler is single. He said he served as a navy seaman second class, at Great Lakes, Ill., from Aug. 29 to Sept. 14, 1944, receiving an honorable discharge.

The slender negro said "If I'm found qualified and I'm called, I'll go right ahead."

Six Policemen

Dascoli and, after the umpires managed to lock themselves inside their room, the still uniformed Robinson cut loose with his battering tactics while shrieking.

At first none of the four umpires would talk but later Dascoli explained: "Campanella threw his glove on the ground. That calls for an automatic ejection."

After the last Dodger reached the dressing room, Dressen barred all visitors for more than 20 minutes. That interval gave all hands ample time to cool off.

"Addis never touched the plate, Campanella blocked him perfectly," Dressen told writers in calm and collected fashion.

"But you can't talk to that Dascoli. We've had trouble with him all season, as far back as our spring training games."

"Campanella didn't touch or cuss Dascoli," Dressen continued. "Roy had a perfect right to protest such a lousy decision and so did Cookie Lavagetto. Why that's the first time Cookie has been kicked out of a game in 20 years."

After discussing the disputed play and the resulting confusion in unexcited fashion, Dressen took the setback in stride.

"It just means we have to fight harder than ever in our last three games with the Phillies," he said "It's tough to lose such a vital game this way but we're not going to let it hurt us."

"We're still going with Carl Erskine tomorrow night in Philadelphia and, maybe, Don Newcombe Saturday. Preacher Roe will start again in the last game Sunday."

To a man, the Braves upheld Dascoli's decision. "Addis slid between Campanella's legs without being tagged," Manager Tommy Holmes explained. "I had a perfect view of the play from the third base coaching box."

Oedipus Is Victor In Steeplechase

ELMONT, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP)—Mrs. Ogden Phipps' Oedipus, carrying top weight of 158 pounds, took the lead at the final fence and won handily in the 37th running of the Broad Hollow Steeplechase Handicap at Belmont Park today.

The 5-year-old son of Blue Larkspur-Be Like Mom let Rokeby Stables' Genancoke set all the pace of the two mile chase and then came on powerfully in the run to the final fence to win by seven lengths going away.

Justin Funkhouser's Palaja, 60-1, longest price on hte board, came with a rush in the stretch to take the place away from Genancoke by two lengths.

Sanford Stud Farm's Fulton, even money choice, faltered in the climactic stages to finish fourth.

Albert Foot rode Oedipus, who was timed in 3:43, three seconds off the track mark.

The victory was worth $8,400 to Mrs. Phipps, whose horses are trained by her brother, George H. (Pete) Bostwick, the former gentleman rider who now confines his talents to high goal polo.

PASS MASTER

Otto Graham is one good reason why the Cleveland Browns have been a top team ever since they joined the pro football loop. His passing has been consistently sensational and his field generalship is little short of uncanny. But there's nothing uncanny about Otto's choice of anti-freeze for his car. He picked the best! Otto says, "There's nothing like 'Prestone' anti-freeze for my money! One shot lasts all winter, so I put it in and forget about it. I know I'm safe from freeze-ups and boilovers—no matter how cold or warm it gets from week to week. I know of no other anti-freeze that gives the same degree of protection. 'Prestone' brand is guaranteed!"

You're SET
One shot lasts all winter!

You're SAFE
No rust...no foam...no freeze...no failure!

You're SURE
No other anti-freeze gives the same degree of protection!

Oedipus Is Victor In Steeplechase

ELMONT, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP)—Mrs. Ogden Phipps' Oedipus, carrying top weight of 158 pounds, took the lead at the final fence and won handily in the 37th running of the Broad Hollow Steeplechase Handicap at Belmont Park today.

The 5-year-old son of Blue Larkspur-Be Like Mom let Rokeby Stables' Genancoke set all the pace of the two mile chase and then came on powerfully in the run to the final fence to win by seven lengths going away.

Justin Funkhouser's Palaja, 60-1, longest price on hte board, came with a rush in the stretch to take the place away from Genancoke by two lengths.

Sanford Stud Farm's Fulton, even money choice, faltered in the climactic stages to finish fourth.

Albert Foot rode Oedipus, who was timed in 3:43, three seconds off the track mark.

The victory was worth $8,400 to Mrs. Phipps, whose horses are trained by her brother, George H. (Pete) Bostwick, the former gentleman rider who now confines his talents to high goal polo.

Two Games Carded In Soccer League

Accident High School, winner of its first two starts, will play its third soccer game of the season in the Garrett County League today when it meets Kitzmiller High at Accident.

Oakland High School will play host to Grantsville in the other game carded today in the five-school circuit.

PASS MASTER

Otto Graham is one good reason why the Cleveland Browns have been a top team ever since they joined the pro football loop. His passing has been consistently sensational and his field generalship is little short of uncanny. But there's nothing uncanny about Otto's choice of anti-freeze for his car. He picked the best! Otto says, "There's nothing like 'Prestone' anti-freeze for my money! One shot lasts all winter, so I put it in and forget about it. I know I'm safe from freeze-ups and boilovers—no matter how cold or warm it gets from week to week. I know of no other anti-freeze that gives the same degree of protection. 'Prestone' brand is guaranteed!"

You're SET
One shot lasts all winter!

You're SAFE
No rust...no foam...no freeze...no failure!

You're SURE
No other anti-freeze gives the same degree of protection!

KEEPING UP WITH # HOLLYWOOD
By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 27 (INS) — The slim, childish looking Julie Harris, who was such a Broadway hit in "Member Of The Wedding," joins Ethel Waters and Master Brandon De Witt at Columbia.

This won't, however, be until next after Julie appears on Broadway in John Van Druten's new play, "I Am A Camera" — what a title!

Stanley Kramer won't produce "Member Of The Wedding" until Julie is free of her Broadway commitment. She doesn't open in the Van Druten play until Christmas time, so she won't arrive in Hollywood until spring at least, but I am glad she is to play the role she created.

Join Darryl Zanuck and see the world. He's got a company in the Argentines, one in Africa, one in Trieste, and now he's making plans to have "King Of The Khyber Rifles" filmed in India next year.

One of 20th Century Fox's best directors, Henry Hathaway, has been put on the picture, with Frank Rosenberg named as producer.

Alan Ladd

When an actor has grossed millions and millions of dollars for a company, naturally, a studio parts with him with reluctance. It's estimated that Alan Ladd's films during the ten years he's been with Paramount have grossed fifty million dollars.

The studio is reluctant to part with him, and so a deal is being readied for Alan to make one picture a year at Para, in addition to his two at Warners.

Alan is in an entirely different frame of mind than he was when he decided to pull up stakes and leave the company where he was the top star for so long. He's very pleased that he has Jean Arthur as his leading lady in "Shane." Well, all I can say is he's popular — and that's the understatement of the year.

There's a very remarkable two reeler now being narrated by Ethel Barrymore, written by Aldous Huxley and photographed by a Greek photographer named Hoyningen-Huene.

It's called "Daphni, Virgin Of The Golden Laurels," and it shows a mural of a 12th century church in Athens, which was built on the former site of the temple of Apollo. The narration is the story of the Virgin.

The photographer (and I won't attempt to spell his name again) is in Mexico now with Huxley's narration, which he is having translated into Spanish, French and German. This two reeler is intended for the art theaters, where the public will have a chance to see it.

Listen to the London gossip and you'll hear that Elizabeth Taylor is really in love with Michael Wilding, the British actor who seems to fasinate our American beauties. Marlene Dietrich is another who fell for the charming Mike.

Liz is dating absolutely no one else. In fact, she may not come back here after finishing "Ivanhoe" until MGM calls her, because she doesn't want to leave him.

I hear there's a chance that Wilding will soon return to MGM to make another film — he did "The Law And Lady Loverly" with Greer Garson. And the idea of his being in Hollywood will make Liz very happy, indeed.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Any edition Jack Haley will be a grandpop. His daughter, Gloria (in private life Mrs. Buddy Bregman) is just waiting to go into the hospital.

I was interested to see the Ray Millands' beautiful house nearly completed. I noticed Cobina Wright, Charlie Brackett, Mildred Ginsberg, Clifton Webb and Mabelle taking a look at it too.

Talked with Harry Crocker who told me that Jackie Frost, the pretty English actress, is due in a few days. She's such an attractive girl she'll probably be signed by one of our studios.

David Brian dropped 20 pounds before reporting at Warners for the Joan Crawford picture, "This Woman Is Dangerous."

Rod Cameron is sporting his first mustache and it's tres becoming.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Epidemic Intelligence Service Is Organized

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — A potential new defense against germ warfare was set up by the Public Health Service yesterday.

The agency organized an "epidemic intelligence service" to help investigate disease outbreaks that are beyond the control of state and local health departments.

Twenty-one new Public Health Service medical officers were assigned posts in the new unit, at stations in 12 states. They recently completed an eight-week training course at the Atlanta headquarters of the agency's communicable disease center.

Game Birds Are Plentiful In Maryland

BALTIMORE, Sept. 27 (AP)—Maryland hunters should have a better-than-average season in the field, Ernest A. Vaughn, director of the State Game and Inland Fish Department, said today.

Vaughn said reports from sportsmen, game wardens and farmers who have suffered crop damage, indicate that wild game did well during the breeding season.

The United States Fish and Wildlife Service has reported that waterfowl had an exceptional breeding season, and increasing numbers of ducks and geese are winging south.

Vaughn gave this detailed report:

QUAIL—Best breeding season in years. Covies have even been seen in Garrett and Allegany Counties, where they seldom are reported.

PHEASANTS — The department has received the first report of crop damage since Vaughn has been in office. This was from a farmer in Carroll County who said pheasants were destroying his tomatoes.

GROUSE—Supply is equally as good as last year, particularly in Garrett and Allegany Counties.

WILD TURKEYS — Fine flocks have been seen in Allegany and Washington Counties and additional broods in other counties.

DOVES—Supply is not too good, although there apparently were numbers of the young birds the first part of the summer. Vaughn blamed spread of dove disease.

DEER—They have been seen in many sections, and four additional counties—Kent, Dorchester, Wicomico and Somerset—have been added to the hunting area. Bow and arrow hunting will be allowed in Baltimore and Harford Counties Nov. 5-10.

The state-wide shooting season on pheasants is limited to Nov. 15 to Dec. 31, except in Garrett and Allegany Counties, where it is closed during the deer season. The state limit is two male birds a day and not more than six in the season.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 27 (INS) — The slim, childish looking Julie Harris, who was such a Broadway hit in "Member Of The Wedding," joins Ethel Waters and Master Brandon De Witt at Columbia.

This won't, however, be until next after Julie appears on Broadway in John Van Druten's new play, "I Am A Camera" — what a title!

Stanley Kramer won't produce "Member Of The Wedding" until Julie is free of her Broadway commitment. She doesn't open in the Van Druten play until Christmas time, so she won't arrive in Hollywood until spring at least, but I am glad she is to play the role she created.

Join Darryl Zanuck and see the world. He's got a company in the Argentines, one in Africa, one in Trieste, and now he's making plans to have "King Of The Khyber Rifles" filmed in India next year.

One of 20th Century Fox's best directors, Henry Hathaway, has been put on the picture, with Frank Rosenberg named as producer.

Alan Ladd

When an actor has grossed millions and millions of dollars for a company, naturally, a studio parts with him with reluctance. It's estimated that Alan Ladd's films during the ten years he's been with Paramount have grossed fifty million dollars.

The studio is reluctant to part with him, and so a deal is being readied for Alan to make one picture a year at Para, in addition to his two at Warners.

Alan is in an entirely different frame of mind than he was when he decided to pull up stakes and leave the company where he was the top star for so long. He's very pleased that he has Jean Arthur as his leading lady in "Shane." Well, all I can say is he's popular — and that's the understatement of the year.

There's a very remarkable two reeler now being narrated by Ethel Barrymore, written by Aldous Huxley and photographed by a Greek photographer named Hoyningen-Huene.

It's called "Daphni, Virgin Of The Golden Laurels," and it shows a mural of a 12th century church in Athens, which was built on the former site of the temple of Apollo. The narration is the story of the Virgin.

The photographer (and I won't attempt to spell his name again) is in Mexico now with Huxley's narration, which he is having translated into Spanish, French and German. This two reeler is intended for the art theaters, where the public will have a chance to see it.

Listen to the London gossip and you'll hear that Elizabeth Taylor is really in love with Michael Wilding, the British actor who seems to fascinate our American beauties. Marlene Dietrich is another who fell for the charming Mike.

Liz is dating absolutely no one else. In fact, she may not come back here after finishing "Ivanhoe" until MGM calls her, because she doesn't want to leave him.

I hear there's a chance that Wilding will soon return to MGM to make another film — he did "The Law And Lady Loverly" with Greer Garson. And the idea of his being in Hollywood will make Liz very happy, indeed.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Any edition Jack Haley will be a grandpop. His daughter, Gloria (in private life Mrs. Buddy Bregman) is just waiting to go into the hospital.

I was interested to see the Ray Millands' beautiful house nearly completed. I noticed Cobina Wright, Charlie Brackett, Mildred Ginsberg, Clifton Webb and Mabelle taking a look at it too.

Talked with Harry Crocker who told me that Jackie Frost, the pretty English actress, is due in a few days. She's such an attractive girl she'll probably be signed by one of our studios.

David Brian dropped 20 pounds before reporting at Warners for the Joan Crawford picture, "This Woman Is Dangerous."

Miriam Hopkins' 19-year-old son, Michael, has joined the Air Corps. Seems only yesterday Miriam invited me to look at her new baby.

Rod Cameron is sporting his first mustache and it's tres becoming.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Epidemic Intelligence Service Is Organized

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — A potential new defense against germ warfare was set up by the Public Health Service yesterday.

The agency organized an "epidemic intelligence service" to help investigate disease outbreaks that are beyond the control of state and local health departments.

Twenty-one new Public Health Service medical officers were assigned posts in the new unit, at stations in 12 states. They recently completed an eight-week training course at the Atlanta headquarters of the agency's communicable disease center.

Game Birds Are Plentiful In Maryland

BALTIMORE, Sept. 27 (AP)—Maryland hunters should have a better-than-average season in the field, Ernest A. Vaughn, director of the State Game and Inland Fish Department, said today.

Vaughn said reports from sportsmen, game wardens and farmers who have suffered crop damage, indicate that wild game did well during the breeding season.

The United States Fish and Wildlife Service has reported that waterfowl had an exceptional breeding season, and increasing numbers of ducks and geese are winging south.

Vaughn gave this detailed report:

QUAIL—Best breeding season in years. Covies have even been seen in Garrett and Allegany Counties, where they seldom are reported.

PHEASANTS — The department has received the first report of crop damage since Vaughn has been in office. This was from a farmer in Carroll County who said pheasants were destroying his tomatoes.

GROUSE—Supply is equally as good as last year, particularly in Garrett and Allegany Counties.

WILD TURKEYS — Fine flocks have been seen in Allegany and Washington Counties and additional broods in other counties.

DOVES—Supply is not too good, although there apparently were numbers of the young birds the first part of the summer. Vaughn blamed spread of dove disease.

DEER—They have been seen in many sections, and four additional counties—Kent, Dorchester, Wicomico and Somerset—have been added to the hunting area. Bow and arrow hunting will be allowed in Baltimore and Harford Counties Nov. 5-10.

The state-wide shooting season on pheasants is limited to Nov. 15 to Dec. 31, except in Garrett and Allegany Counties, where it is closed during the deer season. The state limit is two male birds a day and not more than six in the season.

The Classic School Of Murder

John Crosby

In the detective story of classic design, murder is perpetrated usually in genteel surroundings by killers whose grievances are reasonably genteel, too. The man has a simple sentimental attachment for money, usually his crotchety old uncle's. Or he has been thwarted by love and wants to expunge the other guy. Motives, in short, of understandable dimensions.

You don't find much gentility in homicide—at least televised homicide—these days of heroin addiction, complicated lusts and a general excess of emotion. It's kind of fun to see it again on "Martin Kane, Private Eye" where the environment was overwhelmingly posh the other night. Young Reggie, a moustached young wastrel of rococo design, was in love with uncle's toothsome secretary. But he had to get uncle's consent or, chances were, he'd be cut out of the will and then how would the couple live?

Right away, some instinct told me something untoward was going to happen to uncle moneybag, a suspicion almost instantly confirmed when we met him. An unpleasant old party, hopelessly suspicious, highly peremptory and very much in need of a rubbing out. Also, he tended orchids, and you know what those people are like. It's been a good long time since an author has shown enough regard for the sensibilities of the rest of us to establish the fact that the corpse is no one we'll miss very much.

Just as in the old days, the suspects, each with a motive pinned on him like a clothing store label, were paraded before us—young Reggie, the pretty young lady, and a sinister old lady (a sister of the deceased or something) who watched everyone else through spyglasses. All this before the old gentleman expired. Everything in good time. Years ago, there was a rule on Martin Kane that a corpse had to be produced within the first five minutes, preferably within the first two. Not any more. Not within recent memory has there been such a procession of suspects before any crime had been committed.

Ultimately, of course, the old crank was extinguished and then in came Martin Kane, private eye, an expression that cries for fresh blood. Here again the inquisition followed classic lines. The suspects were lined up in the living room and were asked where they were at quarter to 10. They were all unshakably somewhere else and each knew to the most minute particular what he or she was doing at that precise minute of that precise evening. I can't recall a single evening of my life in which I could recall what I was up to at quarter to 10, or, for that matter, quarter after 10, and I'm always overwhelmed with admiration at these feats of memory.

Anyhow, Mr. Kane, abetted by his friend Sergeant Ross, is forced to employ deductive reasoning to break the case. Now, deduction sounds like a fairly obvious element in a detective story, but, if you think about it a bit, you'll discover that you haven't seen very much of it around on television for a long time. The old Martin Kane solved murders almost entirely by the use of his fists, a non-deductive organ. His skull was useful only to be beat upon by pistol butts. The whole modern school of private sleuths dates back to Dashiell Hammett's "The Maltese Falcon." The hero of that epic was a real rough tough guy, all right, but he deducted from time to time, too. Somewhere along the line, deduction got lost and was supplanted entirely by the ready fist and the gun butt. Sakes amighty, I can remember another Martin Kane drama which was up to its hips in bodies but never bothered to discover the motive for killing any of them. Just pure, undistilled, unreasoning homicide.

I'm happy to report the return to the more intellectual school of murder and also the fact that Mr. Kane solved his little puzzle without undue mental strain. It was the toothsome young lady, played by Margaret Hayes, who plays about half the toothsome young ladies on TV these days and appears on panel shows on what is left of the 24-hour day.

Incidentally, there's a new Martin Kane—Lloyd Nolan, replacing the old one, William Gargan. Of the two, Mr. Gargan was prettier and more urbane. Mr. Nolan is breezier and more formidable. You might think Martin Kane didn't warrant an exposition of such length, but the fact is this show is just about the most televised thing on earth short of Senator Kefauver and Milton Berle. It now appears live in 38 cities and by kinescope in 23 more, which is just about as far as you can go on television these days.

"The Authority on Authorities"

YOU LEARN IT EARLY

ON THE rare occasions when a "smother play" is the only means of making your contract, you are likely to know about its necessity pretty early in the play. With most of these fancy maneuvers, the failure of one defender to follow suit on the first or second round of trumps marks his partner with a guarded trump honor, apparently too well guarded to be captured. That is the signal for you to work on building the play, hoping that in the meantime, the defender with the trumps doesn't manage to ruff a trick on which you want him to follow suit.

South found out on the second trick that he would have to execute a smother play to make his contract. He won the spade J lead with the A and finessed the heart J. on which East discarded a spade. This made it appear certain that West would get a trick with his heart K, in addition to the club trick that had to be lost to the defense.

But the declarer was one of Brazil's keenest players, Senor Joao Guimares, bridge editor of Correa da Manha in Rio de Janeiro, and what he did was reported by his partner, a transplanted New Yorker, Mrs. Leslie G. Weldon. He built a beautiful smother play to pull the contract home.

On the third trick he finessed the heart Q, blanking dummy's A and reducing West to only the K-6 in trumps. Then he proceeded to cut his trumps. He ruffed the spade 7, led to the diamond A, ruffed the spade 8 to have his own trumps pared down to the 10-8, and then scored the diamond K and Q, then the club Q and A, holding his breath while he hoped West would have to follow suit, which proved the case. Then came the bold stroke. He led the club 7, which East had to win with the K. It made no difference now which of his last two cards East led, the spade K or diamond 10. South ruffed with one of his small trumps. If West under-ruffed with the 6, the dummy's club would be discarded. If he over-ruffed with the K, the A would over-ruff and the club would be ruffed by South's last trump.

The Classic School Of Murder

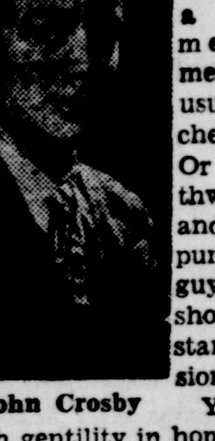
In the detective story of classic design, murder is perpetrated usually in genteel surroundings by killers whose grievances are reasonably genteel, too. The man has a simple sentimental attachment for money, usually his crotchety old uncle's. Or he has been thwarted by love and wants to expunge the other guy. Motives, in short, of understandable dimensions.



John Crosby

You don't find much gentility in homicide—at least televised homicide—these days of heroin addiction, complicated lusts and a general excess of emotion. It's kind of fun to see it again on "Martin Kane, Private Eye" where the environment was overwhelmingly posh the other night. Young Reggie, a moustached young wastrel of rococo design, was in love with uncle's toothsome secretary. But he had to get uncle's consent or, chances were, he'd be cut out of the will and then how would the couple live?

Right away, some instinct told me something untoward was going to happen to uncle moneybag, a suspicion almost instantly confirmed when we met him. An unpleasant old party, hopelessly suspicious, highly peremptory and very much in need of a rubbing out. Also, he tended orchids, and you know what those people are like. It's been a good long time since an author has shown enough regard for the sensibilities of the rest of us to establish the fact that the corpse is no one we'll miss very much.

Just as in the old days, the suspects, each with a motive pinned on him like a clothing store label, were paraded before us—young Reggie, the pretty young lady, and a sinister old lady (a sister of the deceased or something) who watched everyone else through spyglasses. All this before the old gentleman expired. Everything in good time. Years ago, there was a rule on Martin Kane that a corpse had to be produced within the first five minutes, preferably within the first two. Not any more. Not within recent memory has there been such a procession of suspects before any crime had been committed.

Ultimately, of course, the old crank was extinguished and then in came Martin Kane, private eye, an expression that cries for fresh blood. Here again the inquisition followed classic lines. The suspects were lined up in the living room and were asked where they were at quarter to 10. They were all unshakably somewhere else and each knew to the most minute particular what he or she was doing at that precise minute of that precise evening. I can't recall a single evening of my life in which I could recall what I was up to at quarter to 10, or, for that matter, quarter after 10, and I'm always overwhelmed with admiration at these feats of memory.

Anyhow, Mr. Kane, abetted by his friend Sergeant Ross, is forced to employ deductive reasoning to break the case. Now, deduction sounds like a fairly obvious element in a detective story, but, if you think about it a bit, you'll discover that you haven't seen very much of it around on television for a long time. The old Martin Kane solved murders almost entirely by the use of his fists, a non-deductive organ. His skull was useful only to be beat upon by pistol butts. The whole modern school of private sleuths dates back to Dashiell Hammett's "The Maltese Falcon." The hero of that epic was a real rough tough guy, all right, but he deducted from time to time, too. Somewhere along the line, deduction got lost and was supplanted entirely by the ready fist and the gun butt. Sakes amighty, I can remember another Martin Kane drama which was up to its hips in bodies but never bothered to discover the motive for killing any of them. Just pure, undistilled, unreasoning homicide.

I'm happy to report the return to the more intellectual school of murder and also the fact that Mr. Kane solved his little puzzle without undue mental strain. It was the toothsome young lady, played by Margaret Hayes, who plays about half the toothsome young ladies on TV these days and appears on panel shows on what is left of the 24-hour day.

Incidentally, there's a new Martin Kane—Lloyd Nolan, replacing the old one, William Gargan. Of the two, Mr. Gargan was prettier and more urbane. Mr. Nolan is breezier and more formidable. You might think Martin Kane didn't warrant an exposition of such length, but the fact is this show is just about the most televised thing on earth short of Senator Kefauver and Milton Berle. It now appears live in 38 cities and by kinescope in 23 more, which is just about as far as you can go on television these days.

"The Authority on Authorities"

YOU LEARN IT EARLY

ON THE rare occasions when a "smother play" is the only means of making your contract, you are likely to know about its necessity pretty early in the play. With most of these fancy maneuvers, the failure of one defender to follow suit on the first or second round of trumps marks his partner with a guarded trump honor, apparently too well guarded to be captured. That is the signal for you to work on building the play, hoping that in the meantime, the defender with the trumps doesn't manage to ruff a trick on which you want him to follow suit.

South found out on the second trick that he would have to execute a smother play to make his contract. He won the spade J lead with the A and finessed the heart J, on which East discarded a spade. This made it appear certain that West would get a trick with his heart K, in addition to the club trick that had to be lost to the defense.

But the declarer was one of Brazil's keenest players, Senor Joao Guimares, bridge editor of Correa da Manha in Rio de Janeiro, and what he did was reported by his partner, a transplanted New Yorker, Mrs. Leslie G. Weldon. He built a beautiful smother play to pull the contract home.

On the third trick he finessed the heart Q, blanking dummy's A and reducing West to only the K-6 in trumps. Then he proceeded to cut his trumps. He ruffed the spade 7, led to the diamond A, ruffed the spade 8 to have his own trumps pared down to the 10-8, and then scored the diamond K and Q, then the club Q and A, holding his breath while he hoped West would have to follow suit, which proved the case. Then came the bold stroke. He led the club 7, which East had to win with the K. It made no difference now which of his last two cards East led, the spade K or diamond 10. South ruffed with one of his small trumps. If West under-ruffed with the 6, the dummy's club would be discarded. If he over-ruffed with the K, the A would over-ruff and the club would be ruffed by South's last trump.

Markey May Seek Senate Seat In '52

Beall Again Hints Senate Candidacy

ANNAPOLIS, Sept. 27 —(AP)— Chances for another Markey-O'Conor fight for the U. S. Senate seat open next year became a distinct possibility tonight.

Republican D. John Markey of Frederick, defeated in 1946 by Sen. Herbert R. O'Conor, Democrat, by a scant 1,600 votes, has indicated to close friends he intends to be in the race next year for the GOP senatorial nomination.

Reached at his summer home on the Eastern Shore, Markey did not deny his interest in the coming campaign but said he couldn't be definite at this time.

"You can say, though," he added, "that I expect to have an announcement soon."

Friends quoted him as saying he considers he has the best chance of any Republican to defeat O'Conor.

O'Conor May Seek Reelection

O'Conor has not hinted as to his plans, but it is felt generally that he will seek re-election.

An official recount was made of the 1946 balloting, with O'Conor retaining a slight edge.

Markey lost his bid for the Republican nomination to the Senate in 1950 to Sen. John Marshall Butler, who defeated former Sen. Millard E. Tydings, Democrat, in the general election.

Another Western Marylander also is vying for position in the early maneuvering among the Republicans. He is Rep. J. Glenn Beall, considered quite strong in his Sixth (Western Maryland) District.

Beall dropped the strongst hint yet that he will seek the G. O. P. nomination. He announced simply that he would not be a candidate for re-election to Congress, but that was regarded as a means of opening the way for a Senatorial campaign.

Meanwhile, Paul Robertson, Baltimore Republican leader, came closest of any to a formal candidacy. His $270 filing fee was left with the Secretary of State in Annapolis.

Douglass Hall, Baltimore public relations man who deposited the money, said Robertson's signed certificate of candidacy would follow shortly.

Hall Criticises Truman

Hall also put out a statement laying sharp criticism of the Truman Administration to Robertson. He claimed promises of support from Republicans in Baltimore and 21 counties who attended an "all-night conference" preceding Robertson's decision to run.

Robertson led one of the two main factions that divided Baltimore Republicans before elections last year. He was an early supporter of Governor McKeldin.

Beall made his cryptic announcement at a Republican rally in Baltimore County last night. He said nothing of the Senate. He commented only that after talking with friends he had decided to give way to younger aspirants to the House seat he has occupied so long.

The Frostburg Republican is now serving his fifth term as Congressman from Maryland's Sixth District. He had said previously his mind would be made up about running for the Senate by October 1.

Sen. O'Conor (D-Md) is considered a certain candidate for re-election next year.

Beall and Robertson are not alone among challengers mentioned in Republican circles. H. Grady Gore, wealthy Montgomery County real estate man, has said he probably will seek the nomination.

In Western Maryland, where Beall has been a leading figure, State Senator Kimble (R-Allegany) also has been promoted as a candidate. Kimble is minority floor leader of the Maryland Senate.

33 New Voters Register Here

Cumberland's continuous registration system is getting off to a good start, Wallace G. Ullery, city clerk, reported yesterday.

He said 33 new voters have been registered so far this week and that a number of voters have made changes in residence and martial status.

Notices were sent yesterday to voters in Ward 5 whose names were stricken from the books for failure to vote during the past five years.

Similar notices will be mailed today, covering part of Ward 6, Ullery added.

If a citizen has voted during the past five years, the changeover to the continuing registration system will be automatic, unless the voter's name has been changed through marriage or divorce, or the person has moved from one precinct to another.

Registration headquarters have been set up in the basement of City Hall with an outside entrance off Bedford Street.

MYF To Hold Rally At Kingsley Church

The Cumberland sub-district Methodist Youth Fellowship will hold its monthly rally at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, October 4, at Kingsley Methodist Church, Williams Street, instead of at Central YMCA, as previously planned.

Members will adopt a constitution and outline plans for the year.

The Weather

The sun shone brightly yesterday and the temperature was uncomfortably warm during the afternoon. Stiff breezes were noticeable around the corners of the main stem. The high as recorded in the weather station at Constitution Park was 87, the low, 58, and at 8 p.m. the mercury stood at 75. Humidity at 6 p.m. was 58 per cent. Forecast for today is generally fair and cool.

Local Eagles Commend News

Cumberland Aerie 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles has adopted a resolution commending The Cumberland News for its coverage of local, national and international news.

The resolution was adopted in recognition of National Newspaper Week, which begins Monday.

It declared that "a free press is the foundation of a free and strong America," and said The News is "a truly representative concept of the free press."

The responsibility of freedom of the press, the resolution noted, demands "the care and diligent effort of intelligent men and women."

The Eagles also pledged their support in maintaining the standards of a free press.

Wheeler To Succeed Regional Storekeeper

Frank W. Reynolds, Baltimore, was honored last night at a stag dinner at Ali Ghan Country Club on his retirement as regional storekeeper for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Toastmaster was Charles R. Wheeler, 510 East Oldtown Road, who will succeed him Monday. Wheeler has been Cumberland storekeeper since 1944.

Some 175 railroaders from New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington, Cincinnati and other cities gathered to honor Reynolds as he rounded out a 49-year railroad career.

Speeches were given by G. F. Wiles, Baltimore, superintendent of motor power; Chester T. Williams, Cumberland Division superintendent; E. M. Scherck, local backshops superintendent, and C. E. Gainer, division master mechanic.

William H. Shaw, assistant storekeeper, gave the invocation, and G. F. McDermitt, Benwood, W. Va., chief clerk of the stores department, sang several selections.

Rynolds was presented with a gift by R. M. Douglas, assistant division storekeeper, and W. J. Hay performed magic tricks. Dinner music was by Lou Bittner.

Wheeler, whose headquarters will be in Baltimore, will head the Eastern Region of the B&O, which includes the Baltimore, Cumberland, Wheeling and Monongah divisions.

He began work with the B&O in 1919 as a clerk in the local stores department, and in 1920 became section stockman. He was promoted to chief clerk at Keyser in 1922, and

Local Man's Poem To Be Broadcast

A poem written by Harry P. Volk, 428 Columbia Street, will be read tomorrow morning on the Columbia Broadcasting System program, "The Garden Gate." The poem is titled "Changing of the Guard."

"IT'S GREAT TO BE BACK"—There's no doubt about the feelings of the family of James M. Robey, pictured with him in their home on Winifred Road following his return from a year's service with the Navy in Japan. Robey, a veteran of World War II and a Navy reservist, was recalled to active duty in August 1950. A month later he was in Japan. During his absence from his job as Deputy Register of Wills, his wife has been working in the office at the Court House. # Westernport Sewer Case Finally Settled

Judgment Marked Paid In Docket

The much-aired $5,000 suit of Mrs. Minnie True Droege against the Mayor and Commissioners of Westernport for damages sustained when a sewer collapsed under her house in 1949, finally has come to the end of the road in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Thomas Lohr Richards, who with H. Gassaway Shores served as attorneys for the Westernport woman, has requested Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court, to enter a judgement in the case "paid, settled and satisfied," and this has been done.

The third trial of this suit ended May 16 when a jury returned a verdict of $2,000 for Mrs. Droege in the case.

Three days later, Horace P. Whitworth, Sr., and Walter C. Capper, attorneys for the Town of Westernport, filed a motion for a new trial and judgement in favor of the town. This motion never was argued before Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris, who presided at the trial.

Mrs. Droege, then Mrs. True, a widow, filed suit against the Mayor and Commissioners of Westernport August 3, 1949.

The first trial ended Nov. 18, 1949, with a verdict of $3,691.66 for the woman.On February 10, 1950, Associated Judge George Henderson, who presided at that first trial, filed an opinion granting the motion for judgement in favor of the town notwithstanding the jury's verdict.

An appeal was taken from Judge Henderson's ruling and the Maryland Court of Appeals reversed the decision and ordered a new trial.

The second trial ended February 21 of this year with a hung jury. Then came the third and final trial four months ago.

Resurfacing Job Gets Under Way On City Streets

State-Shared Funds To Finance Work

Paving of one of nine streets to be resurfaced from state gasoline funds was completed yesterday afternoon.

Blacktopping of Offutt Street, from Virginia Avenue to Olive Street, was slated to be completed yesterday by Cumberland Contracting Company crews.

The work included a 20-foot roadway, with blacktopping applied in a leveling-up course, followed by a final top coat.

Slated today is the paving of Broadway from Maryland Avenue to Cromwell Terrace.

Resurfacing of Market Street, from Mechanic Street to Centre Street, is scheduled next week.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, late in August advertised for bids on the work, to be financed from about $21,000 available from state-shared gasoline tax income and earmarked for street maintenance work in this city.

None of the cost will be levied against property owners.

The list of streets to be resurfaced under the program also includes:

South George Street from Baltimore Street to Harrison Street.

South Liberty Street from Baltimore Street to Harrison Steet.

Harrison Street from Mechanic Street to Centre Street.

Saratoga Street from Cumberland Street to School Street.

Fairview Avenue from Franklin Street to Pulaski Street.

Prospect Square on both sides of Washington Street.

The program, usually slated in the spring, was begun shortly after the beginning of the 1951-52 fiscal year, to allow immediate improvement of the streets.

Local Congregations Will Usher In Jewish New Year Sunday Evening

Special Services Planned Two Days

Members of the two local congregations will usher in Rosh Hashono, the Jewish New Year, with solemn religious service Sunday evening, September 30.

Similar services in synagogues throughout the world will mark the beginning of the year 5712 in the Jewish calendar, which counts time from the traditional date of the world's creation.

New Rabbi

Rosh Hashono will be the first special service at Beth Jacob Congregation on North Centre Street for Rabbi Joseph Schimelman, who came to Cumberland just a week ago.

Rabbi Schimelman ended a four-year rabbinate at Portsmouth, N. H., when he came here. Since his graduation in 1939 from Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary and Yeshiva University in New York City, he also served as rabbi on synagogues in Watertown, N. Y., and West Haven, Conn.

A native of New York City and a former school teacher, Rabbi Schimelman is married and the father of four children.

The newcomer announced yesterday that Beth Jacob Congregation will have Rosh Hashono services at 5:30 and 6 p. m. Sunday and Monday and Monday and Tuesday mornings at 7:30 o'clock.

Sermon Topics

"The Most Valuable Thing in Life" will be Rabbi Schimelman's sermon topic Sunday evening. "A Prescription for This Ailing World" will be the subject of his Monday morning sermon, scheduled for about 10 o'clock.

Benjamin Levin will conduct the morning Shacharit services at Beth Jacob. Moses R. Sacks will be the cantor for the regular services. George Ossip will blow the ram's horn and will read the Torah.

Rabbi Schimelman announced yesterday that there will be no Sunday School September 30. Sunday School will be resumed October 7.

Rabbi Herbert J. Wilner, of B'er Chayim Congregation, will speak on "Get the Connection" at the service Sunday at 7:30 p. m. The topic Monday at 10 a. m. will be "You Bet Your Life."

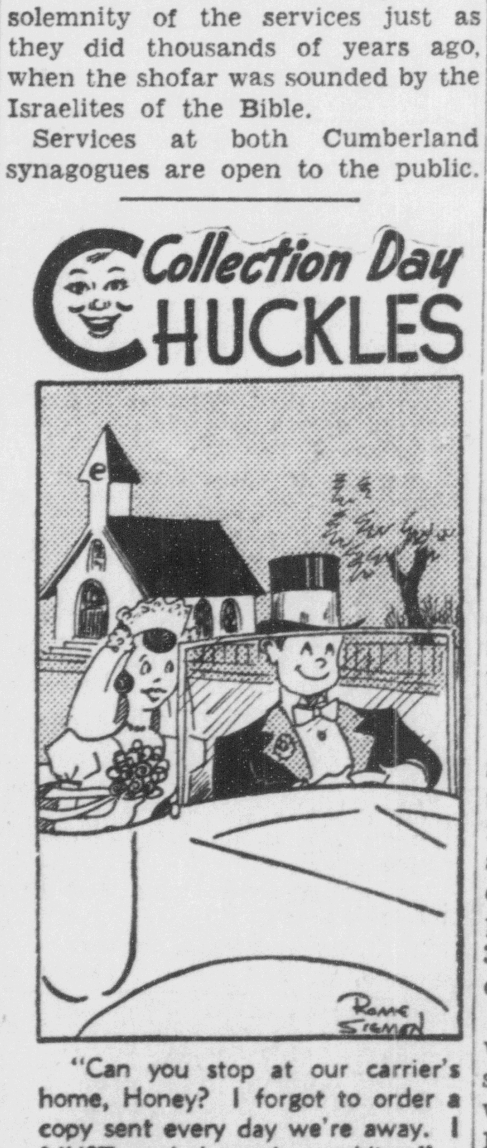
John Gridley, organist, and Mrs. Blanche Stanton Gunter, soprano, and Cletus Hartsock, baritone, will present a program of music.

The shofar, or ram's horn, will be sounded by Lt. Leonard Schwab, who was secretary of the congregation until his recent recall to the armed forces.

The Jewish New Year is observed differently than most other New Year holidays. It is celebrated in the synagogues at worship services that are among the most serious and soul-stirring in the Jewish religion. The worshippers are told on Rosh Hashono that each of their deeds is known and judged by God.

A striking feature of the Rosh Hashono services is the sounding of the "shofar," a primitive wind instrument made of a ram's horn. Its shrill notes seem to deepen the solemnity of the services just as they did thousands of years ago, when the shofar was sounded by the Israelites of the Bible.

Services at both Cumberland synagogues are open to the public.



"Can you stop at our carrier's home, Honey? I forgot to order a copy sent every day we're away. I MUST read about the wedding."

Grass Blazes Keeping City Firemen Busy

Fire Truck Delayed By Illegal Parkers

Grass fires which could result in serious damage continue to plague the Cumberland area due to the current drought, and some schools of the section face closing if the water shortage is not alleviated soon.

Yesterday, stiff afternoon breezes aided in spreading five grass fires in Cumberland between 10:47 a.m. and 6:03 p.m.

Although a grass fire does not always cause great damage it takes firemen and apparatus to the scene and weakens the department in case of more serious fires.

East Side firemen yesterday answered three grass fire calls including one on Helen Street at 10:47 a.m., on at Goethe Street at 2:08 p.m. and a third on Leiper Street at 3:41 p.m.

Central firemen responded to a grass fire on Riser Avenue at 3:49 p.m. and at 4:04 p.m. West Side was called in to help fight the blaze from Fort Avenue. Another grass fire was checked at 6:03 p.m. by South End at Fourth Street.

Residents are asked by city firemen to exercise caution throughout the city during the current dry spell and to be especially careful when disposing of lighted cigarettes.

Fire Lane Blocked

A Fire Department vehicle speeding to a second alarm fire was held up for five minutes yesterday by three cars parked in the North Liberty Street fire lane.

Drivers of two of the cars parked on red lines on the right side of the street managed to make way for the pumper by driving upon the sidewalk.

Police, assisted by several citizens, had to shove the third vehicle to the left side of the street to allow the fire truck to proceed, according to Fire Chief Virgil A. Parker.

Police placed a charge of parking in a fire lane against the driver of the car and said the Baltimore man posted $5 bond for a hearing today.

Chief Parker said the driver went to the hotel after leaving the vehicle parked in the fire lane.

Will Enforce Ban

The traffic block occurred as West Side Fire Company, which had come to Central to protect the business section, got a call to help Central fight a grass fire in the Riser-Fort Avenue section.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long termed parking in a fire lane a "serious offense" and said the fire chief has been ordered to bring charges against anyone who delays a fire department vehicle.

He pointed out that red lines have been placed on the right curb and that fire lane signs have been placed on poles on the street.

A place has been reserved on the left side of the street, the commissioner said, for hotel guests.

School Is Affected

Oldtown Grammar and High School may have to go on half-day schedules beginning Monday if relief from the lack of water is not received.

Although the Oldtown school has ample drinking water at present, water for sanitary purposes is getting at a low point, Principal George F. Reiter said last night.

Vets' Pension Bill Outlined

Area veterans who are totally disabled and in need of attention will be interested in the $120 Disability Pension Bill for the physically helpless which became Public Law No. 149 on September 18.

The provisions of the bill which will become effective November 1, will initially affect more than 25,000 veterans, principally those of World War II.

Thomas G. Kilduff, assistant state service officer, Maryland Veterans Commission, said yesterday emphasis is stressed that veterans eligible for the pension must be in need of an attendant, as in the case of the blind or invalid.

The law does not apply to all totally disabled veterans who are in receipt of $60 pension, non-service connected. The disabled veterans of World War II and the Korean emergency are eligible for these additional benefits under conditions warranting the award.

The pension must be applied for and applicants are asked to send in full name, "C-number" and ask for additional information at Kilduff's office, Liberty Trust Building.

State Tax Deadline Nearly Reached

Tax Collector Ernest B. Treat reminded property owners who have not yet paid their state property taxes that the deadline for payment with penalty is Sept. 30.

However, because that date is Sunday, payments must be brought to his office at the Court House before noon Saturday. Interest has already been added to county taxes, effective Sept. 1. Mailed payments postmarked before midnight, Sept. 30, will be accepted without interest on state taxes.

Treat also reported that all motor vehicle license plates, both for pleasure cars and commercial vehicles, will be sold at half price beginning Monday, October 1. He still has plates for sale at his office.

Markey May Seek Senate Seat In '52

Beall Again Hints Senate Candidacy

ANNAPOLIS, Sept. 27 —(AP)— Chances for another Markey-O'Conor fight for the U. S. Senate seat open next year became a distinct possibility tonight.

Republican D. John Markey of Frederick, defeated in 1946 by Sen. Herbert R. O'Conor, Democrat, by a scant 1,600 votes, has indicated to close friends he intends to be in the race next year for the GOP senatorial nomination.

Reached at his summer home on the Eastern Shore, Markey did not deny his interest in the coming campaign but said he couldn't be definite at this time.

"You can say, though," he added, "that I expect to have an announcement soon."

Friends quoted him as saying he considers he has the best chance of any Republican to defeat O'Conor.

O'Conor May Seek Reelection

O'Conor has not hinted as to his plans, but it is felt generally that he will seek re-election.

An official recount was made of the 1946 balloting, with O'Conor retaining a slight edge.

Markey lost his bid for the Republican nomination to the Senate in 1950 to Sen. John Marshall Butler, who defeated former Sen. Millard E. Tydings, Democrat, in the general election.

Another Western Marylander also is vying for position in the early maneuvering among the Republicans. He is Rep. J. Glenn Beall, considered quite strong in his Sixth (Western Maryland) District.

Beall dropped the strongst hint yet that he will seek the G. O. P. nomination. He announced simply that he would not be a candidate for re-election to Congress, but that was regarded as a means of opening the way for a Senatorial campaign.

Meanwhile, Paul Robertson, Baltimore Republican leader, came closest of any to a formal candidacy. His $270 filing fee was left with the Secretary of State in Annapolis. Douglass Hall, Baltimore public relations man who deposited the money, said Robertson's signed certificate of candidacy would follow shortly.

Hall Criticises Truman

Hall also put out a statement laying sharp criticism of the Truman Administration to Robertson. He claimed promises of support from Republicans in Baltimore and 21 counties who attended an "all-night conference" preceding Robertson's decision to run.

Robertson led one of the two main factions that divided Baltimore Republicans before elections last year. He was an early supporter of Governor McKeldin.

Beall made his cryptic announcement at a Republican rally in Baltimore County last night. He said nothing of the Senate. He commented only that after talking with friends he had decided to give way to younger aspirants to the House seat he has occupied so long.

The Frostburg Republican is now serving his fifth term as Congressman from Maryland's Sixth District. He had said previously his mind would be made up about running for the Senate by October 1.

Sen. O'Conor (D-Md) is considered a certain candidate for re-election next year.

Beall and Robertson are not alone among challengers mentioned in Republican circles. H. Grady Gore, wealthy Montgomery County real estate man, has said he probably will seek the nomination.

In Western Maryland, where Beall has been a leading figure, State Senator Kimble (R-Allegany) also has been promoted as a candidate. Kimble is minority floor leader of the Maryland Senate.

33 New Voters Register Here

Cumberland's continuous registration system is getting off to a good start, Wallace G. Ullery, city clerk, reported yesterday.

He said 33 new voters have been registered so far this week and that a number of voters have made changes in residence and martial status.

Notices were sent yesterday to voters in Ward 5 whose names were stricken from the books for failure to vote during the past five years.

Similar notices will be mailed today, covering part of Ward 6, Ullery added.

If a citizen has voted during the past five years, the changeover to the continuing registration system will be automatic, unless the voter's name has been changed through marriage or divorce, or the person has moved from one precinct to another.

Registration headquarters have been set up in the basement of City Hall with an outside entrance off Bedford Street.

MYF To Hold Rally At Kingsley Church

The Cumberland sub-district Methodist Youth Fellowship will hold its monthly rally at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, October 4, at Kingsley Methodist Church, Williams Street, instead of at Central YMCA, as previously planned.

Members will adopt a constitution and outline plans for the year.

Local Eagles Commend News

Cumberland Aerie 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles has adopted a resolution commending The Cumberland News for its coverage of local, national and international news.

The resolution was adopted in recognition of National Newspaper Week, which begins Monday.

It declared that "a free press is the foundation of a free and strong America," and said The News is "a truly representative concept of the free press."

The Eagles also pledged their support in maintaining the standards of a free press.

Wheeler To Succeed Regional Storekeeper

Frank W. Reynolds, Baltimore, was honored last night at a stag dinner at Ali Ghan Country Club on his retirement as regional storekeeper for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Toastmaster was Charles R. Wheeler, 510 East Oldtown Road, who will succeed him Monday. Wheeler has been Cumberland storekeeper since 1944.

Some 175 railroaders from New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington, Cincinnati and other cities gathered to honor Reynolds as he rounded out a 49-year railroad career.

Speeches were given by G. F. Wiles, Baltimore, superintendent of motor power; Chester T. Williams, Cumberland Division superintendent; E. M. Scherck, local backshops superintendent, and C. E. Gainer, division master mechanic.

William H. Shaw, assistant storekeeper, gave the invocation, and G. F. McDermitt, Benwood, W. Va., chief clerk of the stores department, sang several selections.

Rynolds was presented with a gift by R. M. Douglas, assistant division storekeeper, and W. J. Hay performed magic tricks. Dinner music was by Lou Bittner.

Wheeler, whose headquarters will be in Baltimore, will head the Eastern Region of the B&O, which includes the Baltimore, Cumberland, Wheeling and Monongah divisions.

He began work with the B&O in 1919 as a clerk in the local stores department, and in 1920 became section stockman. He was promoted to chief clerk at Keyser in 1922, and

Resurfacing Job Gets Under Way On City Streets

State-Shared Funds To Finance Work

Paving of one of nine streets to be resurfaced from state gasoline funds was completed yesterday afternoon.

Blacktopping of Offutt Street, from Virginia Avenue to Olive Street, was slated to be completed yesterday by Cumberland Contracting Company crews.

The work included a 20-foot roadway, with blacktopping applied in a leveling-up course, followed by a final top coat.

Slated today is the paving of Broadway from Maryland Avenue to Cromwell Terrace.

Resurfacing of Market Street, from Mechanic Street to Centre Street, is scheduled next week.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, late in August advertised for bids on the work, to be financed from about $21,000 available from state-shared gasoline tax income and earmarked for street maintenance work in this city.

None of the cost will be levied against property owners.

The list of streets to be resurfaced under the program also includes:

South George Street from Baltimore Street to Harrison Street.

South Liberty Street from Baltimore Street to Harrison Steet.

Harrison Street from Mechanic Street to Centre Street.

Saratoga Street from Cumberland Street to School Street.

Fairview Avenue from Franklin Street to Pulaski Street.

Prospect Square on both sides of Washington Street.

The program, usually slated in the spring, was begun shortly after the beginning of the 1951-52 fiscal year, to allow immediate improvement of the streets.

Local Congregations Will Usher In Jewish New Year Sunday Evening

Special Services Planned Two Days

Members of the two local congregations will usher in Rosh Hashono, the Jewish New Year, with solemn religious service Sunday evening, September 30.

Similar services in synagogues throughout the world will mark the beginning of the year 5712 in the Jewish calendar, which counts time from the traditional date of the world's creation.

New Rabbi

Rosh Hashono will be the first special service at Beth Jacob Congregation on North Centre Street for Rabbi Joseph Schimelman, who came to Cumberland just a week ago.

Rabbi Schimelman ended a four-year rabbinate at Portsmouth, N. H., when he came here. Since his graduation in 1939 from Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary and Yeshiva University in New York City, he also served as rabbi on synagogues in Watertown, N. Y., and West Haven, Conn.

A native of New York City and a former school teacher, Rabbi Schimelman is married and the father of four children.

The newcomer announced yesterday that Beth Jacob Congregation will have Rosh Hashono services at 5:30 and 6 p. m. Sunday and Monday and Monday and Tuesday mornings at 7:30 o'clock.

Sermon Topics

"The Most Valuable Thing in Life" will be Rabbi Schimelman's sermon topic Sunday evening. "A Prescription for This Ailing World" will be the subject of his Monday morning sermon, scheduled for about 10 o'clock.

Benjamin Levin will conduct the morning Shacharit services at Beth Jacob. Moses R. Sacks will be the cantor for the regular services. George Ossip will blow the ram's horn and will read the Torah.

Rabbi Schimelman announced yesterday that there will be no Sunday School September 30. Sunday School will be resumed October 7.

Rabbi Herbert J. Wilner, of B'er Chayim Congregation, will speak on "Get the Connection" at the service Sunday at 7:30 p. m. The topic Monday at 10 a. m. will be "You Bet Your Life."

John Gridley, organist, and Mrs. Blanche Stanton Gunter, soprano, and Cletus Hartsock, baritone, will present a program of music.

The shofar, or ram's horn, will be sounded by Lt. Leonard Schwab, who was secretary of the congregation until his recent recall to the armed forces.

The Jewish New Year is observed differently than most other New Year holidays. It is celebrated in the synagogues at worship services that are among the most serious and soul-stirring in the Jewish religion. The worshippers are told on Rosh Hashono that each of their deeds is known and judged by God.

A striking feature of the Rosh Hashono services is the sounding of the "shofar," a primitive wind instrument made of a ram's horn. Its shrill notes seem to deepen the solemnity of the services just as they did thousands of years ago, when the shofar was sounded by the Israelites of the Bible.

Services at both Cumberland synagogues are open to the public.

Grass Blazes Keeping City Firemen Busy

Fire Truck Delayed By Illegal Parkers

Grass fires which could result in serious damage continue to plague the Cumberland area due to the current drought, and some schools of the section face closing if the water shortage is not alleviated soon.

Yesterday, stiff afternoon breezes aided in spreading five grass fires in Cumberland between 10:47 a.m. and 6:03 p.m.

Although a grass fire does not always cause great damage it takes firemen and apparatus to the scene and weakens the department in case of more serious fires.

East Side firemen yesterday answered three grass fire calls including one on Helen Street at 10:47 a.m., on at Goethe Street at 2:08 p.m. and a third on Leiper Street at 3:41 p.m.

Central firemen responded to a grass fire on Riser Avenue at 3:49 p.m. and at 4:04 p.m. West Side was called in to help fight the blaze from Fort Avenue. Another grass fire was checked at 6:03 p.m. by South End at Fourth Street.

Residents are asked by city firemen to exercise caution throughout the city during the current dry spell and to be especially careful when disposing of lighted cigarettes.

Fire Lane Blocked

A Fire Department vehicle speeding to a second alarm fire was held up for five minutes yesterday by three cars parked in the North Liberty Street fire lane.

Drivers of two of the cars parked on red lines on the right side of the street managed to make way for the pumper by driving upon the sidewalk.

Police, assisted by several citizens, had to shove the third vehicle to the left side of the street to allow the fire truck to proceed, according to Fire Chief Virgil A. Parker.

Police placed a charge of parking in a fire lane against the driver of the car and said the Baltimore man posted $5 bond for a hearing today.

Chief Parker said the driver went to the hotel after leaving the vehicle parked in the fire lane.

Will Enforce Ban

The traffic block occurred as West Side Fire Company, which had come to Central to protect the business section, got a call to help Central fight a grass fire in the Riser-Fort Avenue section.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long termed parking in a fire lane a "serious offense" and said the fire chief has been ordered to bring charges against anyone who delays a fire department vehicle.

He pointed out that red lines have been placed on the right curb and that fire lane signs have been placed on poles on the street.

School Is Affected

Oldtown Grammar and High School may have to go on half-day schedules beginning Monday if relief from the lack of water is not received.

Although the Oldtown school has ample drinking water at present, water for sanitary purposes is getting at a low point, Principal George F. Reiter said last night.

Vets' Pension Bill Outlined

Area veterans who are totally disabled and in need of attention will be interested in the $120 Disability Pension Bill for the physically helpless which became Public Law No. 149 on September 18.

The provisions of the bill which will become effective November 1, will initially affect more than 25,000 veterans, principally those of World War II.

Thomas G. Kilduff, assistant state service officer, Maryland Veterans Commission, said yesterday emphasis is stressed that veterans eligible for the pension must be in need of an attendant, as in the case of the blind or invalid.

The law does not apply to all totally disabled veterans who are in receipt of $60 pension, non-service connected. The disabled veterans of World War II and the Korean emergency are eligible for these additional benefits under conditions warranting the award.

The pension must be applied for and applicants are asked to send in full name, "C-number" and ask for additional information at Kilduff's office, Liberty Trust Building.

State Tax Deadline Nearly Reached

Tax Collector Ernest B. Treat reminded property owners who have not yet paid their state property taxes that the deadline for payment with penalty is Sept. 30.

However, because that date is Sunday, payments must be brought to his office at the Court House before noon Saturday. Interest has already been added to county taxes, effective Sept. 1. Mailed payments postmarked before midnight, Sept. 30, will be accepted without interest on state taxes.

Treat also reported that all motor vehicle license plates, both for pleasure cars and commercial vehicles, will be sold at half price beginning Monday, October 1. He still has plates for sale at his office.
